Two Officers In Defector Case Retire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senior Coast Guard officers have taken retirement rather than face courts-martial for their part in the abortive defection attempt of a Lithuanian sailor.

But the officers, Rear Adm. William B. Ellis, 56, and Capt. Fletcher W. Brown Jr., 50, face a congressional committee next Tuesday in the case of would-be defector Simas I. Kudirka.

Russian seamen forcibly pulled Kudirka aboard their adjacent vessel after he jumped to the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Vigilant in U.S. territorial waters off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., last month.

Decision Criticized

Rep. Wayne L. Hays called outrageous a decision Monday by Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe to let the officers retire and thus evade court-martial proceedings.

The Ohio Democrat said he wants Ellis and Brown to appear before his House foreign operations subcommittee to "find out what makes them think like this." Brown was acting commander of the First Coast Guard District in Boston and Ellis, the commander, was on sick leave when Kudirka attempted defection.

A report of a formal Coast Guard investigation sharply criticizes the two officers and also declares the State Department "did not furnish . . . adequate, helpful or timely advice to deal properly with this defection."

Dereliction

Adm. C. R. Bender, the Coast Guard commandant, issued findings based on the report that called for court-martialing both men on charges of dereliction.

But Bender said he would drop the charges if the pair retired immediately.

Volpe noted the officers submitted retirement requests, told Bender not to press charges and agreed with Bender they should receive punitive letters of reprimand.

Brown and Ellis now "appreciate fully their serious error of judgment. . . . have been subjected to extreme castigation from many quarters in this nation," and, with their families, have suffered, Volpe said.

Need Regretted

Volpe said he regretted "very deeply that a young man had to lose his chance for freedom in order to bring to light deficiencies in government procedures for welcoming victims of oppression to American soil." He added that new procedures should prevent the incident of Nov. 23 from happening again.

A spokesman for the Transportation Department, which runs the Coast Guard, said the careers of Ellis and Brown will end by Jan. 31, but could not say immediately what their pensions will be.

Volpe kept with Bender's finding that Cmdr. Ralph W. Eustis, the commander of the Vigilant, should get an administrative letter of reprimand and be reassigned.

The spokesman described an administrative letter as "a slap on the hand" and said Eustis already had received reassignment orders last July for a change in duty starting next March.

Bearing Brunt

Eustis is "being made the goat in this whole thing," Hays declared. "His career is shot. And they're letting the other two retire with pensions."

The Coast Guard's report on the incident and Bender's conclusions state, in part:

—Kudirka clearly indicated three times to Vigilant officers he wanted to defect. Hidden in a cigarette package Kudirka slipped a Vigilant officer was this message in broken English: "My dear Comrade I will up down of Russians ship and go with you together. If is a possible please give me signal I keep a sharp lookout—Simas."

—Ellis told Brown, "If we get the defector, we should give him back" because, in part, a defection might interrupt talks on U.S. fishing industry complaints over the Russians taking too many yellow-tailed flounders off New England coasts. When Brown told Ellis that Kudirka's life was in jeopardy from the Russians, Ellis said, "I don't think we have any reason to believe this. They (the Russians) are not barbarians."

—Brown should have "exercized independently his authority as acting district commander," but "he was markedly influenced in his course of action by the forceful advice" of Ellis, Bender said. The report recommended court-martial for Brown's failure "to inform the commandant of the progress in the case" and to keep Kudirka on the Vigilant until he had proper advice.

—Eustis erred in allowing Russian crewmen "to exercise any control of the defector while on board the Vigilant," Bender declared.

Do Nothing

—The State Department told the Coast Guard to do nothing to entice the defector and "until the man was actually on board Vigilant, State Department could offer no advice, but that once the man was on board, State Department should be notified." Bender called for State Department-Coast Guard talks to explore "detailed guidelines . . . on current State Department policy and procedure."

—The master of the Soviet vessel, the Sovietskaya Litva, told Eustis that Kudirka stole 3,000 rubles before he defected. In a wild melee to avoid capture, Kudirka appeared to jump overboard from the Vigilant. When the Russians finally captured him, "one Soviet repeatedly struck Kudirka's head against the steel rail of the ladder" of the Vigilant. Crewmen intervened to stop the beating. But after almost an hour, the Russians had Kudirka wrapped in a blanket and, according to one junior officer, "would have beaten Kudirka into unconsciousness to simplify their task of removing him."

Hanoi Releases Prisoners' Names

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said today North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris have given to a Washington lawyer a list of the names of 368 American prisoners of war.

Kennedy said the names, described by the North Vietnamese as an official prisoner list, were turned over to John Nolan, an attorney formerly with the Department of Justice.

Hanoi has previously released through U.S. antiwar groups the names of 339 U.S. servicemen it says it is holding. The Pentagon lists 378 men as probable prisoners of the North Vietnamese.

There was no way immediately to compare the new list with those given out previously.

Kennedy told a news conference he does not have the list of names. He said Nolan, who does, is returning to Washington with it.

The Massachusetts senator said he sent Nolan to Paris in response to the invitation of the North Vietnamese.

Kennedy said he does not know whether the list is a complete one. He said the list given Nolan also included the names of 20 men identified as American prisoners who died in captivity, and nine men released.

It listed the date of capture, date of death or date of release, he said.

Nolan received the list at a meeting today with North Vietnamese representatives in Paris, Kennedy said. The meeting lasted an hour and 15 minutes.

Kennedy said Nolan read him the list, and took it to David K.E. Bruce, chief U.S. negotiator in the Paris peace talks.

In addition, Kennedy said he telephoned Secretary of State William P. Rogers, and also called the White House, although he did not speak directly with President Nixon.

Lists Accuracy

"I have no way of knowing at this time the accuracy of that list," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said the invitation came in response to a letter he sent June 23 to Ton Duc Thang, president of North Vietnam, asking that the prisoners be identified, that they be permitted to send and receive mail, and that the ill and wounded be released through a neutral nation.

Kennedy said he did not know the identity of the North Vietnamese representatives with whom Nolan met.

He distributed at a news conference copies of a telegram signed by Mai Van Bo, head of the North Vietnamese mission in Paris.

Bo Invitation

It invited Kennedy or his authorized representative to meet Bo in Paris before Dec. 23, 1970.

"I will hand over letter and documents included from Ton Duc Thang, President DRNV, in reply to your letter regarding question American captured pilots," the telegram added. "I wait for your answer."

Kennedy said he asked Nolan to represent him, and the lawyer flew to Paris Monday night, meeting today with the North Vietnamese.

Nolan, Kennedy said, was one of the negotiators involved in the release of prisoners captured by Cuba at the time of the Bay of Pigs invasion attempt, during the administration of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy said what Nolan received was "strictly a list," with no hint as to the possibility of release for the men it named.

"I would put absolutely no interpretation on it other than the facts as they are," Kennedy said.

Two Losing Seasons

Bengtson Quits as Packer Coach Effective Feb. 1

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Expressing the hope that a change would better the team's fortunes, Phil Bengtson today resigned as head coach and general manager of the Packers.

In a letter to Packer President Dominic Olejniczak, Bengtson said, "Because of a very disappointing season, and hoping that a change will improve the won-lost record of the Packers in 1971, I hereby tender my resignation, to become effective Feb. 1, 1971.

"I want to emphasize that my experience with the Packers has been very enjoyable and I wish them every success in the future in the National Football League."

In a brief statement, Olejniczak said, "In accepting Mr. Bengtson's resignation, I want to wish him every success in his future endeavors. He certainly is an outstanding gentleman and a fine citizen."

Olejriczak added, "We haven't even thought of looking for a successor until this minute, but it's something we'll have to start thinking about very soon. This happened sooner than I expected, but Mr. Bengtson wished it to be done immediately."

Phil Bengtson

Bengtson, who came to the Packers in 1959 as an assistant to the late Vince Lombardi, signed a three-year contract as head coach in February of 1968.

Members of the executive committee, in addition to Olejniczak, are Richard Bourguignon, John B. Torinus, F N Trowbridge Sr., Jerry Atkinson,

Chase Manhattan

Prime Rate Cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank today reduced its prime rate to 6¾ per cent from 7 per cent, saying that there has been a decline in market rates and a "generally moderate" demand for loans in the last four weeks.

Chase had initiated a drop in the prime rate—the interest it charges its biggest and most creditworthy borrowers—four weeks ago, from 7¼ to 7 per cent.

Two big New York City banks, First National City and Chemical New York, went along with the rate reduction, which was the fifth this year.

Also trimming the rate was Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis. Cleveland Trust Co. said it may announce a cut Wednesday.

The bank said it was acting in line with its policy of "keeping a flexible prime rate that is fully responsive to money market rates."

"We believe that this reduction is justified by the decline in market rates and the generally moderate loan demand in the four weeks since we last reduced the prime rate," the bank said.

The commercial banks have reduced the prime rate in progressive steps since it reached a record 8½ per cent in June of 1969.

The Citizens & Southern National Bank of Atlanta quickly joined Chase in cutting the rate to 6¾ per cent from 7 per cent.

Angela Davis Sent to California for Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Davis was whisked from the Women's House of Detention under heavy police guard early today for extradition to California where she faces murder and kidnap charges in connection with a courtroom shootout.

Officials waited until 3:05 a.m.—11 hours after a stay of extradition granted her in federal court had expired—before taking the black militant former UCLA philosophy instructor from the Greenwich Village jail.

Local, state and National Guard security personnel handled her transfer to a Department of Correction van. Federal officials denied earlier reports federal personnel were involved in the transfer.

Escorted by 10 police cars, the van sped downtown to the Holland Tunnel where the westbound tube had been closed to all traffic.

Air Force Base

New Jersey State Police confirmed they picked up the caravan shortly after 3:30 a.m. and led it to McGuire Air Force Base. A spokesman for the Air Force said he could "neither confirm nor deny" that Miss Davis boarded an airplane at the base.

However, it was learned that Miss Davis' plane took off from McGuire at 5:30 a.m.

Tight security measures were in force throughout the transfer and police told newsmen they were under strict orders not to disclose details of the operation.

Miss Davis, a self-described Communist, is under indictment in connection with the escape attempt of San Quentin prisoners from the Marin County Courthouse in San Rafael, Calif., on Aug. 7.

In a blazing gun battle, a judge held hostage was shot to death and three men involved in the escape were killed.

Miss Davis, 26, is accused of buying guns used in the breakout attempt and was indicted for conspiracy as well as murder and kidnaping.

Most Wanted List

She disappeared after the shootout and was later placed on the FBI's Most Wanted List. A nationwide hunt ended when she was arrested with a male companion at a midtown motel here Oct. 13.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller signed extradition papers but they had been stayed while Miss Davis' lawyer made a series of appeals which reached the U.S. Supreme Court Monday.

Then Justice John Harlan declined to halt the extradition and the last stay granted by the U.S. District Court expired in the afternoon.

When Harlan's decision became known, two dozen young pickets gathered at the Women's House of Detention and held a protest demonstration against returning Miss Davis to California.

In San Rafael, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney told newsmen Monday that the sheriff's office will enforce strict security measures to insure the safety of Miss Davis and the security of the Marin County jail.

Blamed for Deaths of 781,000 Jews

Treblinka Commandant Convicted as Nazi Criminal

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP) — Franz Stangl, the SS commander of Hitler's Treblinka death camp in Poland, was convicted today of the murder of hundreds of thousands of Jews and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Stangl, now 62, who ran Treblinka in 1942-3, was arrested in Brazil in 1967. Simon Wiesenthal, director of the Vienna Jewish Documentation Center and the man who tracked down Adolf Eichmann, had placed Stangl third on the list of wanted Nazi war criminals after Eichmann's execution in Israel. The first two, Hitler's deputy Martin Bormann and Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller, still have not been accounted for.

781,000 Died

Treblinka, about 60 miles northeast of Warsaw, ranked just behind Auschwitz in the chain of extermination camps the Nazis set up in Poland. Polish authorities say 781,000 persons died in Treblinka between July 1942 and October 1943.

Stangl also commanded the Sobibor camp in Poland, but his activities there were not considered in the trial. He was accused of ordering the deaths of 400,000 Jews and other persons shipped to Treblinka from Poland, the Soviet Union, France, Belgium, Greece, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Austria and Germany.

He was captured after World War II but escaped and made his way through Italy and Syria to South America. When arrested he was employed at the Volkswagen factory in Sao Paulo and was living there under his own name.

Trial In Austria

The Brazilians agreed to extradite him only on condition that if a life sentence resulted at the trial, it would be commuted to a lesser sentence so he could also be tried in his native Austria.

During his seven-month trial, Stangl told the court he had only done his duty while in command at Treblinka. He complained during the trial of lack of sleep and high blood pressure.

A spokesman for the North Rhine-Westphalia Justice Ministry said the Brazilian condition would be met: the state's chief executive has the power to reduce Stangl's sentence anywhere from 5 to 50 years, paving the way for extradition to Austria. The spokesman said the executive would act only after receiving a commutation petition through official channels.

In Vienna, an Austrian Justice Ministry official said Austria would apply for extradition only after Stangl had served his German sentence.

Presumably, West German officials would ask for the commutation of the sentence.

What Will Legislators Do?

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles says he hoped Wisconsin lawmakers wouldn't get carried away with the Christmas spirit of giving today as they returned for a special session to act on 39 executive appointments.

Among the bills which legislators had said they might try to take up was a proposal to increase their own pensions, as much as 147 per cent under some circumstances.

The session was expected to last no more than two days, unless a group of disgruntled lawmakers succeeded in expanding deliberations of the body to include Knowles' vetoes of million of dollars in spending proposals.

Key Republicans predicted on the eve of the session that efforts would be made to recall the legislature for the purpose of attempting to override the GOP chief executive's votes.

Knowles announced last week he reluctantly reached a decision to recall the legislature because of the possibility it could turn into a costly, full-blown session.

Need Confirmation

Unless the Senate confirmed the Knowles appointees, Gov.-Elect J. Lucey would be able to fill the posts with Democrats when he assumes office Jan. 4.

Among the Knowles appointees up for confirmation by the Senate were Ody Fish, former GOP state chairman, to the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents.

Stephen Boyle, the governor's executive secretary, expressed Monday a belief that time was on Knowles' side in restricting the pre-holiday session's business because lawmakers' wives and children would want them home for Christmas.

"The governor would certainly hate for any legislators to miss Christmas with their families," Boyle said with a smile.

The governor's office had been queried since November about whether a special-session date had been selected. Knowles didn't announce the date until last week.

Vetoed Bills

Among the bills vetoed by Knowles after the 1969 legislature adjourned last January are the legislators' pension measure, an $8.3 million veterans trust fund proposal, and a $1.5 million pension plan for Milwaukee firemen and policemen.

"For the sake of the taxpayers, we should adjourn as quickly as possible and go home," Democratic Sen. Fred Risser said. He labeled the special session "unnecessary and expensive."

Also reported concerned by the possible overriding of vetoes was Lucey, who recently predicted the state may be faced with a $500 million revenue gap after he takes office unless spending proposals are cut back sharply.

Lucey was to resume budget hearings on rural problems in Eau Claire today.

State agency heads have requested $2 2 billion in proposals for the 1971-73 budget period, up about $600 million over current spending.

Boyle said he sensed a "growing reluctance" among lawmakers Monday for expanding the session's business to include vetoes.

Oppose Recall Efforts

Some Republican representatives, including James Sensenbrenner of Shorewood, James Azim of Muscoda and Kenneth Merkel of Brookfield, said they would oppose any recall effort.

Sensenbrenner said executive vetoes and other important public policy questions "should not be decided by a lame-duck legislature."

About 20 per cent of the lawmakers won't be around the legislature in January, either because they were defeated or did not seek re-election.

The Republican Assembly speaker, Harold Froehlich of Appleton, and GOP Sen. Reuben LaFave indicated legislators may wish to consider a number of the vetoed bills.

LaFave said he may balk at voting for the governor's nominees unless action is taken on a measure to set aside 35 per cent of liquor tax revenue for veteran's programs.

Chairmen Are Picked for 2 Committees

Hollander, Chilsen Appointed to Head Finance, Agriculture

MADISON (AP) — Sen. Walter Hollander, R-Rosendale, was renamed chairman Monday of the legislature's powerful Joint Finance Committee.

Hollander, 74, is a 14-year Senate veteran and has served on the committee since 1963.

In addition to Hollander, others named to the committee were Senate Republicans James Swan of Elkhorn, vice chairman; Nile Soik of Whitefish Bay and Jack Steinhilber of Oshkosh, and Democratic Sen. Henry Dorman of Racine.

Sen. Walter John Chilsen, R-Wausau, was named chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. He succeeds Sen. Walter Terry, R-Baraboo, who was defeated in the September primary.

The appointments were announced by GOP Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek, chairman of the Committee on Committees. Appointments are subject to approval by the full membership of the Senate.

Named to serve with Chilsen on the Agriculture Committee were Republican Sen.-elect Everett Bidwell of Portage, vice chairman; Sen. Clifford Krueger, R-Merrill, Sen.-elect Jerome Martin, D-Whitelaw, and Sen. Dale McKenna, D - Jefferson.

2 Oshkosh Crossings To be Closed

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Two railroad crossings in Oshkosh will be closed to pedestrian and vehicular traffic permanently, within the next six months.

The state Public Service Commission ruled recently that the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Co. may barricade grade crossings of its tracks at East Lincoln Avenue and East Tennessee Avenue.

The commission found that the two crossings are dangerous to human life because of obstructions to view train traffic, and the heavy volume of railroad use of the tracks. In reviewing the evidence, the commission also determined that other streets would not be overloaded if they must carry the traffic normally using Lincoln Avenue and Tennessee Avenue.

The order of the commission, permitting the barricading must be carried out within six months, or the railroad must reapply for permission to barricade the crossings.

Kimberly Delays Ice Rink Work

KIMBERLY — Flooding of ice rinks will be postponed until suitable weather insures proper freezing, according to Director of Public Works Patrick Flanagan

Areas scheduled for flooding include Roosevelt Park and the John Street playground area. The swimming lake at Sunset Point Park also will be used for skating. Ice on the lake is too thin for skating at present, said Flanagan, but a few days of cold weather could help the situation.

Supervision will be provided at rinks from 1 to 9 p m on days when there is no school.

Holiday Hours Listed At Appleton YMCA

The Appleton YMCA will be closed from 4 p m Thursday through Sunday for Christmas.

Activities will resume Monday but they will end again during the New Years weekend from 4 p.m Dec. 31 until Jan. 3.

Commission Hears Phone Firm's Request

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin Telephone Company's request for a $6.2 million annual rate increase was taken under advisement Monday by the Public Service Commission.

The proposed increases, which would apply to operator-handled calls and customer-dialed long distance calls during daytime hours, are opposed by the PSC staff, the cities of Milwaukee, Kenosha and Sheboygan, and the Madison Consumers League.

The PSC contended the company should not use increased wages and reduced growth in revenues per telephone as issues in asking for an increase in rates.

Wisconsin Telephone officials have declared the new rates are required because of a record construction program

Increases in payments to independent telephone companies for their part in handling long distance calls within Wisconsin also were cited.

The PSC is expected to rule on the rate increase in January.

Informal Cabinet Sessions Receive Unanimous Praise

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — With a chief advisor of Gov.-Elect Patrick J. Lucey listening intently, major state agency administrators told Gov. Warren P. Knowles Monday that the informal "cabinet" system of consultation between the executive and his principal lieutenants was one of the important contributions of the his administration.

Knowles was presiding at the last of his meetings with his operating cabinet when he asked its members to summarize their experiences and reactions and to express their views on the advisability of continuing the system under successor governors.

Without exception, the administrative chiefs asserted that they have found the mutual consultation with the constitutional executive a useful and helpful experiment and hoped that the system can be continued and refined and made more effective.

Gov. Knowles launched the informal cabinets, now numbering three, after the enactment of the basic state government reorganization act four years ago.

Attends Session

Attending the final session in the Knowles office by invitation was Norman Clapp, a veteran Wisconsin political figure who has been named as one Lucey's chief aides. Lucey said during his successful campaign for the governorship that he intended to extend the cabinet idea if elected. Several of the Knowles' men brought their ideas about the value of the cabinet plan in written form and gave Clapp copies for Lucey's perusal.

Wilbur Schmidt, chief of the huge state department of health and social services, appeared to summarize the reactions of his colleagues when he said the joint consultations with the governor have fruitfully reminded the heads of the major agencies of their interlocking interests which were sometimes overlooked when they functioned in isolation.

"This is a total government," he summarized. Other ranking department commanders, including G. H. Bakke of transportation, James Morgan of revenue and Donald Wilkinson of agriculture, agreed.

They said they had learned that the services of other agencies can be useful in their own programs. Morgan suggested that the state department of justice, headed by Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, should be included in the cabinet conferences in the future.

Knowles observed that he had read a recent Post-Crescent Madison Bureau dispatch outlining the progress of the cabinet idea, and asked reporters at his final session for their observations. Without exception they approved it and added that the accessibility of the sessions to capital correspondents has been a contribution to public understanding of state government functions and problems.

Like Mother, Like Daughter

This Christmas Comes Wrapped in Tradition

Christmas 1970 heralds the return of the romantic tradition in gift wraps. For this season, at least, the psychedelic colors and pop art of recent years have retired in favor of a softer approach.

"Trends in Christmas wrap designs are often a reflection of public sentiment," says Mrs. Peggy Gilbert, head of the Norcross Design Studio. "The new designs may represent a wish for simplicity and a return to basic values."

Music Favorite Theme

Music is a favorite subject, in keeping with the romantic theme. On one wrap, Elizabeth instruments are twined with garlands on a gold-washed background. For the nursery set, a cherub orchestra gambols on a pink-green, Tyrolean-inspired print.

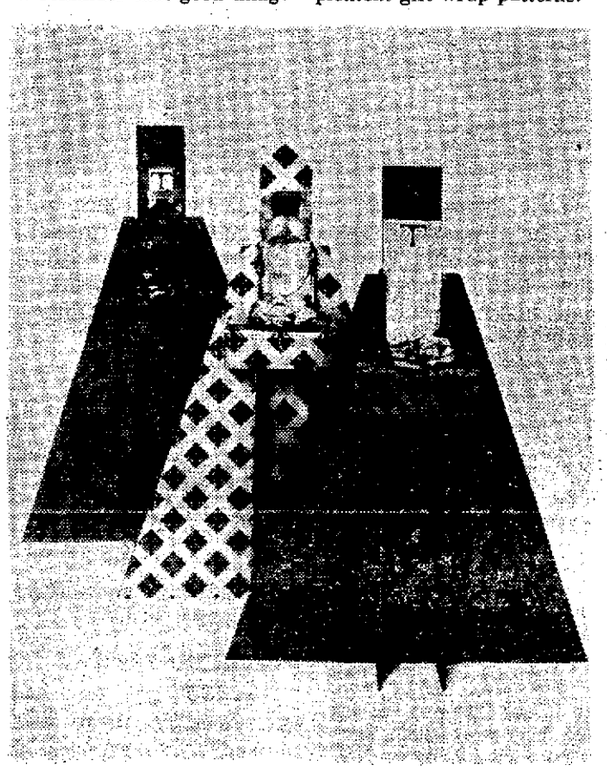
Snowy winter landscapes are popular and include skaters, Dickens Christmas carollers, horse-drawn carriages and a country village in vivid pastels. The last pattern has a matching, die-cut gift tag with cut-outs along the roof tops.

Santas abound in appealing juvenile wraps and, unexpectedly, on a sophisticated lettering design with a tailored, masculine quality. Other patterns suitable for men's gifts are an all-over necktie design, a regimental stripe in blue, green and gold, and a rustic pine cone print in brown, red and gold.

A reminder that good things come in small packages in an imaginative series of miniature gift wrap patterns, ideal in scale for wrapping gifts of jewelry and other small treasures. Among these wraps is a Baroque scroll design in green and gold on red.

Especially appropriate for covering decorative boxes that will be saved for future use are luxurious velvet-flocked wraps. These are offered in classic medallions, damasks and scroll designs. To accomplish this purpose, wrap the lid and the bottom of a box separately so the top can be removed without tearing the paper.

Printed and striped foils are color co-ordinated with solid foils, available in both polished and textured papers. Further color co-ordination is provided via tissues, yarns and ribbons designed to complement gift wrap patterns.



"We Three Kings" is a stately trio for mantel or buffet, to make at home from velvet-flocked gift wraps in red, gold and blue.

Christmas Tree Fires Can Be Prevented With Care

Plan now for a safe holiday by taking preventive measures so that you won't have a home destroyed or a holiday saddened through Christmas tree fires, says Mrs. Shirley Watson, Extension Home Economist for Winnebago County.

Danger exists with both natural and artificial trees and consumers should be aware of the potential danger for some home fires occur in northeastern Wisconsin during the holiday each year.

Some causes of the Christmas fires have been sparks from a fireplace, cigarette sparks in contact with gift wrappings and faulty wiring of Christmas tree lights.

Natural trees should be kept in water when inside the home or covered with plastic and stored in a cool humid garage until it is erected in the home. In most cases a freshly cut tree which is kept in water will retain high-moisture control of the branches and needles which serves to prevent easy combustion.

An artificial tree may not support combustion either but may give off noxious gases when a flame touches it. When purchasing an artificial tree, read the label as to whether it will or will not support combustion and whether gases that it emits in the presence of flame might be just as dangerous to your family should accident occur when all are in bed.

Those with natural trees are encouraged to check frequently that the tree still has water in the base. It is not unusual for a fresh tree to absorb a quart or more of water per day.

When locating the tree in the home, keep in mind that fireplaces, hot - air registers and other sources of heat serve to dry out the tree more quickly and increase the hazards of potential fire.

She Wants to Know Before Saturday

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 14-year-old girl who needs an answer right away. Please hurry because I have a date with this guy Saturday night. Is it true that heavy petting leads to breast cancer? Like I said, please hurry. — Terri H., Hurley, N. M.

Landers

Dear Terri: Heavy petting does not lead to breast cancer but it can lead to other things. Cool it, Kiddo.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You're probably sick and tired of letters about that psychology professor who claims sex in marriage is not important. I'm enclosing a clipping from a news story out of London that should settle the controversy.

Two British scientists wrote in their book "Sixty Plus" that it is a grave mistake to allow their sexual love making to die away as couples get older. "If they continue to enjoy sex as long as they live," wrote the scientists, "they will be happier, more relaxed and healthier."

One of the authors, Dr. John Maddison is the founder of The Clinic for Preventive Medicine at Teddington. He wrote, "The wise men of India and China believed that regular sex activity was the key to eternal youth." Dr. Maddison went on to prove his thesis by citing laboratory studies which showed that regularly mated rats remained in far better health than rats who were isolated from the opposite sex. Extensive interviews with patients revealed that married couples lost the ability to function sexually when they abstained for reasons of separation, illness or the notion that sex might be injurious to their health. So chalk one up for the old motto, "Use it or lose it."

I hope you'll print this, Ann. It might encourage some of the old gaffers who write to you. — Still Enjoying It at 76 in Kitchener, Ont.

Dear Kitch: The old gaffers who write to me don't need encouragement. It's their wives who are writing to me — and this is what they're writing about. Thanks for your letter. I'm with those scientists from O'd Blighty.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wrote to you last month saying I thought my 16-year-old daughter was getting too friendly with a girl I was sure was a lesbian. You said unless I had more than a hunch to forget it because it is not unnatural for girls to be chummy at this age.

I have now in my possession letters from the other girl to my daughter which leave no room for doubt.

Should I confront my daughter with the evidence? Should I have a talk with the girl's parents? Would therapy help my daughter? She seems happy and perfectly normal in every way. To look at her you'd never suspect a thing. Please advise at once. — Texas Tenterhooks

Dear T. T.: Do not contact the girl's parents. It would serve no useful purpose and it might create serious trouble between you and your daughter.

You should, however, let her know you are aware of the relationship and that you are willing to provide her with professional help if she wants it. Show no anger or disgust and don't try to break up her friendship with the girl. It won't work. Moreover, it might build a wall which later might prove insurmountable.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents . . . if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

World Champions

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

It isn't often that members of The Aces want to spend an evening playing social bridge. For the bachelors, a pretty girl is one of the few inducements that has a chance for success.

Obviously that's how Ace Bobby Goldman was lured into a game with one of my secretaries, Miss Lynda Chalk. Their opponents were Lynda's sister, Miss Elaine Chalk, and one of Elaine's friends, Dick Bruther.

Bobby was resigned to an uninspiring evening when today's hand was dealt. It served to quickly change his outlook.

Opening lead: King of spades.

Bobby's views are that bridge is a bidder's game. Each of the players was obviously convinced of this, since none was timid during the auction. The final contract however, was certainly a reasonable venture.

Bobby made the advanced lead of the spade king. The lead, though unusual, could hardly lose since East certainly must hold the spade queen if not the ace. The lead wins whenever it is mandatory for Bobby to be on lead at trick two.

When the spade king held the trick, Bobby wisely shifted to a trump to prevent a diamond ruff. Elzine won the trump lead and rattled off four more trumps to produce this position.

Lynda (East) had been forced to part with two of her diamonds because she couldn't blank the ace of spades, since Elaine would ruff a spade to establish dummy's queen. It would be fatal to discard a club (Elaine would establish the club suit by playing the ace and ruffing a club).

Elaine was now ready for a very advanced and rare play, a transfer squeeze. Elaine led a club to dummy's ace and played the queen of spades. East covered with the ace and South ruffed.

This placed Bobby in the unenviable position of having to guard both the spade suit and the diamond suit. Two more rounds of trumps finished Bobby, and he either had to discard his jack of spades, establishing dummy's 10, or unguard the queen of diamonds, establishing Elaine's third diamond.

After suffering through the defense of today's hand, Bobby thought, "Social bridge sure has changed. I don't even know the proper name of this squeeze. Here-after I will call it 'Elaine's squeeze'."

Researchers to Study Safety Of Detergents

Recent publicity has been appearing concerning the safety of enzyme detergents. During a meeting of the chairman's office of the Federal Trade Commission, the Food and Drug Administration, the President's Committee on Consumer Interests and representatives of the soap and detergent industry, it was agreed that the following steps would be taken in a review of enzyme safety:

1) To request the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council to conduct a comprehensive review of test data and other information regarding the safety of enzyme laundry products.

2) The agencies involved and the industry will promptly study the protocol now being developed by the American Academy of Allergy, with a view of its use in its enzyme research program.

E. S. Pattison, president of The Soap and Detergent Association, made the following comments on this action:

"We have offered our cooperation to the government agencies in making available the extensive test data which our industry has done on enzyme safety. Detergent manufacturers have extensive evidence of enzyme safety in our products. It is our belief that our test results will be corroborated by this independent review by the National Academy of Sciences."

"The American Academy of Allergy is also being asked to prepare a testing protocol covering investigations of possible allergic effects. This industry already has done extensive work of this sort and will be glad to cooperate with the development of their protocol."

"We believe that the work of both research groups will produce an independent, impartial confirmation of the industry's own research that enzyme detergents are as safe for consumer use as are non-enzyme products."

West Students Entertain at Dessert Buffet

The Early American Room at Appleton High School-West was trimmed in holiday finery when the food service co-op students greeted members of the faculty Thursday afternoon at a holiday dessert buffet. Under the direction of Miss Claire Borer, the co-ed class had prepared cookies, candies and breads that have become traditional to this season. Some of the recipes that were used were new; others were students' favorites.

Adding to the festive look were centerpieces and wall trims — the work of students in Miss Judy Denore's housing and related arts class.

As the fire burned brightly in the fireplace, those that gathered for the event chose samples from the array to enjoy as they lingered over coffee and punch.

Although this was primarily a learning experience, it was a lovely way to begin the season.

Rev. Miss Barbara Andrews, confined to a wheelchair because of cerebral palsy, is ordained as a minister in the American Lutheran Church Sunday in Minneapolis. She is the first woman minister in the Lutheran Church. (AP Wirephoto)

Cerebral Palsy Victim Wheels to Altar For Ordination to Ministry and a First

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "I need your help," the Rev. Miss Barbara Andrews told her congregation from a wheel chair after her ordination as the first woman minister in the American Lutheran Church.

The Rev. Miss Andrews, a victim of cerebral palsy, became assistant pastor of the Edina Community Lutheran Church Sunday.

The Rev. James A. Siefkas, who gave the ordination sermon, said the decision of the 2.5 million-member American Lutheran Church in October to ordain women represents "a great big yes to one-half of the human race."

The Rev. Mr. Siefkas, a friend of the 35-year-old Rev. Miss Andrews, said that "wheeling through the door to the ordained ministry, she has ripped it off its hinges."

The Rev. Miss Andrews is the first American Lutheran woman to be ordained for a parish ministry. The Lutheran Church in America, largest Lutheran body in the nation, ordained a Maryland woman a month ago for a campus ministry.

The Rev. Miss Andrews sat in her wheel chair at the head of the congregation through most of the ceremony. The tiny church, which has a membership of some 130 families, was packed and an overflow audience watched on closed-circuit television in another room.

"I am prepared to renounce my vows of ordination," the Rev. Miss Andrews told her parishioners, "unless you are willing to help me. If you take my ministry seriously, you must affirm your own."

The new minister, whose father died several years ago, said her mother, Mrs. Lee W. Andrews of Minneapolis, deserved special thanks for making the ordination possible.

"She has taken the risks in letting me do my own thing, despite great fear and frustration. For that, I am extremely grateful. It took someone just a little bit extra special to be a parent of Barbara Andrews."

Mrs. Andrews, sitting in the front row of the congregation, smiled and blew her daughter a kiss.

The Rev. Miss Andrews presided over the celebration of Holy Communion as her first official function. Smiling, she asked the congregation to "help me not spill the wine."

The service ended as it had begun, with guitar music from a bearded young man in a wildly flowered shirt.

Cheerleader Catches Talent Scout's Eye

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Terri Buck, pretty cheerleader for the University of Notre Dame, appeared before a television audience of 52 million people when the Irish played Southern California in football Nov. 28.

Now the 19-year-old brunette junior at St. Mary's College, adjacent to the all-male Notre Dame, may be headed for a television career.

Terri became a charter member of the Notre Dame cheerleaders when she joined three other St. Mary's girls last year.

During the Irish-Southern Cal game, a scout for Screen Gems in Chicago, saw the bounding cheerleader, called her and arranged a screen test.

Terri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Buck of Richfield, Conn., said she was "shocked, really surprised" when she got the offer for the Chicago test.

"I didn't tell too many people. I didn't want anybody to think I was acting like a little movie star," she said.

Her father, a Pan American pilot flying out of New York, told her to "watch herself," Terri said, adding that her mother was very excited about the possibility of a television career for her daughter.

Terri said she wasn't told when to expect word on the results of her test.

"If they would like me to model that's fine, but I am trying not to get my hopes to high."

A Public Apology to Tim Conway Et Al

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Tim Conway said good-bye to his television audience the other week and in summing up the cancellation of his show said, "I have to blame someone, so I'll blame my announcer."

I cannot sit by and watch his announcer take the rap for something I caused. I am responsible for the Tim Conway Show being cancelled. I loved it.

I also loved Don Rickles, the Edsel, the Saturday Evening Post, Steve Allen, the Odd Couple and Walter Hickel. Face it, Tim baby, I'm no good for you. I could make a loser out of "Bonanza."

Some people have an affinity for tornados, bankruptcy and 13-week runs. I am one of them. One day I was having lunch with the general manager of a local TV station. Hoping to make possible Brownie points with my favorite show I said, "I love 'My World and Welcome to It.' To me, it is one of the really inventive, genuinely funny bits of humor to hit the TV screen in a long time."

"We're cancelling it in two weeks," he said.

How could you?" I gasped. "I just told you about it. Don't you have to check with somebody?"

"It just isn't pulling it in the ratings," he said, dabbing with his napkin.

I sat there sullen. Not only had I put the hex on a perfectly beautiful show, I ruined a perfectly beautiful free lunch for myself.

With the theater it was even worse. Several years ago, my husband and I went to New York to see an opening of a new musical called "Superman." We fell out of our seats laughing. I think they turned the lights off and sent the band home before we got out of the theater.

"What's with us?" I asked my husband. "Are we weird?"

"We are just poor judges of public taste," he shrugged.

Why do you say that?"

"Wasn't it you who said Jacqueline Kennedy didn't need money . . . just understanding, and doesn't our car at this moment have three loser bumper stickers on it?"

"It's really awesome," I said, "having all this power over what is to succeed and what is to fail."

"Any regrets?" he asked.

"Only one. Why didn't I start to watch 'Let's Make a Deal' three years ago."

Give Your Child Gift of Good Home

No one knows by what process a child selects the memories he will cherish for a lifetime. Often the best memories of childhood include grownups, says Jane Buchholtz, family living specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Because Christmas is a family centered holiday, it's a good time to create cherished memories for children. The things you "always do" and family rituals strengthen ties and build pride in "who you are."

Gift Suggestion

At Christmas you can spend time with children to develop associations with grownups so they will value and feel a part of the adult world. It's important for children to learn to relate to adults as well as their peers.

Perhaps one of the best Christmas gifts you can give your child is a good home. A good home is not a separate island. It's a part of a community and as such is involved with and cares about people.

Parents are often uncertain of how to be good parents. There is no magic formula for raising children, however there can be little success in rearing children unless you understand their needs. One of the best ways to do this is to involve yourself in community programs to keep abreast of the times. Being aware of the problems they must face can help keep the lines of communication open between you and your children.

Communication Blocked

Creating a warm, accepting atmosphere in which children can risk open communication with their parent is often difficult for parents to do. Because they want to help and steer the child, parents often block essential communication. They think they must command, threaten, moralize, argue, criticize, psychoanalyze or cross examine their children. Thus they may seldom really hear the child and know what he feels.

At Christmas time feelings of all sorts are intensified. When everyone is busy and in a hurry conflicts often result. It's easy to hurt those you care about the most. To avoid conflicts, create a little calm around your house during this holiday season. Evaluate what you consider important and eliminate the rest.

Fifty Years of Marriage will be observed Dec. 23 by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hidde, 1524 Division St., New London. Family and friends will honor the couple Dec. 27. Mr. and Mrs. Hidde have nine children, 28 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Marriage Announced

Miss Barbara Korth and Frank W. Calmes repeated nuptial vows in a 3:30 p.m. ceremony Saturday at St. Matthew Lutheran Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Korth, 1729 W. Franklin St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Calmes, 1304 E. Northland Ave.

Attending as maid of honor for her sister was Miss Brenda Korth. Mrs. Gary Jenkel, Miss Elizabeth Wieck and Miss Patricia Calmes were bridesmaids. Junior attendant was Miss Sharon Calmes. Rebecca Koeller was flower girl.

Michael Calmes was best man for his brother. Gary Jenkel, Roger Watters and Tom Nieling were groomsmen. Sharing ushering duties were Randy Koehler and Dan Jenkel. Robert Korth acted as junior attendant.

The couple greeted guests at the Country Aire Club.

Coming Unraveled?

Threads may unravel after washing and drying clothes. Keep a pair of scissors handy wherever you fold or iron freshly - laundered garments. It's a good time to cut hanging threads rather than having to do it when you are dressing.

Wash Hair Often

Acne patients should not only wash their faces often but should shampoo frequently. How oily the hair is, dictates how often to shampoo. It is also generally helpful to choose an off-the-face hair style.

State Faces Muddle Over Age 18 Vote

MILWAUKEE (AP)— A U.S. Supreme Court decision which reduces the voting age minimum to 18 in federal elections has confronted Wisconsin with the likelihood that it will have to tangle with dual ballots in 1972.

One ballot would serve presidential and congressional elections in accord with Monday's ruling. State and local elections would require separate balloting in the absence of a Wisconsin age minimum of 18.

Legislators pondering the multifarious headache suggested there would even have to be three basic ballots as well as dual voter registration lists and a thorough legislative review of voter residency requirements.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles said the ruling will "greatly complicate our situation in Wisconsin." He urged legislators to take steps "at the earliest possible moment" to bring the state's voting age requirements in line with the new federal limit.

Members of the Assembly Elections Committee said November, 1972, seems to be the earliest because any voting age change is going to require voter approval in a referendum.

The state Constitution, which specifies a Wisconsin voting age minimum of 21, authorizes an age-changing franchise referendum only during a general election. An amendment would need approval in one legislative session prior to the referendum.

Special Session

Of course the legislature happens to be in special session this week. Were it to use the occasion to recall the adjourned 1969 regular session, it might initiate an amendment.

A referendum might be set up for the election in November, 1972.

Rep. Frederick Kessler of Milwaukee, senior Democrat on the Elections Committee and a front-runner for selection as the committee's chairman next year, said this Supreme Court ruling raises a particularly bothersome question concerning the 1972 presidential preference primary.

Ruling Needed

Kessler said he suspects there may have to be an attorney general's ruling on whether the primary is a federal or state election. It could require a court ruling as to whether Wisconsin voters less than 21 can vote in the primary, he said.

There are estimates that Wisconsin has 200,000 residents between the ages of 18 and 21.

Some politicians have shown concern that a lowered voting age automatically creates new voting blocs in college towns. Temporary resident enrollments, outnumbering permanent residents in some cases, could seriously influence the outcome of municipal issues with which they aren't really familiar.

Cities Listed

Kessler listed River Falls, Whitewater and Platteville as college towns whose university enrollments might outweigh non-student populations.

Office of Surveyor May be Eliminated

Acting Counsel A. W. Ponath Issues Ruling

BY DON CASTONIA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A formal opinion has been issued that the office of county surveyor can be abolished by county board resolution.

The opinion was issued by acting Outagamie County Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath based on past court decisions and two opinions of the state attorney general's office.

Ponath had been requested by the county to issue an opinion on the county's responsibility under the county surveyor law enacted by the 1969 legislature.

Ponath submitted a proposed resolution with his opinion which, if passed, would declare the office vacant.

County Administrator Alvin Woehler said the resolution, along with the opinion, would be submitted to the county board's Executive Committee.

"Messed Up"

Ponath, in his opinion, said "It is my opinion that this (surveyor law) is so badly messed up that everything should be done at the next session of the legislature to appeal the law."

Under the surveyor law, the county was given the option of electing or appointing a registered land surveyor. The law also spelled out that the surveyor had to replace at least 5 per cent of the section markers each year. There are approximately 4,000 sections markers in the county.

At the same time the law specified a minimum salary of $1,500 for the surveyor. Questions were then raised as to whether the $1,500 was the total financial liability of the county or if that only covered office expenses.

Resurveying section markers normally requires a three-man team and the Surveyor's Association calls for a daily rate of $192 for a survey team.

Hebert Elected

James Hebert, Appleton, was elected surveyor in November as an independent after neither party put up a candidate. The office previously had been vacant for more than two years when the last surveyor, Frank Charlesworth, resigned to become County Coordinator of Public Services.

Ponath cited an Iron County Circuit Court decision in July in which Judge Lewis Charles denied a writ seeking to force the Iron County Clerk to put the surveyor's office on the ballot.

Judge Charles rulled the county surveyor was not a constitutional office and that it could be abolished by the county. Previous court cases were cited by Judge Charles where it was ruled the surveyor was not a major county officer.

The position was also compared to that of County Superintendent of Schools which had been abolished.

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren also ruled the county surveyor was not protected by the state constitution.

Rent Vetoed

In another opinion, Ponath ruled the county cannot charge rent for state or federal offices located in the courthouse which are providing a service used in the county.

This opinion had been sought by the board's Public Property Committee to determine whether revenue could be obtained from offices such as the Soil Conservation Service and University Extension services.

Ponath said the county was obligated to provide office space for services being performed in the county. If the office was headquarters for regional services, Ponath said, then rent could be charged for that portion of the space.

CCHE Expecting Enrollment Dip In State Schools

Figures to Rise, But at Lower Rate Than Anticipated

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Enrollments at Oshkosh State University and the four campuses of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, as well as other schools in the two systems, will continue to grow, but at a slower pace in 1971.

The Coordinating Council for Higher Education has revised its enrollment projections for all state schools for the next two years, expecting the slowdown to continue through 1972 at all but the UWGB campuses. These are predicted to spurt ahead again in that year, while other schools are not expected to pick up until 1973.

The UWGB Fox Valley campus at Menasha actually is expected to lose students in 1971 before increasing its enrollment slightly the following year.

The CCHE based its reductions on the experience last fall when enrollments did not climb as fast as in the past. Most campuses experience lower enrollments in the fall of 1970 than expected, largely because of a decline in out-of-state students that resulted from increased fees.

The Green Bay complex, although falling 5.2 per cent short of enroll ment projections with a total of 4,171 students on all four campuses attracted 22 per cent or 752 more students than the previous year. Unlike other campuses, its out-of-state enrollment alos was up from 74 to 94 or 28 per cent.

Dip Expected

The fall, 1971, enrollment projection is now 4,889 for all four campuses, down from a projection released a year ago of 5,125 for the same term. The 1972-1973 school year, however, will show a projected enrollment of 5,950, an increased estimate, up from 5,704 announced earlier.

Enrollment trends on the four campuses that will make up the total UWGB figure will vary significantly.

The CCHE projects the main increases at Green Bay where the number of students is expected to increase from 2,950 this year to 3,686 in 1971 and 4,411 in 1972. The Marinette and Manitowoc campuses are projected to have enrollments identical to the 1970 enrollment next fall and a slight increase in 1972.

The Fox Valley campus that had 545 students in September is expected to attract only 527 in 1971 and then 567 in 1972.

Oshkosh Hurt

While the total enrollment at Oshkosh was up, that campus was among the most severely hurt by the decline in out-of-

Valley Coroners Dislike Making Blood Tests Public

BY BILL KNUTSEN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Three Fox Valley coroners are unhappy about the prospect of having to make public the results of blood-alcohol tests made on persons whose deaths they investigate.

Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren held Monday, in an opinion given the Iowa County district attorney's office, that under state law the records of blood tests made by coroners are no longer considered confidential information.

Warren's opinion somewhat contradicts that of his predecessor, Bronson C. LaFollette, who had denied public access to the test results on grounds that the legislative intent was to protect the individual record so that it could not be used for statistical purposes.

Warren said: "While that may have been the intention of the legislature, it is my opinion that this statute imposes the cloak of confidentiality only on the records of the Division of Health."

New State Law

Under a recently enacted state law, blood alcohol tests must be done on persons killed in traffic accidents. Some Wisconsin coroners had voluntarily conducted the tests long before the law was passed.

The blood samples are sent to the Division of Health's accredited laboratory at Madison for analysis.

Most coroners, while refusing to make the results of their tests known to the general public, have passed them on to official agencies, such as law enforcement, and to attorneys and insurance companies that figured in the particular cases.

Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said he has released the blood-alcohol test results "on a limited basis."

He has refrained from publicly releasing the results "to save relatives of the victim and innocent parties from embarrassment."

The tests, Kemps said, "protect the innocent and help place the blame where it belongs."

Tests during the past two years in Wisconsin have shown

900 Find Themselves Powerless

About 900 Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. customers in the E. South River Street area were without power for about 40 minutes today when a crane knocked down two lines.

Wisconsin Michigan officials said that most of the customers were residential but a few were commercial and industrial, including the Telulah Mill of Fox River Paper Corp. Telulah's power was expected to be restored by 12:30 p.m. today.

The power went out at 10:49 a.m. and power company workmen went immediately to repair the damage. Most power was restored by 11:30 a.m.

The power company reported no serious problems but said the outage had caused inconvenience. The crane was operating on Railroad Street near Oneida Street.

$75 Taken By Robber From Clerk

Little Chute Firm Loses Money to Man With Object Like Gun

LITTLE CHUTE — A young man, armed with an object resembling a gun, held up Boots Radio and TV Service, 130 W. Main St., Monday night and fled with $75 from a cash register.

According to Little Chute police, the owner, Joe Boots, and a sales clerk, were downstairs working on electronic equipment when a buzzer signaling the opening of the front door went off about 9 p.m. The sales clerk went upstairs and noticed a man wearing a blue ski mask over his face stooped over near a desk on the service floor.

He straightened up and she noticed an object resembling a pistol in his hand.

"I want your money and I'm not kidding," the man reportedly told her. She gave him $75 from a cash register. The stranger fled through a back door.

Boots was able to offer a partial description to authorities. The man was described as slim, about 5' 6" or 5' 7", and wearing a black nylon jacket. The ski mask had red ravelings.

Boots said this morning that a complete inventory would be taken to determine the exact loss. Police said they had no leads, but investigation is continuing. It is not known what method of travel the robber used when he left the store.

Acting Judge to Continue Duties In County Court

Acting Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller has received orders from Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows assigning him to continue work in County Court Branch 2 for the next six months beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Keller was hired out of retirement about the middle of this year to assist with a staggering caseload in criminal court (Branch 2.) Those assignments, each for three months, were made after a study by State Court Administrator Edwin Wilke.

Keller will be retained to hear cases because of what Hallows termed a "congestion of litigation" with criminal cases in Outagamie County. The latest assignment runs to June 30, 1971. The condition of the work load will be reviewed at that time, according to Keller, pending further state recommendations.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer presently serves the county as its criminal court justice.

The chief told the Public Safety Committee Monday that he favors continuing to allow the practice, under the watchful eye of the department's traffic supervisors.

If problems develop at specific intersections, the chief intends to ask to have no-left-turn signs posted again at the trouble spots.

He told the committee, "It hasn't been too bad, but when you get a lot of traffic downtown it presents a little problem."

The signs were taken down last summer on City Council orders when Washington Street and Superior Street were closed for reconstruction.

With Washington Street, the chief traffic carrier for one-way westbound traffic, closed, allowing turns on the avenue was necessary to avoid serious complications.

Wolff reported that despite the current rush of pre-Christmas traffic, "We haven't really experienced any problems of any significance," despite an occasional backup of vehicles behind one making a left turn.

The committee left the matter in the chief's hands, without taking action.

Grand Chute Starts Sanitary Landfill

BY PETER BACH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Town of Grand Chute has complied with a state order halting the burning of refuse at its dump, and commenced sanitary landfill operations which are well under way.

Clerk Lester Woldt said this morning that contrary to what previously was thought, the dump has not been shut down and is open during its regular hours.

Ira Livingston, town chairman, received orders from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) late Friday afternoon by registered mail, ordering the immediate stoppage of open burning at the site.

He sent a return letter to Thomas G. Frangos, Administrator in the Division of Environmental Protection, the same day, informing DNR that actions had been begun already Thursday to operate a sanitary landfill at the present site.

Thursday afternoon, the town summoned a tractor and driver from the Outagamie County Highway Department to begin digging a trench on the east end of the existing dump property. Grand Chute presently is using the 200 foot trench for burial of its waste products. A private contractor from Kaukauna, using heavy equipment, is compacting and covering the refuse in the trench daily, according to town supervisor Ed Ziegler.

DNR had ordered the stoppage on July 1 of open burning at the Grand Chute dump and all others throughout the state. Livingston said late last week the town was guilty of not immediately complying with those provisions.

Wisconsin Faces Ballot Troubles would be confronted by a University of Wisconsin voting bloc of possibly 30,000 votes and more.

State Rep. James Sensenbrenner Jr., currently the Republican chairman of the Assembly Elections Committee, agreed the Supreme Court ruling produces "an administrative monstrosity."

Unless the state voting age is altered, he said, there will have to be a ballot for those "who will be able to vote for all offices, and another for those 18-20 who will only be able to vote in presidential and congressional elections."

Both Sensenbrenner and Kessler said they are ready to sponsor the necessary legislation.

Alternate Possible

Kessler said the state Constitution allows the legislature to extend the franchise to 18-year-olds without a constitutional amendment, but acknowledged that too might have to be settled in court.

In any case, the ultimate age change would still be subject to a general election referendum.

Kessler sees the problem expanding into something more confusing than just dual ballots.

State law, he said, calls for two ballots in a national election already. One is for the presidential race, the other for remaining offices

"We will now be compelled to print a third ballot, only containing the name of the congressman, to be given only to the new enfranchised voters," he said.

"The Wisconsin voter will be so confused by the many ballots that will be given to him that he may give up in disgust," Kessler said.

The ruling seems also to mean there will have to be separate voter registration lists and separate registration procedures.

Of the "multiple problems, the most serious," Kessler said, "will be the maintenance of dual voter lists"

Machine May Help

Leo Fahey, state elections supervisor, said cities with voting machines may be able to get along by setting aside a special bank of machines to handle voters less than 21.

The creation of under-21 voting blocs in college towns, Kessler said, is going to mean that any legislation will have to deal thoroughly with voter residency requirements.

CCHE Expecting Enrollment Dip In State Schools

state students. The number of non-Wisconsin students dropped from 300 last year to 107 this year, a decline of 64.3 per cent.

The enrollment of graduate students, however, increased significantly, going from 718 in 1969 to 1,037 in 1970, an increase of 44.4 per cent.

The CCHE has cut its expectations for the Oshkosh undergraduate enrollment from 11,060 for 1971 to 10,645 and from 11,555 for 1972 to 10,755, a reduction of about 400 new students in 1971 and a reduction of 800 in 1972.

The local campus reductions in enrollment projections are part of a systemwide revision of estimates for both the UW and WSU campuses The CCHE reports that the average reduction in UW projections for 1971 is 2 2 per cent and for 1972, one per cent The WSU projections were cut by 4.7 per cent for 1971 and by 6 8 per cent for 1972.

Figures Computed

The systemwide figures are based on full-time equivalents which is a method of computing the budget and facility needs of schools determined by dividing the number of students into the total number of credit hours all students are registered for taking

These figures do not represent the actual number of persons who will be enrolled, but the two figures normally increase and decrease together as both full and part-time students increase or decrease with trends in enrollment.

By head count, the CCHE expects the University of Wisconsin system to have a total of 71,874 students in the fall of 1971 and 74,874 in the fall of 1972 The current enrollment on all UW campuses is 67,874

The WSU enrollment projections for all campuses are 66,595 for 1971 and 69,065 for 1972. Present enrollment is 64,214 students.

The new CCHE projections indicate that the Madison campus will not again reach its all-time high enrollment of 1969 until after 1972. The 1970 enrollment of 34,388 was down from the previous year and the projections for 1971 are 34,883 and for 1972, 35,313, more than 200 students less than the 35,549 maximum in 1969

In its new report, the council staff says that although short-term enrollment projections must be changed, the long-term, 10 year projections made at the time of the previous projections need not be revised at this time The new estimates actually were prepared by the administration on each campus, as the CCHE has found the campuses better able to forecast the short-range changes than the central CCHE staff

Further revisions in projections are expected after the fall, 1971, enrollment has been tabulated and compared against projections

Point Beach Nuclear Plant Now Operating

First of Two Units Put Into Service At Two Creeks Site

TWO CREEKS — Unit 1 at the Point Beach Nuclear Plant in the Town of Two Creeks was placed in commercial operation Monday, substantially strengthening area power reserves.

The announcement was made by Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. (WMPCO) and Wisconsin Electric Power Co., Milwaukee, joint owners of the plant on the shore of Lake Michigan eight miles north of Two Rivers.

"Operation of the nuclear plant brings the two companies' generating reserves to about 24 per cent," J. K. Babbitt, vice president and general manager, said "The total system capability has increased from 2,740,900 kilowatts to 3,208,200 kilowatts."

Point Beach is the 19th operating nuclear power plant in the United States. Unit 2 at Point Beach is scheduled for service next fall. Unit 1 is the largest single generating unit in Wisconsin, with a total capacity of 497,000 kilowatts.

"During startup and testing in recent weeks, the unit has been up to levels as high as 450,000 kilowatts," Babbitt said. "During that period the unit has produced a total of 177,250,000 kilowatt-hours."

Power from Unit 1 will provide approximately 17 per cent of the total generating capability of the two companies.

Started Nov. 2

The self-sustained fission process inside the reactor was started Nov. 2, less than a month after the Atomic Energy Commission issued an operating license for the plant on Oct. 5. Babbitt said since that time the reactor portion of Unit 1 has performed very well.

"Most of the adjustments during the testing period involved the operation of the turbine-generator, part of the conventional portion of the plant" He added that these procedures are normal and that no major setbacks were encountered.

Babbitt said that nuclear power provides a new fuel source "highly compatible with the environment. Only six pounds of nuclear fuel is required to provide the energy contained in 9,000 tons of coal."

Most of the power in the combined electric systems of the two companies has been generated at coal-burning plants in the southeastern part of the state. However, two smaller Milwaukee-area plants have been converted to natural gas and oil. In addition, WMPCO operates 13 hydroelectric plants in northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

Construction of Point Beach began in November, 1966. Babbitt noted. The unit became commercially operational five years after the primary contract was signed, and four years, one month after groundbreaking"

The total cost for both units, including nuclear fuel, will be approximately $193 million.

Religious Vocation Brings Indian Couple to Wisconsin

BY MAIJA PENIKIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The search for people with common principles of faith can be a very long and cold journey.

For the T. Paul Mitras, that search has taken them thousands of miles from the warmth of their native land to a city blanketed with snow and wrapped in cold.

The couple, both from Madras, India, is spending December in Appleton with the Rev. M. A. Schroeder, pastor of Mt. Olive Lutheran Church, and his family.

Mitra, an evangelist, is studying for the Lutheran ministry and is here to learn the pastoral duties from Schroeder, who also is chairman of the South East Asian Missions for the Wisconsin Synod.

Mrs. Mitra, a doctor, has accompanied her husband on this journey and will meet with the relief committee of the synod to discuss establishment of hospitals for her people.

Both will go to Mequon in January where Mitra will receive private tutoring at the seminary. He expects to be ordained in spring.

Looking out the window on Appletons snow-covered acknowledged with a grin, "That seems so far away at the moment."

But far as it seems, it is only the last lap of a search which began more than 25 years ago.

Mitra, the son and grandson of Lutherans, received a bachelor of arts degree in 1944 from Madras Christian College. Although he wanted to go into the ministry, circumstances prevented it and he took a job as an auditor for the government.

Unable to forget his desire to become a minister, he simultaneously became involved in evangelical work, which he has kept up for the quarter of a century.

In the latter part of the 1950's, he left his native India to attend a theological school in Scotland but found himself unable to adopt the principles of the teachers, and left.

The next four years he spent preaching in England and Europe and he returned to India in 1960.

Three years ago he came in contact with the teachings of the Wisconsin Synod and knew that this was what he had been looking for.

It took years of arranging and a great deal of correspondence with many people before his journey to Appleton.

Those years, however, haven't been idle for the Mitras They have continued to devote their lives to missionary work in India and now have six congregations in the Madras area, operated with the help of about 50 laymen

It isn't all just preaching "because man has both a soul and a body," the couple explains. Much time is spent in social work to help improve the living conditions of their people.

"We go into the villages to help teach such things as cultivation and trades and we try to provide some education," Mitra said.

It is here that Mrs. Mitra is of greatest assistance. A graduate of the Christian Medical College, Dr. Mitra worked in mission hospitals until her marriage in 1949.

Also a product of a Christian home, she too wanted to express her faith and although other marriage partners had been arranged for her by her parents, she turned them all down until Mitra, with whom she found a common bond in their faith.

Since the marriage, Dr. Mitra has been "preaching" with her hands and her knowledge of medicine. She does free medical work and has set up hospitals in each of the areas the Mitras work

Others in the family have become deeply involved in the Mitra's undertaking. Both of his sisters, who hold master degrees in education, work with the school population.

It is his own family and his own people in whom the salvation of India lies, Mitra feels.

"We can't depend on others to do the work for us," he says. "But we do need some help in learning from others so we can take the knowledge home to India."

This time, though, the Mitras both added, they will take home with them more than knowledge. They will take along the experience of a Wisconsin Christmas, white and cold, but tempered by a warm Midwest reception.

Ruling on Blood Tests Displeases Coroners that nearly two out of every three persons killed in traffic accidents had been drinking and that about one in three was legally intoxicated. A blood-alcohol level of .15 per cent is considered proof of intoxication in the state.

Kemps said the test results sometimes are given to insurance companies, on request, because such information could "help bring fair settlements" He said the amount of some types of insurance benefits are determined in part by whether the insured person was drunk.

Kemps said he would make a decision on releasing test results through his office when he gets official notification from Warren.

Winnebago County Coroner Art C Miller said he has given out the test information privately at times, but never publicly

"Nobody's Business"

"It's nobody's business," Miller remarked He felt the information should remain confidential "even if the person is dead'

Calumet County Coroner Leroy Hughes was out of the area, for the holidays and could not be reached for comment

Brown County Coroner Tim Blaney said he has released the results of blood-alcohol tests to "people with official business, but not to nosey people who have no business knowing."

Asked how he felt about having to release such information to the news media, Blaney explained that it usually is a week before the test results get back from the state laboratory at Madison. "What's news on Thursday might not be the following Wednesday," he said.

Dr. Sam Salan, Waupaca County coroner, saw the issue as "quite a football."

He said that while he has not released the information publicly, "throwing it wide open" might help serve to cut down on traffic accidents.

Warren, in his opinion, held that results of blood tests are not admissible as evidence in some civil court proceedings.

Weather Cooperates With Holiday Season

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter moved into Wisconsin today, accompanied by up to three inches of new snow which harried motorists and delighted romanticists dreaming of a white Christmas.

Most National Weather Service recording stations in the state reported one to three inches of new snow on the ground by 6 a.m. The service said there could be another two to four inches by Wednesday morning.

The State Patrol reported all roads snow covered and slippery, except for southeastern Wisconsin where there are scattered slppery areas on heavily traveled roads. Driving lanes on Interstates 90 and 94 were listed in relatively good winter driving conditions but passing lanes and ramps were treacherous.

La Crosse reported three inches of new snow. Two inches fell at Milwaukee, Eau Claire, Wausau, Green Bay, Superior, Eagle River, Neenah, Port Edwards and Spooner. Reporting one inch were Lone Rock, Park Falls, Madison, Beloit, Ashland and Hilbert.

The clouds which spread over the state late Monday brought considerably warmer temperatures than those of the previous evening. Land O' Lakes had the state's overnight low of 9 above. Superior had 13, Park Falls 14, Madison 15, Wausu 17, La Crosse 20, Green Bay 23 and Milwaukee 27.

Beloit had the state's high Monday at 32. Other highs ranged from 18 at Park Falls and Superior to 30 at Milwaukee.

2 Reformatory Escapees Face Three Charges

Prisoners Ask for Attorneys at Court Appearance Monday

GREEN BAY — Charges of escape, armed robbery and auto ttheft have been filed against two State Reformatory honor farm inmates who led police on a 100-mile-per-hour chase on U.S. 41 Saturday afternoon.

Roger G. Markin, 22, South Beloit, Ill., and Verdell Miles, 21, Milwaukee, asked for court-appointed attorneys when they appeared Monday in Brown County Court. They were returned to the Reformatory under $3,000 bonds pending the balance of their arraignment today.

Outagamie and Winnebago county authorities said today they do not intend to bring traffic charges against the men for the high speed chase that started at U.S. 41 and State 47 near Appleton and ended 20 miles south, near Oshkosh.

The stolen car the men used ran three roadblocks along 41. It almost made it around a fourth but their vehicle was rammed by a Winnebago County squad car. The men did not resist when they were apprehended

Markin and Miles walked away from the Oneida honor farm late Friday night.

They reportedly hid out in an office of the Oneida Housing Authority in the Village of Oneida until about 12:45 p m. Saturday.

At that time, Dean Sickles, executive director of the housing authority, was confronted by the men, armed with knives, when he entered his office. They allegedly bound Sickles with telephone cord, robbed him of $130 and stole his 1969 car.

Sickles freed himself shortly after the men left and he notified authorities that he overheard them say they were heading for Milwaukee. The escapees were taken into custody about two hours after Sickles was robbed.

Markin was serving a two-year term for cattle rustling and Miles was serving a three-year term for auto theft and part of a three-year term for armed robbery.

Obey Wants House Look Into Spying

WASHINGTON — An investigation of alleged military surveillance of congressmen and other public officials is the object of a resolution introduced in the House by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis, and co-sponsored by 24 other congressmen.

The bipartisan resolution proposes that the House Government Operations Committee hold hearings and subpoena witnesses and documents to uncover facts in the claims of military intelligence agencies watching public officials and private citizens.

"If the Army, or indeed any agency of government can assume for itself the right to determine the propriety of government officials' political views, then no American citizen—public or private—can be free of intimidation," said Obey.

The Wausau congressman and other sponsors of the resolution acted in response to reports last Wednesday that two members of Congress and a former governor were objects of surveillance by military intelligence units.

sion order was expected, said the town was prepared for it. It cost the town an estimated $180 to $190 to hire the county to dig the trench Thursday afternoon. He was unable to quote the cost of allowing the Kaukauna man to perform the work at the dump now.

Emergency Basis

Ziegler said today that the private operator will continue to do the work there for the next 15 to 30 days, implying that he worked on an emergency basis Steps for more permanent arrangements are being taken, he said.

Woldt said he has received dozens of telephone calls from concerned citizens wondering whether the dump will remain open. He said it will, since the operation now conforms with the state ruling. Before the latest order, he said, the only expense incurred by the town was the hiring of a caretaker at the site, at $100 per month. Any costs resulting from the most recent state directive are over and above the cost of retaining that caretaker now, he said

Jewish Group's Members to Sub For Christians

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Members of a Jewish group will work at two hospitals on Christmas Eve so christians can spend the time with their families.

Alfred Jacobs, chairman of a committee established by the Congregation Emanuel Brotherhood, said that 30 to 40 persons would work at St. Mary's and St. Michael's hospitals.

The volunteer workers receive brief training sessions enabling them to handle such duties as ward clerks, aides at the nursing stations, manning the information desks, and delivering food trays

Jacobs said that for years the brotherhood had filled in for Christians at the USO on Christmas Eve and expanded the program after businessman Albert Rosen agreed to work for a bartender who had not spent the holiday at home in years.

City-Town to Air $300,000 Paving

NEENAH — A meeting between the city street and sanitation committee and the Town of Neenah is going to be set up for early January to see if a joint arrangement can be worked out to pave Tullar Road.

The city is planning the $300,000 reconstruction project for 1971 because of Armstrong High School opening. However, the committee has been hoping for a joint financial arrangement with the town because part of the street fronts in the town.

Wayne Bryan, public works director, has told the committee that the street should be rebuilt between Winneconne Avenue and Breezewood Lane. But unless an agreement can be worked out, the project will be cut down to stay within the city limits, which would be from Cecil Street to the high school site.

School Construction

Committee chairman Ald. Michael Ellis asked Bryan if the high school construction would have a detrimental effect on the road project.

Bryan said, "No, most of the heavy work at the high school will be done by the time we get to the road."

Ellis' question was based on a petition, signed by 19 residents of Tullar Road, who have asked that the Tullar project be delayed until the high school was completed.

They also argued that the project be delayed because of the "high tax rate in the city."

Previously, the committee had directed Bryan to meet with the town board to work out an agreement. Monday, Bryan said, "I've had several meetings with the town and at this point I think it would be best if the entire committee would be in on the meeting."

In other action, the committee told Bryan to go ahead and ready specifications for bidding on a new street sweeper, road grader and automobile. All the items are included in the 1971 budget.

The committee also went along with a raise in permit fees for spot road repair jobs.

Under the new provisions the minimum charge will be $7. Other charges are 80 cents per square foot for an oiled street; $1.35 per foot for a bituminous concrete; $2 per foot for Portland cement in a street or sidewalk, plus a $1.35 for old patching.

City-Manned Shovels Hit $11 Per Hour

NEENAH — If you're planning on taking a trip this winter and having the city shovel your walk while you're gone — be prepared for a pretty good sized bill because the charge will be $11 an hour to have the city do your work for you.

The new fee was established Monday by the street and sanitation committee which went along with Director of Public Works Wayne Bryan's recommendation.

The actual cost to the city for snow removal varies depending on what method they use.

For an example, if a tractor and driver is sent out the cost is $10.62 an hour, but if two men and a truck for transportation are sent out the cost is $11.90 an hour.

So if your walk gets cleaned with a pair of workers at $11 an hour you're getting a bargain. However, it will probably take the men longer to clean the sidewalk than it would a tractor.

Street Light Doused To Save Poinsettias

NEENAH — The sun isn't going to get any more help from a moonlighting street light at Western Avenue and Main Street.

It all started when the city started its street light change over to mercury vapor lighting. One of the lights went up at Western and Main, directly over a greenhouse.

According to a spokesman for Kraemer Greenhouse, the all night light was threatening the growing cycle of the plants under its glass hothouse roof.

A complaint was filed with city hall which in turn contacted the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company which immediately disconnected the control and the light stopped and the threat was averted.

Growing Cycle

Wayne Bryan, Neenah public works director, reported the incident to the street and sanitation committee Monday night. "I guess the light was upsetting the growing cycle of the plants," Bryan explained.

Bryan said, according to the complaint he received, the most critical problem was in upsetting the growing time the greenhouse was allowing to make sure the poinsettias would be in full bloom in time for Christmas.

The spokesman said the growing cycle was not affected, "but it could have been. If it had been left on, we would have had to move," he said.

Parker Schultz, WMPCO manager for Neenah, said, "We disconnected the control as soon as we got the complaint and it's going to stay out until we find out if light could have affected the plant growing cycle."

According to Schultz, the candle power of a 175-watt mercury vapor light is about 2 compared to the 10,000 candlepower of bright sunlight.

To find out if the light could affect the growing cycle, Schultz has written to the General Electric Lighting Institute, which supplies the lights installed by WMPCO.

"I don't know if the lights would have that effect on the plants, but the light will stay out until we get an answer from the Institute," he said.

Screen Artifacts To be Auctioned

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For sale: One turn-of-the-century bicycle, low mileage, starred in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." Or how about a warplane or two from "Toro, Tora, Tora"?

The auctioneers gavel will sound on these gadgets and more when 20th Century-Fox sells three decades of assorted screen artifacts—1,500 in. all—Feb. 25-28, the film company said Monday.

It follows by seven months a similar housecleaning-sale by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer which, among other things, let loose for $22,000 red ruby slippers once worn by the late Judy Garland.

Rep. Rivers Listed In Serious Condition

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., continues to experience irregular heartbeat and is in serious condition after suffering a heart stoppage, a Unievsrity Hospital spokesman said today.

"Congressman Rivers' condition has not improved. He continues to have several manifestations of reduced heart performance including numerous episodes of arrhymia, or irregularity of the heart," the spokesman said.

The 65-year-old chairman of the House Armed Services Committee underwent open heart surgery Dec. 11 to replace a faulty valve with a plastic one.

Kids Donate 14,000 Pieces of Bubble Gum

WEST GROVE, Pa. (AP) — It's a 4-foot Christmas stocking filled with 14,000 pieces of bubble gum.

"The kids wanted to do something different for the mentally ill and retarded at Pennhurst State Hospital," said Phil McDowell, assistant principal at the Engle Middle School in this suburban Philadelphia town. "And collecting gum is different."

The pupils are aged 10 to 4. The top class, of 7th graders, donated 3,580 pieces.

Winnebago to Enter Sewage Business?

OSHKOSH — The county sewage study committee voted to ask for legislation empowering counties to set up sewage districts — despite assertions from Oshkosh and Neenah city officials that present arrangements were good enough.

The committee will show a proposed bill to the county board at its January meeting; it will have the option of forwarding a recommendation to state legislators from the county.

More than a year ago, the state supreme court said no to metropolitan sewage districts set up by circuit courts. The legislature passed a special law exempting the four existing metro systems in Beloit, Green Bay, Milwaukee and Madison, but didn't have time to create new machinery for setting up others.

State Sen. Jack Steinhilber said the alternatives were city-controlled sanitary districts contracting with rural areas or rurally set up and controlled districts.

"If we are going to have another level of government that overlaps city and township jurisdiction, I'd prefer it be county government rather than a new unit like a metropolitan sewage district," he said.

Gordon Jaeger, new Oshkosh city manager, and Joseph Kraus, Neenah's director of administration, both said they were satisfied with existing methods of cooperation. "We are ready to work with our good friends in the Town of Neenah and the Town of Menasha," said Kraus.

"We stand ready to do it, and when we do set up waste treatment arrangements, we want to call the shots, not some autonomous district," he said.

Town of Neenah chairman Laurel Heaney agreed. "We are proceding to establish a metro sewage district under existing statutes. Petitions will be ready to circulate at the first of the year."

Oshkosh Plans

Jaeger and Oshkosh public works director Jack Schneider listed the city's arrangements with the towns of Algoma and Oshkosh. The city has agreed to run interceptors to them and treat their sewage, for a fair price, of course. The state has approved their plans.

Herman Brandt, Town of Omro chairman, argued for the county district. "Financing from federal and state sources depends on getting together." His town is smarting under abatement orders, yet can't get aid-generating approval to go it alone from the Department of Natural Resources. He sees a county system as a solution.

Steinhilber admitted to feeling thwarted, too. "We passed what we thought was good legislation in the ORAP-200 bill. It is frustrating to find it bogged in bureaucratic red tape."

County corporation counsel Gerald Engeldinger pointed out that a separate metro district would have bonding powers and could finance sewage construction without putting more strain on city bonding limits. Assemblyman Gordon Bradley compared the idea with legislation setting up consolidated school districts 10 years ago.

Winneconne Petitions

School Board Recall May Spark Court Test

WINNECONNE — A judicial test on whether a school commissioner can be recalled may be in the offing. Winneconne school board members will not abide by recall petitions because the state statutes do not provide for such a recall.

During a special board meeting Monday night, school board clerk Robert Schueler said he had met with attorney Patrick Coughlin, and after studying the law, found no provisions for recalling a school board member.

He said the law is more for elected officers of Municipalities and cities or in high state offices, but does "not get down to this level."

Inapplicable

"So I am of the opinion the petitions are inapplicable and insufficient to be carried out," Schueler said.

However, while Richard Steffens of Menasha, the attorney representing the Winneconne Taxpayers Association, admitted that the statutes do not specifically say that board members can be recalled, he questioned what is so "sacrosanct" about school commissioners, when officers of higher levels up to the Governor, can be recalled.

He said he couldn't believe the people of the state could recall the Governor, and the judge would hear it, they could recall any constable, judge, sheriff and coroner, and yet not a school commissioner.

The Winneconne Taxpayers Association has been the group behind the recall petitions.

The three petitions, seeking the recall of Gerard Eisch, George Dobberke and George Tipler (who already had resigned from the board) were handed over to Shueler last Thursday.

The Taxpayers Association and formerly the taxpayers group, have felt that the building program of school officials was one sided, and that the proposed senior high school, which was defeated in four referendum votes, was intended to be an example for the Wisconsin Association of School Boards (of which Tipler is president).

"It seems to me when a substantial number desire the election (recall), they should be heard," Steffens said.

Coughlin said that under the Wisconsin Constitution, Article 13, Second 12, there is provision for the recall of elective officers in the state, county, legislative or judicial districts and cities, "but in my opinion not a school district, village or town."

Archbishop Provides Gifts for Prisoners

BIEN HOA, South Vietnam (AP) — Archbishop Henri Lemaitre, the Roman Catholic apostolic delegate to Vietnam, delivered Christmas packages today for more than 4,000 North Vietnamese prisoners of war in the Bien Hoa prison camp 15 miles northeast of Saigon.

Although only 133 of the prisoners are Catholics, each inmate of the camp received a package containing soap, candy, cookies, a towel and an autographed photo of Pope Paul VI.

The POWs gave the archbishop a carved wooden swagger stick.

Cart to be Used On Moon Mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Apollo 14 astronauts prowl the moon, they will attempt to pull a two-wheel cart up a 400-foot-high slope littered with rocks as large as automobiles.

At the top of the 12-to-15-degree slope is the rim of Cone Crater where the explorers hope to find soil dating back to the creation of the moon.

Details of the lunar excursion were discussed at a news conference Monday by Apollo Mission Director Chester M Lee. Apollo 14 is scheduled for launching from Cape Kennedy Jan. 31 on a nine-day flight.

Lee said astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr and Edgar D. Mitchell will try a tricky pinpoint landing in a narrow valley surrounded by the rugged highlands of the Fra Mauro formation They plan two outside excursions, each lasting between four and five hours

The third crewman, Stuart A Roosa, will orbit the moon alone in the command ship Kitty Hawk, photographing future landing sites and conducting scientific experiments

During the first moon walk Shepard and Mitchell will set up a nuclear-powered science station intended to relay data back to earth for a year or more on such things as moonquakes, meteorite impacts, magnetic fields and radiation.

The second walk, after a nine-hour rest in the lunar module they have named for the star Antares, will be a geology field trip The rim of Cone Crater, half a mile from the landing site, will be the goal.

Lee said that the moonmen would visit several geologically interesting features that would extend their total walking distance to and from the crater to a little more than a mile and a half

Shepard and Mitchell will be the first astronauts to use a two-wheel carrier that looks like a small rickshaw. They will load it with shovels, hammers, cameras, sample bags and other tools of the moon explorer

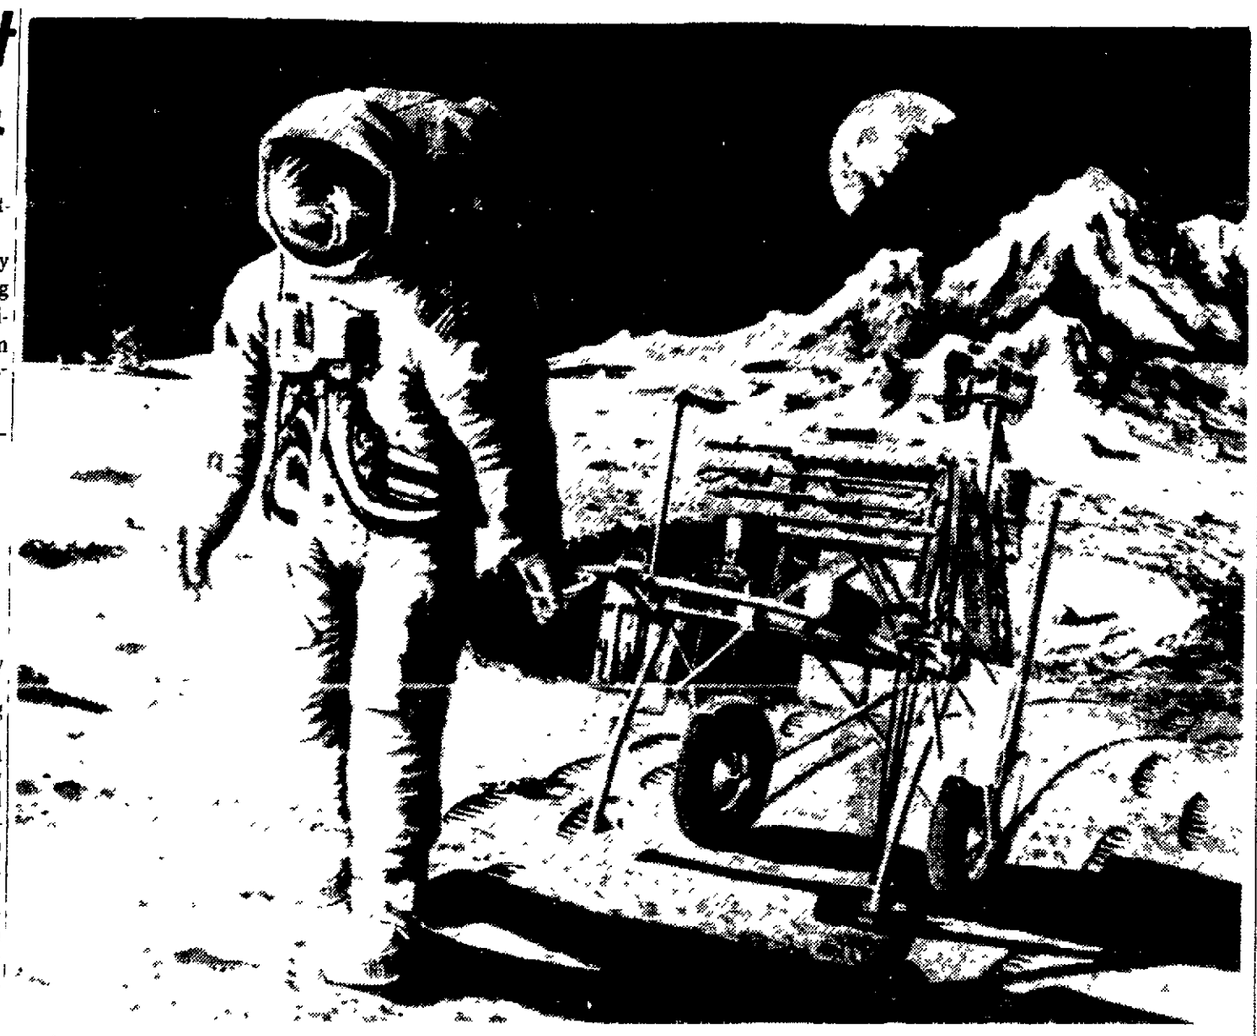
The Fra Mauro highlands were believed to have been formed eons ago by debris thrown out when a huge meteorite struck the moon and carved out the giant Mare Imbrium—the Sea of Rains—500 miles to the north

Some of the rocks are believed to have been gouged from a depth of 100 miles or more and could be the original material involved in the creation of the moon, which, like Earth and other planets, is thought by many to have originated by the coming together of rocks and dust in a giant dust cloud

Lee said the Apollo 14 crew will fly a much safer spaceship than the ill-fater Apollo 13 craft of last April.

An oxygen tank exploded as Apollo 13 neared the moon and the three spacemen had to fight for their lives for four danger-filled days before returning safely to Earth, surviving on the life support systems of the lunar module

Lee said Apollo 14 will have three instead of two oxygen tanks, and that all have been rebuilt to eliminate the improper design that caused the explosion.



A Two-Wheel Cart, similar to a rickshaw, will help the Apollo 14 astronauts on a lunar geological field trip during their mission scheduled early next year. The two astronauts will attempt to pull the cart up a 400 foot-high slope at the top of which they hope to find material dating back to the creation of the moon. Details of the mission were discussed at a news conference Monday. Launch date for the mission is Jan. 31.

Fire Kills Three Tots Left Alone

STURTEVANT, Wis. (AP) — Three small children whose father is hospitalized in Milwaukee died early today when fire broke out in their dwelling unit while their mother stepped out for a few minutes.

Racine County authorities said Kim Young, 9, and a brother, Randy, 8, died of smoke inhalation, while a sister, Heather, 3, was believed to have died by electrocution or from second and third degree burns.

Authorities speculated Heather had been playing with a defective extension cord which was used for lights on the family's Christmas tree.

A fourth Young child, Wendy, 6, ran from the four - family dwelling without injury. Their mother, Mrs. Sharon J Young, 27, had stepped out to go to a nearby all-night grocery store when the blaze broke out about 1:05 a.m., authorities said.

The victim's father, Robert Owen Young, was to be discharged today from Deaconness Hospital in Milwaukee.

Cardinal Cooke in War Zone

FIRE BASE CHARLIE 2, Vietnam (AP) — A helicopter landed Terence Cardinal Cooke at this remote fire base near the demilitarized zone today as a small fire fight raged less than three miles away.

Artillery boomed and Cobra gunships circled protectively overhead while the Roman Catholic archbishop of New York talked with crews of armored personnel carriers who had just rescued their battalion commander and his helicopter pilot after they made a forced landing outside the camp's perimeter.

"Stay strong," the cardinal told the men. "The folks back home are praying for you."

The operations officer of the 1st Batalion, 61st Infantry, Maj. Kenneth S. Lyon of Columbus, Ga., told the cardinal of the fighting near the base as soon as he landed The prelate expressed great interest in the action and asked several questions about how the troops were "smoking the enemy out."

"There's no danger to the cardinal," Lyon told newsmen. "Our men made contact with seven North Vietnamese about seven kilometers north of here and the shooting is still going on. The battalion commander was directing artillery fire from his chopper when his pilot was shot through both legs

"The colonel brought the chopper down okay and they med evaced the pilot."

Not Hurt

The battalion commander, Lt. Col. R. A. Scholtes of Oxon Hill, Md., was not hurt.

Cardinal Cooke arrived in Vietnam Monday for his annual Christmas visit as Vicar to Roman Catholics the U.S. armed forces and said he wanted "to spend maximum time with the men in the field." Today he also visited an artillery base at Mai Loc and the headquarters of the 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Infantry Division, at Quang Tri.

The cardinal did not hold any religious services for the men Instead he questioned them about their hometowns and how long they had been in Vietnam.

President Nixon said Dec 10 he saw no threat to American security in Russian activities in the western Atlantic. Ziegler said administration thinking is that Soviet intentions are covered by an understanding that Russia will build no bases in the vicinity.

Rogers did not disclose the source of his information but told the House he was fearful the Russians had hoodwinked the administration.

Notes Denied

"This new information comes just shortly after the administration has denied that such a base was being built and that the activity in Cuba was in line with our agreements of 1962 and later verbal agreements that the administration has made within the past six months," he said.

"I feel very strongly that the Russians have boldly established a base and that the administration has watched this progress and only hoped that it was not really being done," he added.

Rogers called on President Nixon and the appropriate Senate and House committees to investigate the Soviet activity and to make public the status of the Cuban base, plus any agreements this country may have with Russia.

Bengtson

Tony Canadea and Clarence Renard. Bourguignon, Torinus and Trowbridge also serve as corporation vice president, secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Bengtson, who came to the Packers in 1959 as an assistant to the late Vince Lombardi signed a 3-year contract as head coach in February of 1968

When Lombardi resigned as general manager to become executive vice president and head coach of the Washington Redskins in February of 1969, Bengtson was given a 2-year pact as head coach and general manager. That document expires Feb 1

During those three years, the Packers have won 20 games, lost 21 and tied 1, posting a 6-7-1 mark in 1968, improving to 8-6 in 1969 and finishing this year with a 6-8 record.

A Lot of Disappointments

Looking back over the 1970 season Monday, as well as Sunday's closing 20-0 loss to the Detroit Lions, Bengtson admitted, "There were a lot of disappointments."

But, he also observed, there also were developments that give promise for the future.

Questions Drivers Ask

New Residents Need New State Licenses

This feature is one of a weekly series bringing together questions on highway rules and regulations — how you can drive more safely, for yourself and others — as asked by Wisconsin motorists, together with authoritative answers as given by state officials of the agencies involved. It is presented as a public service.

Q When do I have to apply for a Wisconsin drivers license — I moved to the state last month?

A You should make application as soon as residency is established — within a month after moving is considered a reasonable time, but it should not be beyond 90 days. Students and others whose intent is to remain in the state only temporarily need not apply for a Wisconsin license, since they do not intend to make this their permanent residence. The only requirement is that their foreign state license is kept current.

When you apply to your local driver license examiner station, you will be scheduled to be given the written, vision, and road tests prior to the issuance of your Wisconsin license. Also, on application for the Wisconsin license, the out-of-state license must be surrendered. It cannot be returned! So, in the event that any portion of the test is failed, the applicant will be temporarily without a driving privilege To reduce the possibility of this happening, the bureau of driver control and its examiners encourage out-of-state applicants to thoroughly study the Manual for Motorists, to fully acquaint themselves with Wisconsin's rules of the road, and in addition to make a careful check of their driving habits to aid in correcting any poor ones

Q Under what conditions do I need a chauffeur's license?

A First, you must have passed your 18th birthday. Then, whether you are the owner or an employe who operates a "for-hire" (contract or common carrier of persons or property) vehicle, or any operator of a private carrier whose duties involve over 50 percent of his time driving, you must have a chauffeur's license

There are exemptions to this rule, however

1 Operators of vehicles providing funeral services.

2 School bus operators.

3. Students hired part-time for delivery purposes, not carrying for hire,

4 Operators of farm trucks or trucks transporting unprocessed farm products,

5 Operators of taxicabs

Where there is a possibility of the need for a chauffeur's license, contact your driver's license examiner - if you don't need the license he will give you an exemption card

Q I have been in the habit of picking up hitchhikers, if they are evidently college students going in my direction, when they are heading home for vacations, and so forth. I do require them to show me some proof of their identification, and offer the same myself. What bothers me is — what responsibility do I have for them in the case of a crash, and they are injured. Am I liable?

A Yes indeed — you are liable for injuries to any person who is a guest in your automobile You can be sued, under Wisconsin's "guest law" by any passenger in the car which you own or operate This would apply even as to a member of your own family — if the car is registered solely in the husband's name, the wife could sue him if she were injured in a crash

Back to the hitchhiker question, don't forget that there is a Wisconsin law prohibiting hitchhiking on any roadway. Those who thumb rides have learned that if they stand off the travelled portion of a roadway they are not violating the law, or at least the letter of it You are always running a risk when you pick up a "hiker", the figures regarding the proportion of them who are AWOL from the services, or escapees from correctional facilities, or are delinquents of one or another sort, should discourage most of us from picking up anyone along the road

Q A couple of weeks ago, I had an accident wherein I backed into another car on a public parking lot. The damage seemed minor, just a headlamp, but we both reported it to the local traffic police. Just a day or two ago, the other driver told me that the repairs cost over $200, the entire front grill being involved. Aside from the obvious point of the poor engineering of present-day cars, now I am told I have to make another report — is this true, and to whom?

A It is true, while not a public highway, the parking lot is open to public use, and the police should have told you — you have to report within ten days, on the State's standard accident reporting form, to the safety responsibility office of the bureau of driver control, at Hill Farms State Office Building, Madison 53702. These forms are available at all state patrol district offices, at police and sheriff's department offices, and at many insurance offices

There is also a report to be made to the insurance company; this should be checked with your agency, but most insurance companies require it For convenience, many of them require their report on a form identical with the state form

Collection of Great Talent On TV Special

BY TV SCOUT

7:30-8:30 Channel 2 — At this time of the year, more than any other, the idea of A World of Love is appealing. And, especially, a world of international love of children which is what tonight's special is all about. This is a potpourri of personalities working in conjunction with UNICEF, and pieces of it were made all over — at the UN in New York, Los Angeles, London, Rome and even Las Vegas. Shirley MacLaine and Bill Cosby are co hosts, and you'll see and hear a mighty array of talent — Julie Andrews, Harry Belafonte, Richard Burton, Audrey Hepburn, Florence Henderson, Barbra Streisand and bits from Paul Sills' "Story Theater."

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — The Mod Squad goes through another of those painful return-to-the-past scripts, this one involving Pete (Michael Cole) and his mother, played by the late Anita Louise. The need for the reminiscence is an old girl friend who is worried about her father. She has been prevented from seeing him by her uncle whom she suspects of plotting against his life.

6:30-7:30 Channel 5 — Most interesting moment on The Don Knotts Show is the very end, when Gina Lollobrigida talks about Christmas customs in Italy. Near the end, too, is the TV debut of Don's 16-year-old daughter, Karen, who listens nicely as Don sings "Turn Around" in an effective bit. Gina and Van Johnson join Don is some skits and The Dillards do some down-home music.

7:30-8 Channel 5 — Corey (Marc Copage) comes up against bigotry for the first time, as he prepares for his eighth birthday party. He handles it — and the show handles it — with simplicity and unemotional dignity, which is heartening In fact, the boy is more troubled by a rainstorm, which threatens to ruin the party Dr Chegley (Lloyd Nolan) rides to the rescue, doing some magic for the boys.

7:30-9 Channels 11-9 — The final minutes of "The Journey of Robert F. Kennedy," on The Movie of the Week, are among the most moving moments ever televised. The production, written by Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., naturally ends with tragic assassination and a short eulogy by Mrs. Rose Kennedy and narrator John Huston. It was produced carefully, to give an honest depiction of the man's life and not to cornonize him.

8:30-9 Channel 2 — That old bugaboo — long hair — crops up as the cause of the problem on To Rome With Love The hair is owned and operated by a young professor (Michael Blodgett) who dates Alison (Joyce Menges) It's his hair that upsets Grandpa (Walter Brennan), but reason and John Forsythe prevail.

Peace Corps Worker Of Hortonville Seeks Money Aid for Jivaros

Gary Garriott Starts Foundation to Save Lives; Slide-Talk Sunday on Ecuador Area

BY JINGO

Attendance is traditionally light at programs held during the Christmas season, but Jingo's hoping there'll be a big turnout this Sunday evening when Peace Corps Volunteer Gary L. Garriott tells of his experiences at First English Lutheran Church in Appleton.

Gary, the son of Drs. George

and Leola Garriott, of Hortonville, is home on leave from his post at Gualaquiza, Ecuador. He'll be speaking at 8 p.m. on the topic, "Impressions of Ecuador." His talk will be illustrated with colored slides taken while on duty with the Peace Corps.

A graduate of Hortonville High School and Valparaiso University, Gary, 23, has two purposes in presenting his program. The first is to acquaint Fox Cities residents with the reality of life in the jungles of ths "underdeveloped" South American land The second — and perhaps more important — is to raise money to help send members of the Jivaro Indian tribe through a course in medical training

Once Head Hunters

The Jivaros, who number only about 600 in his particular sector of the country, are a tribe that won international notoriety some years ago for their head-hunting and head-shrinking activities Now mainly Christianized, they have given up these pursuits, but continue to live in a state of deep poverty, discrimination and neglect.

Medical training and information are needed desperately, since the Jivaros — who speak a language of their own — are unable to diagnose their illnesses They often fail to take advantage of what medical care might be available to them.

The Jivaros, Gary points out, are without funds, they live completely outside the money economy.

Gary's talk Sunday will be sponsored by Branch 3850, of the Aid Association for Lutherans, and co-sponsored by 38 other A A L branches His venture truly is an ecumenical one since, upon his return to Ecuador, Gary will be working through a local Catholic mission. "the only institution that is taking any care at all of the Indians"

There will be no admission charge to the program, to which the general public is invited, but a free-will offering will be taken

Engineer by Training

An electrical engineer by training, Gary was accepted by the Peace Corps in July, 1969 He arrived in Ecuador that September. He currently is assigned to the Rural Electrification Program, and has completed a hydro-electric plant in Gualaquiza, a small village nestled in the Andes Mountains in the southeastern oriente (jungle).

Equally important, however, are his efforts to establish a blood bank program in the oriente, and to bring pure water and sewer services to Gualaquiza.

After seeing a young Indian child die of disease, he established the "Patricio Anguasha Scholarship Fund," to enable members of the Jivaro tribe to enter medical training. It is to this fund that gifts received at Sunday's program will be added.

Worthy Cause

"A trained Jivaro who speaks the language can be useful in making the rounds, spotting obvious illnesses," Gary believes.

Gary also hopes to collaborate with a Lutheran mission at Cuenca, Ecuador's third largest city, in having a nurse team sent out to the "campo" to give instruction Once instruction had been given, medicine can be obtained and a medical center built "right in the middle of the jungle," he says

It all sounds like the worthiest possible cause and Jingo trusts this most interesting talk will be well attended, despite the many demands of the holiday season.

Siberian Dancers, Singers Still on Oshkosh Program

OSHKOSH — The Soviet Union's cancellation of planned visits to the United States of the Bolshoi Theater's opera and ballet companies as a retaliatory move will not affect the scheduled Town and Gown appearance of the Siberian Dancers and Singers of Omsk, officials of Town and Gown have been assured.

Robert Brismaster, director of concert series at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, said that he had been assured by the Columbia Artists Management, Inc., which is handling the Siberian group's appearance in the United States, that the group will appear as scheduled.

The Siberian Dancers and Singers of Omsk are scheduled for a Town and Gown program at the Oshkosh Civic Auditorium on Monday, March 8.

The Soviet Union last week canceled the Bolshoi Theater opera and ballet company appearances, planned for the spring on the charge that American authorities had failed to stop "provocations by Zionist thugs."

The opera company was to have begun a four-week engagement May 19 at the Metropolitan Opera House and the ballet company a 12-weeks visit April 20.

Add a Bit of Glamour To Artificial Flowers

BY CAPPY DICK

The stem of an artificial flower can be glamorized by applying a string of beads to it as has been done in figure 1 of the adjoining illustration.

Very small beads— the kind called seed beads— should be used and they must be strung on very fine, pliable wire (figure 2).

Artificial Flower

The pliability of the wire makes it easy to entwine the stem of the artificial flower as shown in figure 3. Each end of the wire must be hooked into the stem to prevent it from unwinding and allowing the beads to spill off. This can be done by pressing an eighth-inch tip of the wire ends into the stem.

Beads slightly larger than seed beads may be used, if you prefer, but they should not be so large that the flower stem becomes too thick in appearance for the size of the blossom it carries.

Additional glamour can be added by gluing a row of imitation flatback gems around the top of the flower pot.

Sequins may be glued here and there on the surface of the artificial leaves, also dressing up the display.

Bucks Race Past Lakers

By BOB GREENE

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain gave Lew Alcindor three feet, and the Milwaukee Bucks center took advantage of it for 37 points Monday night.

"In the last game, Wilt would move back off of me," Alcindor said after the Bucks crushed Chamberlain and the Los Angeles Lakers 113-88 in a nationally-televised National Basketball Association game. It was Monday's only NBA contest.

"Then, when I made my move, he would time his leap perfectly and block my shot," Lew said. "This time, I turned around to face him and made him play defense more honestly."

The former UCLA three-time All-American outplayed the veteran Chamberlain in every aspect of the game except assists. Chamberlain finished with 25 points and had 14 rebounds to Alcindor's 16. The Milwaukee sophomore also blocked four shots while Chamberlain knocked down two would-be Milwaukee baskets.

Big O Shines

While Alcindor was winning his battle with Chamberlain, two other superstars were playing head-to-head, and again Milwaukee came out on top.

Oscar Robertson tallied 19 points, matching his season average, while holding the Lakers' Jerry West to a similar amount. West was averaging 28.2 points a game going into the contest.

Oscar—the "Big O"—really sparkled defensively, time and again stealing the ball and blocking shots. He intimidated West so much that the Los Angeles guard missed six layups.

"I don't know if it's them or us," West said of the Laker defeat. "I don't know if we can play well against the Bucks."

Laker Coach Joe Mullaney admitted Robertson was a thorn in West's side.

"I'm not certain he played Jerry last year head-to-head," Mullaney said. "But against Oscar, Jerry's shots have come very tough."

The Bucks, with Robertson directing the attack, led 27-22 going into the second period. After Happy Hariston's two straight baskets and a long jumper by West, Los Angeles was in front 32-28.

But Alcindor, who missed 12 of 18 from the field in the first half, pumped in two quick baskets to tie the score, and the Bucks were off and running.

Milwaukee led at halftime 50-42, and at the three-quarter mark 77-63.

It was the only regular-season NBA game scheduled for TV on a Monday night. ABC, which aired the contest, plans on televising NBA games on Monday night next year following the football season.

Eight of the nine teams in the Fox Valley Catholic Conference get in another lick at each other before taking time out for the holidays as a full slate of games is on tap tonight.

Green Bay Premontre, one of three teams currently tied for the lead, stands the best chance of preserving its hold on the top spot as the Cadets entertain winless Menasha St. Mary.

Oshkosh Lourdes and DePere Abbot Pennings may be in for stiffer competition, as the Knights play host to Manitowoc Roncalli (4-2) while the Squires prepare for an invasion by Marinette Central. In the fourth contest on the schedule, Fond du Lac Springs, with one victory in six games, will be at Appleton Xavier.

Premontre features the most potent offensive attack in the conference with a 67.4 scoring average while the Zephyrs of St. Mary have managed to get only 47.8 per game while dropping five straight league decisions.

The Cadets were impressive in beating Roncalli by 10 points, 68-58 last weekend on the Jets' home court. A balanced Premontre attack saw five players hitting in the double figures and three others figured in the team scoring.

Dennis Heuvelmans, who is averaging 16 points per game, leads the Premontre attack with 6-7 Terry Young not far behind at 15.4.

Lourdes, which drew a bye last weekend, will try for its fifth win in six starts when the Knights entertain Roncalli. The last conference outing for Lourdes resulted in a 59-57 victory over Premontre to lift the Knights' hopes for the league title.

Greg Jahnke and Jeff Salutz form a potent 1-2 scoring punch for the Jets. At the present time, the pair ranks in the fourth and fifth spots in scoring. Jahnke is averaging 16.3 points per game while Salutz has a 16.2 mark.

Pennings rolled to a 78-45 victory over the Zephyrs of St. Mary in their latest outing. The Squires will have to stop Bob Holquist of Marinette who still commands the scoring lead in the conference with a 32.6 average. Last Friday, Holquist

Austin Lauds Green Bay As Grid City

GREEN BAY (AP) — Coach Bill Austin of the Washington Redskins was almost elated Monday when asked if he would like to return to the Green Bay Packers, whose recently concluded National Football League season may have been Phil Bengtson's last as head coach.

"I have a lot of friends there," Austin said in Washington, where his contract with the Redskins expires March 1. But the Packers, he added, "still have a coach, and the Redskins still have a coach."

Names Circulating

That meant Austin wasn't going to talk much more than anyone else does about the prospects of Bengtson's future. Austin said only that he isn't certain he'll be retained by Washington, then spoke in glowing terms about Green Bay where he was an assistant from 1959-64.

A number of coaching names have been circulating amid the gossip about Bengtson's being asked to turn over his coaching

Lillian Board to Undergo Surgery

LONDON (AP) — British Olympic athlete Lillian Board, stricken by cancer, has been rushed to a Munich hospital for emergency surgery, according to the Daily Mail newspaper.

It said Miss Board, 22, suffered a perforation of the stomach Monday at the Baverian Cancer Clinic of Dr. Josef Issels where she has been confined since Nov. 7.

Her fiancee, Daily Mail sports writer David Emery, was quoted as saying: "This is the greatest crisis Lillian has faced. Peritonitis was the one thing Dr. Issels feared from the start."

29 Million at College Tilts

Record Attendance Led by Buckeyes, Big Ten Schools

NEW YORK (AP) — Over 29 million persons watched collegiate football games during the 1970 season according to figures released Monday by the National Collegiate Sports Services.

The exact figure was 29,465,604, an increase of 1,839,44 over the 1969 figure. The boost was 6.6 per cent.

Ohio State, headed for a Jan. 1 Rose Bowl date with Stanford, led the attendance breakdown with a five-game home average of 86,490, up 255 from their previous high. The Buckeyes' figure was second only to the all-time record average of 93,894 established by Michigan in 1949.

A record 14 teams averaged more than 60,000 fans per game at home with five Big Ten teams showing up among the top 10.

Michigan, No. 2 with a 79,361 average, took single game attendance honors with 103,580 fans at the Michigan State game Oct. 17. That was just eight short of the largest single game crowd ever that turned out for the Micigan-Ohio State game last year.

Blugolds Run Win Skein to 9

Eau Claire State Rips UM-D, 98-72; Beloit Suffers Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eau Claire State's nationally ranked Blugolds produced brutal scoring surges Monday night as they waltzed to their ninth consecutive basketball victory of the season.

They scored 16 points to open the game before allowing Minnesota-Duluth to score, then pulled away from a 77-68 advantage with a similarly 15-0 surge. The outcome was Eau Claire 98, UMD 72.

The Blugolds dominated the rebound category. Mike Ratliff, who had 12 rebounds, led the victors with 22 points, 19 in the second half.

Wisconsin - Milwaukee picked up its third victory in seven games, downing Georgia Southwestern 82-66 after trailing 17-12.

Control Boards

UWM hit only 44 per cent of its field shots compared with the visitors' 50 per cent, but had better luck at the freethrow life and controlled the rebounds.

La Crosse State, led by Marty Thompson's 22 points, had six scorers in double figures during a 116-77 humiliation of Milton College. The Indians were ahead, 58-32, at halftime.

Carthage College opened the Monmouth, Ill., holiday tournament with a 91-63 victory over Beloit. In the other opener, Monmouth downed Florida Presbyterian 88-84.

Team Drill for Rose Bowl

Deluge Hampers Buckeyes, Indians

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — "That's no fun at all," Jim Plunkett said of the rain that again plagued Stanford and Ohio State Monday in their Rose Bowl football drills.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner, lives by the pass and rain is a mortal enemy. The wet stuff cut short Stanford's first practice here for a Jan. 1 meeting with Ohio State. More rain was forecast today. The Buckeyes didn't even try a Monday workout.

Ohio State spent two of its first four West Coast practices indoors because of rain. Stanford Coach John Ralston was talking like he would take his Indians inside, too.

"We've got to search for a place indoors," he said before the Indians joined the Buckeyes Monday for a tour of Disneyland.

"The weather is lousy. There was water an inch deep on the practice field. You could get no footing at all," Ralston said of Monday's short drill at Long Beach State.

Ohio State boss Woody Hayes and Ralston lamented that they were behind schedule in work for the Rose Bowl because of the rain.

Ralston, whose Pacific-8 champions are 11-point underdogs against the Big Ten rulers, assessed Stanford's opposition upon the Indians' arrival here.

"They can keep the football all day. That scares you to death," Ralston said.

"And their defense is very complete. I can see no weaknesses anywhere," said the man who led Stanford to a 8-3 season.

"I don't think they have seen as pure a passer as Plunkett since Mike Phipps last year," said Ralston. A two-time performer in the Rose Bowl while at California, Ralston seemed confident the pass-oriented Indians can make a game of it.

"We feel we can control the ball with a passing game just as effectively as they can on the ground," he said.

Both sides will work hard for the next three days, take Christmas off and then return for heavy practice Saturday. Neither team plans a scrimmage, however.

Ohio State's three injured players, wingback Larry Zelina, offensive guard Dick Kuhn and flanker Jimmie Lee Harris — were cleared for practice today.

One Stanford regular, Linebacker Mike Simone, is sidelined with a torn knee cartilage. Dennis Moore is playing in his spot.

Appleton West forced Neenah into the shot it didn't want to take, but Jim Crist was Johnny-on-the-spot, and the Rockets own a 7-0 pre-holiday record.

Those developments from last Friday night's "state tournament rematch" at Seims Gym took the spotlight in another weekend of prep basketball around the Fox Cities.

Neenah's John Pierce, who had stolen the ball with 30 seconds remaining to give his team vital possession, missed from outside with time running out, but Crist grabbed the rebound and pushed the ball back through the hoop with one second left for a 46-44 Rocket triumph.

"We didn't have any particular player designated to shoot the last shot," a happy Neenah coach Ron Einerson recounted Monday. "We wanted to stay out of the corner, but defensively the (the Terrors) did a good job and forced us down there. John had nothing to do but released it."

After the Shot

If Einerson wasn't explicit in his instructions concerning who should take the potential winning shot, he was precise in directing his charges on what to do after the shot.

"We had said that when that shot goes up," the Rocket mentor recalled, "everybody goes to the offensive boards real hard and try to get that second one."

That portion of the strategy worked to prefection since the Terrors "had a lot of pressure down in that corner and didn't have much under the board at all."

Of Crist's rebound, Einerson remembers, "He had the ball cradled in both hands and he went back up and pushed the ball in. It wasn't a tip, it was a controlled shot."

In discussing the outcome further, Einerson stuck by his original assessment — limiting the Terrors' Tim Moriarty to 10 points and Rich Reitzner to seven was an important factor.

"With Moriarty and Reitzner being such fine, outstanding basketball players that they are, I really feel holding them to those kind of figures had to be one of our keys," he observed.

Moriarty had just one basket in the second half, and Reitzner was able to count only a single free throw in the same span. "I think we'd have to credit Ed Hawley a great deal working on Reitzner," Einerson asserted, "and Rick Matson was involved with Moriarty most but not all the time."

Griese, Lamonica Top AFC Pro Bowl Team; 10 Chiefs Selected

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterbacks Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins and Daryle Lamonica of the Oakland Raiders were named today to the 40-man squad that will represent the American Football Conference in the first AFC-NFC Pro Bowl Game in Los Angeles, Jan. 24.

The Kansas City Chiefs, last year's Super Bowl champions who have been eliminated from contention this season, dominated the balloting with 10 players named. The Raiders, who edged the Chiefs for the Western Division title, had seven players selected.

The Chiefs' selected include seven players who saw all-star action last year—linebackers Bobby Bell and Willie Lanier, defensive tackle Buck Buchanan, cornerback Jim Marsalis, guard Ed Budde, tackle Jim Tyrer and placekicker Jan Stenerud.

Joining their teammates on the squad were defensive tackle Jerry Mays, safety Johnny Robinson and punter Jerrel Wilson.

Otto Selected

The Raiders on the team are Lamonica, running back Hewritt Dixon, receiver Warren Wells, tight end Ray Chester, tackle Harry Schuh, center Jim Otto and cornerback Willie Brown.

Chester was one of only two rookies to make the squad. The other was Lamar Parrish, Cincinnati's cornerback-kick return specialist.

Among the others picked were two of the AFC's major statistical leaders—Buffalo receiver Marlin Briscoe and Floyd Little of Denver, the rushing champion.

Every team placed at least one man on the squad, although under the rules of selection each club did not have to be represented. Baltimore, Cleveland and Miami have three players each on the squad, Cincinnati, Denver, Houston, New York, Pittsburgh and San Diego two each, and Boston and Buffalo one each.

Picked by Coaches

The team was selected by vote of the 13 AFC head coaches, who could not submit a ballot for any member of their own team. The squad has 20 offensive players, 17 defensive players, a punter, a placekicker and a return specialist.

The NFC team that will meet the AFC in the first all-star game under the National Football League's new two 13-team conference alignment will be announced at a later date.

Goose Hunters Urged to Return Report Forms

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin Canada goose hunters are urged to return the report forms which are part of their federal goose permits, the Department of Natural Resources said today.

Many sportsmen have failed to comply with this permit requirement.

Without the goose harvest information the reports provide, federal wildlife officials cannot do a complete job of setting 1971 regulations, the department said.

'Big O' Now Heads NBA Foul Shooters

NEW YORK (AP) — While teammate Lew Alcindor continues to pace the National Basketball Association's scoring race. Oscar Robertson of the Milwaukee Bucks has moved ahead of Seattle's Dick Snyder for the lead in free throw percentage.

Robertson made 17 of 19 last week and has an .870 percentage for the season to Snyder's .856. The Big O led the NBA in free throw percentage in 1963-4 and again in 1967-8.

Meanwhile, Alcindor poured in 40 points against Boston last Friday night and boosted his scoring average to 32.3 points a game, followed by Boston's John Havlicek at 29.5. Alcindor's average does not include Monday night's game against Los Angeles.

Johnny Green of Cincinnati continues to lead in field goal percentage at .607, trailed by Alcindor at .588. Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles leads in rebounds with a 20-per-game average while Jerry West of the Lakers is tops in assists with 10 per game.

Invited to June Fete

Johnson Newest Qualifier For NFL 1,000-Yard Club

The National Football League 1,000-yard club has two new members to enshrine during the next banquet (June 8) scheduled at the Sabre Lanes.

Ron Johnson qualified for the elite club on the final day of the season, when he gained 37 yards rushing to boost his 1970 total to 1,021. He becomes the first New York Giant ever to crash the 1,000-yard barrier and the 15th member overall.

The president of the 1,000-yard club Foundation Bill Garvey, wired Johnson congratulations and invited him to the June 8 fete.

Earlier Washington's Larry Brown qualified for the club and will also be inducted next year.

The Cardinals MacArthur Lane, another strong 970 candidate, fell 23 yards short of his goal. He gained 55 yards Sunday for a 977 total.

assignment to someone else.

The gossip includes suggestions that he be retained as general manager, or that he resume the defensive coaching duties he held when he and former coach Vince Lombardi built the Packers into a legend.

Bengtson's three - year pact, under which he succeeded Lombardi, expired Sunday as the Detroit Lions thrasked Green Bay 20-0. The team ended with a 6-8 record — the worst in Bengtson's three seasons.

The coach - general manager was asked after the game whether he thinks he "will be back next year?"

"Who me? Yes, I hope so," Bengtson replied.

Packer officials insist nothing formal has transpired between Bengtson and the club.

Other NFL coaches doubtlessly have a collective eye on Green Bay.

"It's a great place to live." Austin said. "and it's an ideal place to coach professional football. They have an ideal physical plant."

Hawk Jayvees Outlast Foxes

Appleton Xavier's jayvee basketball team topped Fox Valley Lutheran, 39-36, at the FVL gym Saturday night.

Xavier held a 21-11 halftime advantage and was still ahead by 10 points, 32-22, at the close of the third quarter. However, FVL was able to close the gap to as few as two points in the closing moments.

Paul Hardy hit 12 points and Pete Gorski netted 10 for Xavier, while Tom Hanke meshed 13 markers for FVL. The Foxes' Jim Mattek led his team in rebounds with 11.

Both teams are now 5-3 for the season.

Xavier, with a 2-3 conference record, has the second-best offensive average with a mark of 64.4 per game. However, the Hawks have given up an average of 61.4 points per game.

The latest loop outing for Xavier was a narrow 69-64 victory over Little Chute St. John last Friday. Then, in a non-conference clash Saturday night, the Hawks were upended by their cross-town rivals, Fox Valley Lutheran, 61-53.

Springs will bring the second-best scorer in the conference, Tom Wegner, to the Xavier court. Wegner still is averaging 24.2 points per game even after being held to just one field goal in the Ledger loss to Marinette last week.

Tim O'Dell tops the Xavier scoring, with a 23.0 average. Joe DeNoble, who has seen only limited action in the last two games for the Hawks, has a 14.2 mark.

Kentucky Drops After Purdue Loss; UCLA Still First

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

That Old Kentucky Home Sweet Home turned sour over the weekend and cost the Kentucky Wildcats a drop of four places in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll.

While UCLA and South Carolina held onto the top two spots, Kentucky's 89-83 loss to Purdue in the finals of their own invitation tournament knocked the Wildcats from third to seventh place.

That enabled Marquette, Jacksonville and Penn, each 5-0, to move up one position apiece to third, fourth and fifth, respectively. Southern California climbed from eighth to sixth by winning the Sun Bowl Tournament.

The rest of the Top Ten consisted of, Kansas, Drake and Western Kentucky.

UCLA, 4-0 after an idle week, received 26 of the 30 first-place votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters across the country. South Carolina, 5-0, was first on one ballot, Marquette on two and Jacksonville on one. In points, UCLA led South Carolina 579-498.

Tigers Show Mettle Minus Pistol Pete

LSU Takes 4th; Louisville Snaps Kansas Win Streak

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

So who needs Pistol Pete?

For the first time in four seasons Pistol Pete Maravich is not a member of the Louisiana State college basketball team. The No. 1 collegiate scorer in each of his three varisity years at LSU now is a profesional with the Atlanta Hawks in the NBA.

But, strange to relate, the Bayou tigers from Baton Rouge have won four straight and are unbeaten going into their first round game against DePaul in the All-College holiday tourney at Oklahoma City Saturday.

Led by Nelson Isley, the only senior on the team, LSU routed Georgia 97-76 Monday night at home for their latest success.

Isley, 6-foot-3, scored 26 points. Billy Newton and Al Sanders chipped in with 20 and 19, respectively.

Louisville snapped the six-game winning streak of eighth-ranked Kansas in decisive fashion, 87-75. Playing at home the once-beaten Cardinals were led by Henry Bacon's 22 points and at one time were ahead by 26 points.

Alabama, the team which marred Louisville's record, was crushed 122-75 by sixth-ranked Southern California at Los Angeles.

St. Bonaventure and Purdue were the only other teams in the Associated Press Top Twenty to see action. Both won. The Bonnies, No. 15, routed Illinois Wesleyan 92-57 for their sixth in a row. Purdue, No. 16, walloped Tulane 94-73.

Harvard Routed

A layup by Jerry Brucks with five seconds left gave Wyoming a 72-71 victory over California in the first round of the Michigan Invitational at Ann Arbor. Michigan routed Harvard 100-73 and will play Wyoming in the final tonight.

John Mengelt scored 32 points for Auburn, but Houston pulled out a 79-76 victory over the Tigers on the hot hand of Sonny Willis in the last 13 minutes. Willis came off the bench and scored 13 of Houston's final 27 points.

Rice humbled Yale 91-71, Memphis State defeated Princeton 86-77, Stanford turned back Temple 73-64 and Washington tripped Kansas State 64-51.

In other intersectional games, Florida overcame Northwestern 88-73, Iowa took Hardin Simmons 90-77, Wichita State conquered Colorado 79-69, Xavier of Ohio defeated Los Angeles Loyola 96-84 and Vernon Murphy threw in 39 points to pace Arkansas over Missouri-St. Louis 91-84.

Appleton Man Wins $500 in Pin Tourney

Appleton's Clarence Kositzke finished second in the Schlitz Brewing Company-Bowling Proprietors Association Tournament held at Milwaukee Sunday and won $500.

In the pins - over - average tournament, Kositzke had a 485 series in the finals. He carries a 140 average and was 65 pins over that mark.

Winner of the tournament and first prize of $1,000 was Max Moeller of Wonewoc who has a 128 average and hit 465 in the finals to go 81 over his average.

Gary Hilbert, Fond du Lac, was fourth and won $200 while winners of $50 each for finishing in eighth through 30th places included Joe Kwiatkoski, Birnamwood and Roger Froehlich, Appleton.

The 30 finalists competed at the Red Carpet Lanes in Wauwatosa.

Bruins Pace NHL Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — The race at the top of the National Hockey League's East Division has turned into a two-way struggle between the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers and the success of those two teams has come in exactly opposite ways.

The Bruins, who lead the Rangers by two points, have poured 147 goals in just 32 games and are almost halfway to their record total of 303 established last year.

Boston has the top four scorers in the league including the leader, Phil Esposito, who is zooming at a pace of two points per game. Espo has 64 points, 30 of them on goals. Six of the top 10 scorers are Bruins.

'Forget Weather and Play Ball'

Nolan Says 49ers Won't Use Sideline Heating Units Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Mostly, we'll just forget about the weather and play ball," San Francisco 49ers Coach Dick Nolan says of the coming trip to pro football's icebox.

The 49ers, after clinching their first division championship ever, travel to Minnesota to face the Vikings Sunday in the National Football League playoffs.

In their last game with the Vikings, the 49ers lost 10-7 in a snowstorm last December at the Bloomington, Minn., stadium.

Nolan said Monday he doesn't plan to use any special sidelines heating system in the playoff game in freezing weather with the favored Vikings.

Had to Win

The 49ers clinched the Western Division title of the National Conference with a 38-7 victory over the Oakland Raiders Sunday. They had to win the game, since the second place Los Angeles Rams beat the New York Giants earlier in the day and moved a half game from the lead.

"I'm happy they (the Rams) won," Nolan said Monday. "We had to learn how to handle pressure—and we did. We'll have a lot more pressure on us this week."

Sizing up the Vikings, Nolan said, "That front four rushes like a bunch of wild men. They have an offense that doesn't make mistakes, just like the Green Bay offense of old."

The 49ers planned a brief workout today at their rain-soaked Redwood City training camp field. But Nolan will take the team to a drier field at Stanford University the next three days.

Could be Back

Running back Doug Cunningham, who missed the last two regular season games with a hamstring pull, was expected to practice today and could be back in the starting lineup Sunday.

Linebacker Skip Vanderbundt, another injured starter, remains doubtful. He has a knee injury.

The team will leave Friday afternoon for Minnesota.

Quarterback John Brodie, who waited 14 seasons to play on a championship team, was asked how he felt about the necessity of leaving home on Christmas Day.

"That's really tough, isn't it?" he said with a big smile.

Anderson and Luedtke Win Tennis Title

Appleton's Dr. Jack Anderson and Bob Luedtke, pro and manager of the Fox Cities Racquet Club, took first place Sunday in the Niesel Tennis Tournament, Men's 45 Doubles, at Madison.

The Racquet Club duo beat Lou Graves of Detroit and Bill Walker of Madison in three sets, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Earlier, Luedtke fought his way to the finals in the Men's 45 Singles, losing to Graves in a 3-hour match, 8-6, 13-11. Luedtke had defeated Marv Wolfenson of Minneapolis in the semi-finals 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The three-day tournament, held at the Nielsen Tennis Stadium on the UW-Madison campus, featured entries from all over the midwest.

Two More Cubs Sign Contracts

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs Tuesday announced the signing of shortstop Don Kessinger and utility infielder Paul Popovich to 1971 contracts.

The Cubs now have five players in the fold including pitchers Bill Hands and Milt Pappas and outfielder Joe Pepitone.

Kessinger was the National League's All-Star shortstop for a third straight year and batted .266 in 154 games. Popovich, the Cubs' No. 1 handyman, batted .253 in 78 games.

Lem Barney Potent Lion Weapon

Defensive Back Cited for Effort Against Packers

DETROIT (AP)—It's a good thing Lem Barney is an easy going guy, otherwise there would be a few armchair quarterbacks around town with split heads.

Barney, fourth - year cornerback for the Detroit Lions, says he is continually confronted in local bars and restaurants by persons strongly critical of his ability.

"Some players would go over to them and probably knock them on the head," he grinned. "But being of good nature, I take it."

The detractors should be silenced by now, especially after Barney's performance Sunday against the Green Bay Packers

Great Stats

He returned five punts, a kickoff, and interception a total of 223 yards—63 yards less than the combined total offense for the two teams—as the Lions moved into the National Football Conference playoffs with a 20-0 victory.

For his outstanding performance he was named Monday Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League by the Associated Press.

With Detroit ahead only 3-0, Barney returned the second half opening kickoff 74 yards to set up a Lions field goal. Early in the fourth quarter he returned a punt 65 yards to set up a touchdown pass, then about a minute later he intercepted a pass and sprinted cross-field for a 49-yard touchdown run.

Grant's Team Fit for Playoffs

No Movie This Time; Vikes Super Bowl Foe Eliminated

BY PAT THOMPSON

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Uncertainty cloaked the Minnesota Vikings the morning of Sept. 20 as a movie projector whirred along with the story of last January's Super Bowl.

The Vikings were about to open their 1970 National Football League season against the world champion Kansas City Chiefs.

They still felt the sting of Kansas City's 23-7 Super Bowl victory, and there was doubt in their minds.

Joe Kapp, their rough-tough leader who led them to the 1969 NFL championship, was no longer the quarterback. Carl Eller, the defensive end All-Pro, reported late and had not yet rounded into top shape.

The Vikings needed another look at the Super Bowl film for the final emotional edge, met the Chiefs and stomped them 27-10.

"When we started off the season beating the Chiefs . . . that got us off to a good start," said center Mick Tingelhoff. "We just went to work from there on."

The Vikings stormed to their second straight 12-2 record, best in the NFL, and into next Sunday's 12 noon (CST) National Conference semifinal playoff against the San Francisco 49ers at Metropolitan Stadium.

"We've played 14 games to arrive at this point," said Coach Bud Grant, "and now we start over zero to zero with seven other teams."

The Vikings, behind their Purple Gang defense, held opponents to a NFL low of 143 points. Minnesota defenders intercepted 28 passes, and corner back Ed Sharockman even scored three touchdowns defensively.

Near Bottom

The Vikings were ranked near the bottom in the NFC offensively, but the club scored the third most points in the league, 335.

Kicker Fred Cox took over when the offense stalled, setting when the offense stalled, winning a second league scoring title with 125 points.

Gary Cuozzo proved himself as a No. 1 quarterback with 1,720 yards and seven touchdowns, and Bob Lee passed his tests as a backup with 610 yards and five touchdowns.

Dave Osborn led the Vikings in rushing with 681 yards. Gene Washington, 44 receptions, for 702 yards, and John Henderson, 32 for 517, were the top receivers.

Hard Work

"It was a lot of hard work," reviewed Grant, "and there is certainly satisfaction involved, particularly since we have the best record in professional football."

Franzke Takes Scoring Lead

West basketball rivalry has to be the keenest in the state right now, the teams apparently have a great deal of respect for each other.

"We've got a good rivalry, but it's not one of bitterness at all," Einerson emphasized. "After the game their kids congratulated ours, and Dick Emanuel came into our lockerroom and congratulated our players as we did after the final game down at Madison a year ago.

"Rich Reitzner was a counsellor of mine for a week at basketball camp this summer," he continued, "and we had worked together closely. I think we gained a lot of respect for each other, and he came over to me afterwards, too.

"As great as the games have been and as much emotion and feeling as there are, I think it's (the rivalry) is one of true competitiveness. And that's a good thing in this day and age," he added.

While Neenah came out on top against its nemisis, another pair of rivals were crossing swords at Fox Valley Lutheran as the Foxes and Xavier Hawks clashed Saturday night.

The script in this game calls for a Xavier victory — usually in the vicinity of a 10- to 20-point margin. That is the way things had worked out in the last seven meetings, leastways.

But the Foxes turned the tables this time to the tune of 61-53, and in the words of FVL coach Gerhard Kaniess, "You could tell on the floor our players were determined."

The Foxes got their best performance of the season out of Dave Romberg, who totaled 15 points and 14 rebounds.

But also sharing the limelight were two players who came off the FVL bench at crucial times and came through with clutch efforts.

In the first quarter, FVL's Glen Hinnenthal got into quick foul trouble and was benched in favor of Jeff Grow. Grow saved his shooting eye for the second period and then went on a 5-for-6 binge from the field, keeping the Foxes in front. Grow finished with 12 points for the game — that scoring performance coming on the heels of a personal blanking against Milwaukee Lutheran.

In the fourth quarter, Wayne Bousley was inserted into the FVL lineup, and he responded with two baskets in succession to help offset Xavier's rally late in the contest.

"We tried to slow the game down, and they tried to speed it up," Kaniess explained in relation to the Hawks' comeback that brought the Xavier deficit to just three points. "We sort of lost our tempo, and our defense collapsed a little. Till we got organized again, they picked up."

The Foxes, who play at Freedom tonight, may be without the full services of guard Bill Lecker. Lecker suffered a leg sprain against Xavier and is not likely to start against the Irish.

Fox Lutheran limited Xavier's Tim O'Dell to just 10 points in Saturday's battle and dropped the Hawk ace out of the lead in the Fox Cities standings of individual point-makers.

The new leader is Kaukauna's Leon Franzke, who sports a 22.5 average after a 27-point effort in the Ghosts' 74-54 loss to Oshkosh. O'Dell is second with 21.4, and Little Chute's Steve Mollen ranks third at 20.8.

Frank Schinkis pleaded guilty before Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Branch 2. Schaefer was to sentence Schinkis on the count this afternoon.

HORTONVILLE — Extensive property damage, but apparently only minor injuries resulted Monday morning when a milk truck and farm tractor, hauling a manure spreader, collided six miles east of here on Outagamie County Trunk O.

Henry J Kreutzberg, 26, route 1, complained of various aches and pains after being thrown from the farm tractor as he drove west on O, when a truck, approaching from behind, struck the manure spreader After impact, the truck, driven by John W. Jacobs, 25, route 2, Hilbert, flipped onto its side, on top of the tractor and spreader.

County authorities estimated damage to the two vehicles and equipment at $3,100.

A 20-year-old Appleton motorist received a facial bruise early today when his auto skidded off a slippery west side street and struck a tree. James E. Thies, 1115 N. Drew St., was advised to see a doctor. Appleton police said the youth was traveling east in the 500 block of W. Glendale Avenue when the mishap occurred at 2 a m.

Frederick F Miller, 48, Neopit, sustained a leg bruise Monday afternoon when his car and one driven by Peter W. Beauprey, 64, Neopit, collided in the parking lot of Appleton Coated Paper Co Appleton police said that after the impact, one of the cars careened into a parked vehicle owned by William S. Hillman, 68, 2213 Carleton Ave , Appleton.

A false alarm sent five units of the Appleton Fire Department to the Appleton Machine Co., 618 S. Oneida St , at about 10 a m. Monday. At 3:02 p.m., fire fighters went to a home occupied by Robert Hawkins, 806¼ W. Washington St., when smoke from a rubbish-burning incinerator entered the dwelling through a heat register. The residence is owned by John Orr, 311 N. Locust St.

LITTLE CHUTE — Hietpas, Inc., Moasis Drive, has reported the theft of two step ladders from a construction project at the Bank of Little Chute.

KAUKAUNA — Charles Larson, 21, route 4, suffered a bloodied nose and a bruise to the side of his head when the car he was driving west on Draper Street left the road and struck a utility pole about 2:10 a.m. Sunday.

Police cited Larson for driving at speeds not reasonable or prudent.

KAUKAUNA — Antone Verkuilen, 66, 715 Depot St., Little Chute, pleaded guilty of unsafe backing and was fined $20 by Municipal Justice Clarence O'Connor Monday. He was arrested after being involved in a minor accident over the weekend.

Hammermill Buys Timber

Stockholders Back Acquiring 117,000 Acres in Alabama

The stockholders of Hammermill Paper Co , Erie, Pa , the parent firm of Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co , Kaukauna, have supported plans for acquiring the largest single tract of available timberlands in central Alabama.

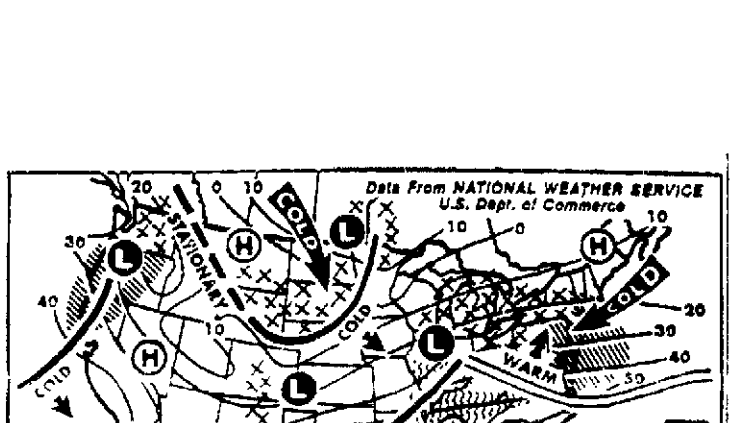
Hammermill will purchase for about $26 million all of the outstanding capital stock of W. E. Belcher Lumber Co., Centerville, Ala., whose primary asset is 117,000 acres of timberlands. About 80 per cent of the timberlands are located near Hammermill's Riverdale Division pulp mill.

The purchase was scheduled to be closed today.

Under the approved agreement, Hammermill will issue the approximately $26 million of obligations to the Belcher stockholders, payable over a period of 15 years Hammermill can make the required payments either in cash or Hammermill common stock at its current market value.

John H. DeVitt, Hammermill chairman and chief executive officer, said: "The purchase will assure a substantial future fiber supply for the company's Riverdale pulp mill. The new timberlands, when added to the $55,000 acres already owned or controlled by Hammermill in Alabama, will be operated under modern forest management practices which in the years to come should meet projected future pulpwood needs of the mill"

He added that the favorable stockholder action provides Hammermill with an opportunity to substantially increase the availability of immediate cash. Hammermill anticipates the resale of selected timberlands plus two small sawmills on the property. Addisional cash will be realized through the selective cutting and sale of sawtimber, veneer logs and pole timber on other tracts of the property.



A Broad Belt of snow flurries, rain and showers is expected to cover most of the eastern United States. Snow flurries are expected in the Rockies and Prairie states. Rain is forecast for the Pacific Coast and will change to snow flurries in the Northwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

The Case for God . . . II

Instinct Tells Man Life Needs More Than Himself

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A rose is beautiful, but this can't be proved. A song is sweet, but no formula can verify it. Love is good, and so is truth, creativity and character, but no scale nor syllogism can establish the fact.

It is an odd, enticing antic of life, brought out even more sharply in this era of engulfing techrologcal prowess, that the prime, basic values can't be captured in tests or computations.

Even the latest objective findings only deepen the puzzle. Each "known" multiplies the "unknown," said the late nuclear physicist J. Robert Oppenheimer, so that science stands "always at the edge of mystery, surrounded by it."

Yet, in the elemental promptings in man himself lie the signals of the ultimate, the insights into the incalculable, an innate "sense" of qualities expressed by the word, "God."

Without Knowledge

It is an "awareness of the ineffable," says Jewish scholar Abraham J. Heschel. Rooted in wonder, it perceives objective aspects of reality that can't be specified. "We see what we cannot say. We have a certainty without knowledge."

As a simple example, a man looks at a horse, and immediately, without analyzing it, realizes its fundamental being, its "horsehood," an essence that cannot be translated to mere size, age, color or breed.

A Brahms symphony is like that, lovely and real, yet not empirically demonstrable. So is a great painting or poem or a tree. So is truth itself, whose limits are immeasureable and whose worth is unknown.

Yet man pursues it with a relentless passion.

Thirst for Truth

He has "an unquenchable thirst or drive" to possess it, says Catholic theologian John A. Coleman. He says the only warrant for this ceaseless, unlimited "thrust to understand" is the reality of the goal itself, total truth.

And that unfathomable beacon, truth, is a name of God.

Either it stands for an actuality, for a transcendent intelligence inherent in the universe, or else the entire scientific enterprise and the questing, exploratory drive in man is chasing a mirage, and the real is not finally intelligible.

But somethng in man says it must be. "It is a commitment in the sense that it is a personal act of acceptance and affirmation of an ultimate," says Protestant theologian Langdon Gilkey.

Seeking Answer

It is an eternal questionmark stamped in man, affirming an answer, not in knowing it, but in seeking it. It is the wisdom of wonder drawn toward the full light, God. Catholic philosopher Jacques Maritain called it "metaphysical intuition."

Biologist Emund W. Sinnot says there is evidence of a "goal-seeking character in protoplasm where spirit and matter meet," reflected in man's will, thought and aspirations, indicating "something that may truly be called spiritual."

Besides the tug of truth, the reality of other principles associated with God are woven into the very fabric of existence, although they cannot be validated by laboratory methods.

The universe is so constituted that human growth demands love and character, although why it is that way cannot be rationally explained except by assuming that love and character are basic to it.

Develop Potential

For a person to develop his potential, he needs both to be loved and to love, a nurturing that curiously combines the force both of the giver and receiver of love into a larger creativity, so it's hard to tell who really accomplished it.

But without love, lives become stunted, crippled by distrust, suspicion and fear.

"God is love," John's Gospel put it.

Growth also requires the disciplining that produces character, its traits of perseverence, cooperativeness, generosity, honesty and courage. These are forged by the failures that spur fortitude and reform as much as by successes that bring hope and greater good.

Ingrained Reasons

Protestant philosopher Peter A. Bertocci says that the "main conditions" for man's development—love, thought, character—are ingrained fundamentally both in man's makeup and his environment although he invented either himself.

Yet they are genuine, and they also are hallmarks of God.

But men also have extensive free will to choose their courses of action, so that their decisions merge with the given conditions in shaping the results, a creative role people would not have if they were mere puppets of circumstance.

Their right of decision is their "God-like" dignity, and also their danger.

They often plainly misuse it, defying the guidelines of their environment, blundering, hating, warring, polluting, binding themselves evil and waste. Depth psychology says man is his own worst enemy. Yet, without responsible options, he would have no vital part at all in the world, and learn nothing from it.

Less Than Man

If he could flout the growth-enhancing conditions surrounding him without effect, if he could plant potatoes and reap corn, if he could fight, cheat and exploit in dog-eat-dog fashion, live by volcanos, build suffocating cities and keep his children in fire-trap slums without bearing the consequences, the beneficial lessons of reality would be lost on him, leaving only chaos and absurdity, and man would be less than man.

He bears the "image" of the freedom of God, and shares in responsibility for it, however he distorts it.

The atheist says it is all meaningless, purposeless happenstance, although oddly, that he himself has purpose. Actually, if reality is not fundamentally trustworthy and only threatening chance, a man can only withdraw into distrustful defensiveness and vigilant wariness.

But instinct says the basic stuff of life can be trusted that it's dependable and meaningful, so a man can tackle it with zest and confidence.

Realize Wholeness

Another clue lies in man's sense of incompleteness and the strange potency of encounter between persons, each searching for self-confirmation in the other, a kind of interaction that can bring the hidden, fragmented self into greater realizaton of wholeness.

Jewish philosopher Martin Buber says that through this interpersonal blending of "I" with "Thou", there emerges an in-between reality that surpasses both lives, a "glimpse through to the Eternal Thou."

In short, a person knows, instinctively, his life requires more than itself.

"All real life is meeting," Buber says. "All reality is fulfilled unification." Partial completion in others point to the "Wholly Other." "If you hallow this life, you meet the living God."

American psychologist-theologian James Hillman says that "deep analysis leads to a strange dark center where it is difficult to differentiate the unconscious from the soul and from the image of God."

From his experimental research into psyhic phenomena, psychologist J. B. Rhine concluded that there is "something operative in man that transcends the law of matter," functioning on a "nonphysical or spiritual" plane.

Lutheran sociologist Peter L. Berger, in his book, "A Rumor of Angels," cited transcendant signs in the phenomena of man's humor, his play, his hopefulness in the face of death, his spontaneous trustfulness in reality.

To those for whom reality does reflect dependability, purpose and beauty, and seems graciously supportive of man's growth, they can act in it with hope, courage and thanksgiving.

They can have, as Paul Tillich put it, the "courage to be."

But if the world is sheer nonsense, without meaning, intelligence or point, then only the nihilism of despair is possible. However, reasoning, evidence and intuition is never enough to know. These are only God-given invitations. It takes a response, a free man's decision.

Diabetes Development Rarely Comes Rapidly

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send me your booklet, "Diabetes, The Sneaky Disease," for which I enclose 35 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

And I guess thát is just what it is — a sneaky disease. Could it be brought on by medicines which I am taking, and am told I must take for the rest of my life, after having a heart attack?

I am going through a very traumatic time, what with losing many relatives and friends, to say nothing of having a pregnant, unmarried granddaughter whom I now have on my hands. It is hard to stop being emotionally involved when these things happen in such rapid succession.

I am told I am a borderline diabetic and was given a diet to follow. — M. D. E.

Yes, it's a sneaky disease, and rarely comes on suddenly, the exception being in children or adolescents who can develop severe diabetes with considerable rapidity — although even in them, I suspect that signs could be discovered early if only some clue appeared to lead us to look for them.

The fact is that the cause of diabetes is not known. Obesity tends to bring on diabetes — particularly if the person has a tendency toward that disease to start with. Both physical and emotional trauma appear to have a similar effect — bringing potential diabetes into being, or aggravating it.

Medicines such as you are taking for your heart will not cause or otherwise influence the diabetes. Neither will tranquilizers.

A good many people who have heart attacks are found to have diabetes of which they were unaware, and there is evidence that diabetes, particularly untreated diabetes, plays some role in making people more likely to have heart trouble — one of many good reasons why we must be on our guard against this sneaky disease.

You are, obviously, under a considerable emotional burden, but I can offer you this solace for what it is worth: if you were merely given a diet to follow, your physician must have found you as having mild diabetes which can be kept under control without the use of medication or insulin in addition.

It is essential that you follow the diet, though.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: An "action line" column which answers questions for the public had a letter asking about silicone injections for the breast. The answer was that silicone was illegal but there was something new out, and to "ask her doctor." Can you tell us what it is or what type of doctor would do it? — Mrs. O. W.

The answer was correct in that silicone injections for that purpose are not sanctioned; I would have no idea what was meant by "something new." Plastic surgeons can implant silicone-filled sacks to build up the breasts, but that isn't exactly "new." The sacks keep the silicone from changing shape and prevent it from coming in direct contact with the fatty breast tissue. That is an accepted procedure, but it does, obviously, involve a surgical operation. Silicone for medical use is under investigation but is not ready to use.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am deeply worried about the threat of pesticides, DDT and others. How much residue are we getting on fruits and vegetables from our local markets? Do the pesticides permeate the whole apple or carrot or tomato, or can they be thoroughly washed off? — Mrs. G. W.

The pesticides are sprayed on, and not absorbed, so thorough washing will keep fruits and vegetables safe.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of my booklet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Hungry Gorillas Eat Decorations and Tree

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It was a great Christmas party for four adult gorillas and a 7-month-old baby. They ate everything, including the tree.

It was planned that way at Eleischnacher Zoo. An acacia tree was decorated with riceballs garnished with raisins, all tied on with licorice strings.

"They just love acacia," Beverly Rongoren, secretary to zoo director Ron Reuther explained Monday. "Regular Christmas trees are not so tasty."

Two Officers In Defector Case Retire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senior Coast Guard officers have taken retirement rather than face courts-martial for their part in the abortive defection attempt of a Lithuanian sailor.

But the officers, Rear Adm. William B. Ellis, 56, and Capt. Fletcher W. Brown Jr., 50, face a congressional committee next Tuesday in the case of would-be defector Simas I. Kudirka.

Russian seamen forcibly pulled Kudirka aboard their adjacent vessel after he jumped to the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Vigilant in U.S. territorial waters off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., last month.

Decision Criticized

Rep. Wyane L. Hays called outrageous a decision Monday by Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe to let the officers retire and thus evade court-martial proceedings.

The Ohio Democrat said he wants Ellis and Brown to appear before his House foreign operations subcommittee to "find out what makes them think like this." Brown was acting commander of the First Coast Guard District in Boston and Ellis, the commander, was on sick leave when Kudirka attemoted defection.

A report of a formal Coast Guard investigation sharply criticizes the two officers and also declares the State Department "did not furnish ... adequate, helpful or timely advice to deal properly with this defection."

Dereliction

Adm. C. R. Bender, the Coast Guard commandant, issued findings based on the report that called for court-martialing both men on charges of dereliction.

But Bender said he would drop the charges if the pair retired immediately.

Volpe noted the officers submitted retirement requests, told Bender not to press charges and agreed with Bender they should receive punitive letters of reprimand.

Brown and Ellis now "appreciate fully their serious error of judgment, ... have been subjected to extrene castigation from many quarters in this nation," and, with their families, have suffered, Volpe said.

Need Regretted

Volpe said he regretted "very deeply that a young man had to lose his chance for freedom in order to bring to light deficiencies in government procedures for welcoming victims of oppression to American soil." He added that new procedures should prevent the incident of Nov. 23 from happening again.

A spokesman for the Transportation Department, which runs the Coast Guard, said the careers of Ellis and Brown will end by Jan. 31, but could not say immediately what their pensions will be.

Volpe kept with Bender's finding that Cmdr. Ralph W. Eustis, the commander of the Vigilant, should get an administrative letter of reprimand and be reassigned.

The spokesman described an administrative letter as "a slap on the hand" and said Eustis already had received reassignment orders last July for a change in duty starting next March.

Bearing Brunt

Eustis is "being made the goat in this whole thing," Hays declared. "His career is shot. And they're letting the other two retire with pensions."

The Coast Guard's report on the incident and Bender's conclusions state, in part:

—Kudirka clearly indicated three times to Vigilant officers he wanted to defect. Hidden in a cigarette package Kudirka slipped a Vigilant officer was this message in broken English: "My dear Comrade I will up down of Russians ship and go with you together. If is a possible please give me signal I keep a sharp lookout—Simas."

Fishing Talks

—Ellis told Brown, "If we get the defector, we should give him back" because, in part, a defection might interrupt talks on U.S. fishing industry complaints over the Russians taking too many yellow-tailed flounders off New England coasts. When Brown told Ellis that Kudirka's life was in jeopardy from the Russians, Ellis said, "I don't think we have any reason to believe this. They (the Russians) are not barbarians."

—Brown should have "exercized independently his authority as acting district commander," but "he was markedly influenced in his course of action by the forceful advice" of Ellis, Bender said. The report recommended court-martial for Brown's failure "to inform the commandant of the progress in the case" and to keep Kudirka on the Vigilant until he had proper advice.

—Eustis erred in allowing Russian crewmen "to exercise any control of the defector while on board the Vigilant," Bender declared.

Hanoi Releases Prisoners' Names

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said today North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris have given to a Washington lawyer a list of the names of 368 American prisoners of war.

Kennedy said the names, described by the North Vietnamese as an official prisoner list, were turned over to John Nolan, an attorney formerly with the Department of Justice.

Hanoi has previously released through U.S. antiwar groups the names of 339 U.S. servicemen it says it is holding. The Pentagon lists 454 men as probable prisoners of the North Vietnamese.

There was no way immediately to compare the new list with those given out previously.

Kennedy told a news conference he does not have the list of names. He said Nolan, who does, is returning to Washington with it.

The Massachusetts senator said he sent Nolan to Paris in response to the invitation of the North Vietnamese.

Kennedy said he does not know whether the list is a complete one. He said the list given Nolan also included the names of 20 men identified as American prisoners who died in captivity, and nine men released.

It listed the date of capture, date of death or date of release, he said.

Nolan received the list at a meeting today with North Vietnamese representatives in Paris, Kennedy said. The meeting lasted an hour and 15 minutes.

Kennedy said Nolan read him the list, and took it to David K.E. Bruce, chief U.S. negotiator in the Paris peace talks.

In addition, Kennedy said he telephoned Secretary of State William P. Rogers, and also called the White House, although he did not speak directly with President Nixon.

Lists Accuracy

"I have no way of knowing at this time the accuracy of that list," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said the invitation came in response to a letter he sent June 23 to Ton Duc Thang, president of North Vietnam, asking that the prisoners be identified, that they be permitted to send and receive mail, and that the ill and wounded be released through a neutral nation.

Kennedy said he did not know the identity of the North Vietnamese representatives with whom Nolan met.

He distributed at a news conference copies of a telegram signed by Mai Van Bo, head of the North Vietnamese mission in Paris.

Bo Invitation

It invited Kennedy or his authorized representative to meet Bo in Paris before Dec. 23, 1970.

"I will hand over letter and documents included from Ton Duc Thang, President DRVN, in reply to your letter regarding question American captured pilots," the telegram added. "I wait for your answer."

Kennedy said he asked Nolan to represent him, and the lawyer flew to Paris Monday night, meeting today with the North Vietnamese.

Nolan, Kennedy said, was one of the negotiators involved in the release of prisoners captured by Cuba at the time of the Bay of Pigs invasion attempt, during the administration of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy said what Nolan received was "strictly a list," with no hint as to the possibility of release for the men it named.

"I would put absolutely no interpretation on it other than the facts as they are," Kennedy said.

Adjournment Nears

Second Attempt to Break Filibuster on SST Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate backers of a faster-than-sound jet liner failed again today to break a filibuster holding up continued federal subsidies for it.

The roll call on the cloture vote came shortly before Congress was scheduled to quit work for a long Christmas weekend, its work still unfinished.

The vote was 44 to 42, short of the necessary two-thirds of the members present and voting, to invoke cloture.

Before the vote, SST supporters said the technological "future of the United States is at stake" in the question of whether $210 million in federal funds will be used to subsidize further development of the 1,800 mile an hour, 300-passenger supersonic transport.

And opponents, led by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., continued to tick off their list of charges against the project: It will endanger the environment, make too much noise, all but exhaust U.S. petroleum reserves, and not help the U.S. economy in any important way.

Proxmire, however, said he is willing to consider a compromise on the impasse to allow the Senate to get on to other matters. But he said the House is adamant in its refusal to compromise.

Republican leader Hugh Scott also had compromise on his mind as he said before the vote that once it was over he supposed both sides would retire to a private room and renew the bidding.

Scott said he believes the dispute could be settled by providing for continued SST spending at the present rate until the early part of next year—perhaps March.

A showdown then, he said, could be held against the background of a clearer unders anding, hopefuls'o of the environmental charges that have bd) ing65main albatross around the project's neck.

Chase Manhattan

Prime Rate Cut

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank today reduced its prime rate to 6¾ per cent from 7 per cent, saying that there has been a decline in market rates and a "generally moderate" demand for loans in the last four weeks.

Chase had initiated a drop in the prime rate—the interest it charges its biggest and most creditworthy borrowers—four weeks ago, from 7¼ to 7 per cent.

Two big New York City banks, First National City and Chemical New York, went along with the rate reduction, which was the fifth this year.

Also trimming the rate was Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis. Cleveland Trust Co. said it may announce a cut Wednesday.

The bank said it was acting in line with its policy of "keeping a flexible prime rate that is fully responsive to money market rates."

"We believe that this reduction is justified by the decline in market rates and the generally moderate loan demand in the four weeks since we last reduced the prime rate," the bank said.

The commercial banks have reduced the prime rate in progressive steps since it reached a record 8½ per cent in June of 1969.

The Citizens & Southern National Bank of Atlanta quickly joined Chase in cutting the rate to 6¾ per cent from 7 per cent.

Angela Davis Sent to California for Trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Angela Davis was whisked from the Women's House of Detention under heavy police guard early today for extradition to California where she faces murder and kidnap charges in connection with a courtroom shootout.

Officials waited until 3:05 a.m.—11 hours after a stay of extradition granted her in federal court had expired—before taking the black militant former UCLA philosophy instructor from the Greenwich Village jail.

Local, state and National Guard security personnel handled her transfer to a Department of Correction van. Federal officials denied earlier reports federal personnel were involved in the transfer.

Escorted by 10 police cars, the van sped downtown to the Holland Tunnel where the westbound tube had been closed to all traffic.

Air Force Base

New Jersey State Police confirmed they picked up the caravan shortly after 3:30 a.m. and led it to McGuire Air Force Base. A spokesman for the Air Force said he could "neither confirm nor deny" that Miss Davis boarded an airplane at the base.

However, it was learned that Miss Davis' plane took off from McGuire at 5:30 a.m.

Tight security measures were in force throughout the transfer and police told newsmen they were under strict orders not to disclose details of the operation.

Miss Davis, a self-described Communist, is under indictment in connection with the escape attempt of San Quentin prisoners from the Marin County Courthouse in San Rafael, Calif., on Aug. 7.

In a blazing gun battle, a judge held hostage was shot to death and three men involved in the escape were killed.

Miss Davis, 26, is accused of buying guns used in the breakout attempt and was indicted for conspiracy as well as murder and kidnaping.

Most Wanted List

She disappeared after the shootout and was later placed on the FBI's Most Wanted List. A nationwide hunt ended when she was arrested with a male companion at a midtown motel here Oct. 13.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller signed extradition papers but they had been stayed while Miss Davis' lawyer made a series of appeals which reached the U.S. Supreme Court Monday.

Then Justice John Harlan declined to halt the extradition and the last stay granted by the U.S. District Court expired in the afternoon.

When Harlan's decision became known, two dozen young pickets gathered at the Women's House of Detention and held a protest demonstration against returning Miss Davis to California.

In San Rafael, County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney told newsmen Monday that the sheriff's office will enforce strict security measures to insure the safety of Miss Davis and the security of the Marin County jail.

Blamed for Deaths of 781,000 Jews

Treblinka Commandant Convicted as Nazi Criminal

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP) — Franz Stangl, the SS commander of Hitler's Treblinka death camp in Poland, was convicted today of the murder of hundreds of thousands of Jews and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Stangl, now 62, who ran Treblinka in 1942-3, was arrested in Brazil in 1967. Simon Wiesenthal, director of the Vienna Jewish Documentation Center and the man who tracked down Adolf Eichmann, had placed Stangl third on the list of wanted Nazi war criminals after Eichmann's execution in Israel. The first two, Hitler's deputy Martin Bormann and Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller, still have not been accounted for.

Treblinka, about 60 miles northeast of Warsaw, ranked just behind Auschwitz in the chain of extermination camps the Nazis set up in Poland. Polish authorities say 781,000 persons died in Treblinka between July 1942 and October 1943.

Stangl also commanded the Sobibor camp in Poland, but his activities there were not considered in the trial. He was accused of ordering the deaths of 400,000 Jews and other persons shipped to Treblinka from Poland, the Soviet Union, France, Belgium, Greece, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Austria and Germany.

He was captured after World War II but escaped and made his way through Italy and Syria to South America. When arrested he was employed at the Volkswagen factory in Sao Paulo and was living there under his own name.

Trial in Austria

The Brazilians agreed to extradite him only on condition that if a life sentence resulted at the trial, it would be commuted to a leser sentence so he could also be tried in his native Austria.

During his seven-month trial, Stangl told the court he had only done his duty while in command at Treblinka. He complained during the trial of lack of sleep and high blood pressure.

A spokesman for the North Rhine-Westphalia Justice Ministry said the Brazilian condition would be met: the state's chief executive has the power to reduce Stangl's sentence anywhere from 5 to 50 years, paving the way for extradition to Austria. The spokesman said the executive would act only after receiving a commutation petition through official channels.

In Vienna, an Austrian Justice Ministry official said Austria would apply for extradition only after Stangl had served his German sentence.

Presumably, West German officials would ask for the commutation of the sentence.

Concern Expressed

New London Will Learn Cost of Safety Building

NEW LONDON — Long efforts of the city council and taxpayers will be rewarded tonight when they learn from contractors just what their new safety building will cost.

The city found out in March of 1968, that it either had to remodel or rebuild the fire station of city hall. Further study showed that it would be better to rebuild than to remodel, since the costs were estimated to be close.

In the March order the city was told to have plans by May 15, and to make the repairs by June 15, 1968. Later it was given an extension to Jan. 1, 1970, and further extensions to Jan. 1, 1971.

Some Concern

Now, after further deliberation and study the council has gone through the process of designing and letting bids on a Safety Building, which is a combination police and fire station.

The building was estimated to cost about $212,000 compared to estimates on earlier plans of about $252,200. However, after the bids were opened Monday night, several councilmen indicated concern about the costs of the building.

Mayor Sigurd W. Krostue had pointed out at a previous council meeting that the building costs may be high, due to the high wage scale set by the state. Common labor starts at over $4, and skilled labor goes as high as $10.

The city has bonded for $185,000 for the construction of the building, and aldermen were of the opinion previously that the building costs of $212,000 could be met.

Seek Alternate

They were also asking an alternate bid on an annex to the building. The annex would include council chamber and city offices.

Tonight the council will hear from the contractors as to the actual costs of the building. They will be meeting in a special adjourned meeting for the benefit of finding out what the building will cost.

Krostue had told the council at an earlier meeting that he didn't "hold much hope for the offices, unless we (the council) have a real favorable bid.

The meeting will be held in the council chambers at 8 p.m.

In New Orleans

Clintonville Boy Wins 3rd In Punt, Pass, Kick Contest

CLINTONVILLE — Mike Jirschele won a third place when he competed Sunday at New Orleans in the 10th annual Ford sponsored Punt, Pass and Kick semi-finals in the 11 year old age group.

Seventy-eight boys competed in the semi-finals, 13 in each age group. First place winner in Mike's age group was Kim Webb, Louisville, Miss., and second place was Dave Pagel, Blissfield, Mich. The scores for the top three, respectively, were 301, 299½ and 291½. Mike was the second smallest boy in his group.

The 291½ is the second highest score Mike has recorded in his four years of Punt, Pass and Kick competition. Mike has progressed one step closer to the finals every year, with 10 trophies now to his credit, "much experience behind him and the never ending desire to win," commented Ron Kautz of Clintonville Motors, Inc., who with Mike's dad, Don Jirschele, accompanied Mike on the trip.

The weekend began for the trio with a flight from Green Bay to New Orleans Saturday. The plane's takeoff was delayed for four hours and when the travelers arrived, they found their baggage had been mixed up on later flights. It did not arrive until much later Saturday night.

Meet Saints

A banquet was held Saturday night with guests from the New Orleans Saints in attendance. Among them were Ed Harget, the team's young quarterback; Julian Fagan, the holder of the best punting average in the National Football League, and Tom Dempsey, who kicked the record 63 yard field goal.

After a 7 a.m. breakfast Sunday the boys were taken to the Saints' training camp for their competition (where Mike was third). The group was then taken to Tulane Stadium where the two top boys in each age group competed during the Saints' National Football League game with the Chicago Bears. The champion won with a low score of 262.

They were all guests at the football game which the Bears won from the Saints 24-3.

Kautz said the competition for the boys was the toughest he had seen, as well over a million boys were already eliminated before the semi-finals.

He mentioned there was one 10-year-old who was six feet tall, and a 12-year-old who was too big for any uniform so had to get one from the Saints. The six winners from New Orleans compete against the American Football winners on Jan. 24 at the All-Star game in Los Angeles.

Lutherans Plan Unique Program

BRILLION — Children in the day school and Sunday School of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church will present the Christmas Eve services.

A unique feature of the services, scheduled for 6 and 7 p.m., will be the display and explanations of Christmas symbols. These symbols were prepared on banners by the school faculty which will be unveiled as the service progresses.

Several of the songs which will be used in the service were especially arranged by the faculty for the children's voices.

The Rev. Arden Stuebs is pastor and James Tank is school principal.

Amherst Coop Names Manager

AMHERST — Burt Benjamin will become manager of the Tomorrow River Cooperative after the first of the year.

His appointment follows on the heels of the resignation of Gary Lund.

Benjamin, a cooperative department manager in Black River Falls, has recently completed a six month Midland Management program.

Benjamin, his wife and three youngsters, will move here as soon as a place is available.

Paper Industry Responds estimated costs of various kinds of treatment that might be necessary if we find after treatment is installed further steps need to be taken."

He noted the report ignored many factors and failed to differentiate between the sulfite emitting mills and the groundwood mills. The latter are as much less serious pollution threat, he said, noting that K-C had closed down sulfite operations at Niagara and Kimberly several years ago.

The groundwood mills dispose wood particles but no chemicals, he said.

The K-C spokesman also noted contradictory statements in the report. In one paragrapn it said K-C was accepting responsibility for conrolling pollution, and two paragraphs later, it said the exact opposite, he said.

He said that neither mill in Wisconsin was visited by the council but that only questionnaires were filled out.

The report said that Consolidated, which has an Appleton plant and numerous operations on the Wisconsin River, should spend at least $9 million at its five mills to stop water pollution. It cited specifically the dust from the byproduct manufacture at its Appleton plant and said this could be reduced by changing fuel and installing scrubbers.

George Mead II, Consolidated president, said that the firm is undertaking an extensive abatement program, and therefore, the report is out of date. The measures urged are being taken or are planned, he responded.

Donald Pryor, manager of environmental control, said that the second of three scrubbing units would be installed this week, and the third by early next year.

"This should take care of any air pollution problems at that division," he said.

Notes Expenditures

He said the water pollution problem is more serious, and although the firm has spent $2.2 million to remove 75 per cent of the biological oxygen demand of effluents at the Appleton mill, it is still without engineering answers to increase that to nearly 100 per cent.

"We'll try to meet the 1972 deadline," he said, "But it's going to be very difficult."

He noted that more money has been spent on the Appleton division than the others but the reduction of BOD "still remains as oCnsolidated's biggest problem."

Pryor also suggested that the report was narrow. He noted that paper mill pollution isn't a hazard to human health, and suggested that the report didn't provide for a balance of priorities.

A spokesman for Thilmany said the firm didn't have a copy of the report, hadn't been contacted by the council and hadn't heard of either the council or the report. But the firm is seeking to learn where it received its information, and then will comment, he added.

He also noted that Thilmany was working towards compliance with the state's 1972 orders.

The report had said Hammermill attitude toward pollution was to "take minimum initiative and do nothing until the state insists on it."

It said it would cost $2.75 million to provide the water treatment equipment at Thilmany to control pollution of the Fox River.

Statistics Cited

The report cited statistics showing that all of the mills on the Fox dumped wastes into the river equivalent to the sewage of 2.6 million people.

The council, which also made a study on the production of war materials, includes a board of consultants. On it are George Wald, Nobel prize winning Harvard biologist and environmentalist Barry Commoner, director of the Center for the Biology of Natural Systems.

The group studied 17 mills in Wisconsin, more than any other state. Eight companies operate these mills, including Scott Paper Co. and Great Northern Nekoosa Corp.

Point Beach Nuclear Plant Now Operating

First of Two Units Put Into Service At Two Creeks Site

TWO CREEKS — Unit 1 at the Point Beach Nuclear Plant in the Town of Two Creeks was placed in commercial operation Monday, substantially strengthening area power reserves.

The announcement was made by Wisconsin Michigan Power Co (WMPCO) and Wisconsin Electric Power Co., Milwaukee, joint owners of the plant on the shore of Lake Michigan eight miles north of Two Rivers.

"Operation of the nuclear plant brings the two companies' generating reserves to about 24 per cent," J. K. Babbitt, vice president and general manager, said. "The total system capability has increased from 2,740,900 kilowatts to 3,208,200 kilowatts."

Point Beach is the 19th operating nuclear power plant in the United States. Unit 2 at Point Beach is scheduled for service next fall. Unit 1 is the largest single generating unit in Wisconsin, with a total capacity of 497,000 kilowatts.

"During startup and testing in recent weeks, the unit has been up to levels as high as 450,000 kilowatts," Babbitt said. "During that period the unit has produced a total of 177,250,000 kilowatt-hours."

Power from Unit 1 will provide approximately 17 per cent of the total generating capability of the two companies.

Started Nov. 2

The self-sustained fission process inside the reactor was started Nov. 2, less than a month after the Atomic Energy Commission issued an operating license for the plant on Oct. 5. Babbitt said since that time the reactor portion of Unit 1 has performed very well.

"Most of the adjustments during the testing period involved the operation of the turbine-generator, part of the conventional portion of the plant." He added that these procedures are normal and that no major setbacks were encountered.

Babbitt said that nuclear power provides a new fuel source "highly compatible with the environment. Only six pounds of nuclear fuel is required to provide the energy contained in 9,000 tons of coal."

Most of the power in the combined electric systems of the two companies has been generated at coal-burning plants in the southeastern part of the state. However, two smaller Milwaukee-area plants have been converted to natural gas and oil. In addition, WMPCO operates 13 hydroelectric plants in northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

Begin In 1966

Construction of Point Beach began in November, 1966, Babbitt noted. The unit became commercially operational five years after the primary contract was signed, and four years, one month after groundbreaking."

The total cost for both units, including nuclear fuel, will be approximately $193 million.

WMPCO personnel operate the plant under the direction of Glenn A. Reed, manager of the nuclear power division.

State Faces Muddle Over Age 18 Vote

MILWAUKEE (AP)— A U.S. Supreme Court decision which reduces the voting age minimum to 18 in federal elections has confronted Wisconsin with the likelihood that it will have to tangle with dual ballots in 1972.

One ballot would serve presidential and congressional elections in accord with Monday's ruling. State and local elections would require separate balloting in the absence of a Wisconsin age minimum of 18.

Legislators pondering the multifarious headache suggested there would even have to be three basic ballots as well as dual voter registration lists and a thorough legislative review of voter residency requirements.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles said the ruling will "greatly complicate our situation in Wisconsin." He urged legislators to take steps "at the earliest possible moment" to bring the state's voting age requirements in line with the new federal limit.

Members of the Assembly Elections Committee said November, 1972, seems to be the earliest because any voting age change is going to require voter approval in a referendum.

The state Constitution, which specifies a Wisconsin voting age minimum of 21, authorizes an age-changing franchise referendum only during a general election. An amendment would need approval in one legislative session prior to the referendum.

Special Session

Of course the legislature happens to be in special session this week. Were it to use the occasion to recall the adjourned 1969 regular session, it might initiate an amendment.

A referendum might be set up for the election in November, 1972.

Rep. Frederick Kessler of Milwaukee, senior Democrat on the Elections Committee and a front-runner for selection as the committee's chairman next year, said this Supreme Court ruling raises a particularly bothersome question concerning the 1972 presidential preference primary.

Ruling Needed

Kessler said he suspects there may have to be an attorney general's ruling on whether the primary is a federal or state election. It could require a court ruling as to whether Wisconsin voters less than 21 can vote in the primary, he said.

There are estimates that Wisconsin has 200,000 residents between the ages of 18 and 21.

Some politicians have shown concern that a lowered voting age automatically creates new voting blocs in college towns. Temporary resident enrollments, outnumbering permanent residents in some cases, could seriously influence the outcome of municipal issues with which they aren't really familiar.

Cities Listed

Kessler listed River Falls, Whitewater and Platteville as college towns whose university enrollments might outweigh non-student populations.

Even Madison, as big as it is, would be confronted by a University of Wisconsin voting bloc of possibly 30,000 votes and more.

State Rep. James Sensenbrenner Jr., currently the Republican chairman of the Assembly Elections Committee, agreed the Supreme Court ruling produces "an administrative monstrosity."

Unless the state voting age is altered, he said, there will have to be a ballot for those "who will be able to vote for all offices, and another for those 18-20 who will only be able to vote in presidential and congressional elections."

Both Sensenbrenner and Kessler said they are ready to sponsor the necessary legislation.

Alternate Possible

Kessler said the state Constitution allows the legislature to extend the franchise to 18-year-olds without a constitutional amendment, but acknowledged that too might have to be settled in court.

In any case, the ultimate age change would still be subject to a general election referendum.

Kessler sees the problem expanding into something more confusing than just dual ballots.

State law, he said, calls for two ballots in a national election already. One is for the presidential race, the other for remaining offices.

"We will now be compelled to print a third ballot, only containing the name of the congressman, to be given only to the new enfranchised voters," he said.

"The Wisconsin voter will be so confused by the many ballots that will be given to him that he may give up in disgust," Kessler said.

The ruling seems also to mean there will have to be separate voter registration lists and separate registration procedures.

Of the "multiple problems, the most serious," Kessler said, "will be the maintenance of dual voter lists."

Machine May Help

Leo Fahey, state elections supervisor, said cities with voting machines may be able to get along by setting aside a special bank of machines to handle voters less than 21.

The creation of under-21 voting blocs in college towns, Kessler said, is going to mean that any legislation will have to deal thoroughly with voter residency requirements.

English Classes Present Plays

CLINTONVILLE — Christmas plays with both the traditional and contemporary themes were presented by Mrs. Ed Heideman's English students Wednesday.

The eighth grade gave "Puppy Love" for the third and fourth grade students in fifth hour.

The ninth grade third hour students presented "S.O.S. from Santa" to the first and second grade students. The play depicted all holidays in the year and their contributions to the Christmas spirit. Costumes and scenery were made by members of the class not included in the play cast.

Seventh hour ninth grade students presented a contemporary play "Video Christmas" to the fifth and sixth grade students.

The traditional "Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens was presented by the second hour ninth grade students, while the sixth hour students portrayed two plays, "The Christmas Spirit" and "Silent Night". It gave the story of the famous Christmas song written by Father Joseph Mohr and accompanied by his faithful organist, Franz Gruber.

All seventh, eighth and ninth grade English students were invited to the plays produced by their fellow students. Each class originated its own programs, costumes and scenery.

conduct an investigation and a criminal complaint can be filed through the district attorney's office.

Close Vigilance

The county traffic department will continue a close vigilance on traffic regulations for snowmobiles. "The boom on snowmobiles is almost as big as it is on power boats," commented Capt. John Penney. "We will enforce the traffic regulations."

In a brief rundown of these regulations under the present law, Capt. Penney enumerated:

1. Crossing of multiple lane highways (except federal interstate highways must be at right angles to the roadway, and then only after stopping and yielding the right of way to all vehicles approaching on the highway.

2. No snowmobile shall be operated upon the main traveled portion of any highway or town road, except when necessary to cross a bridge or culvert, or in a declared emergency, or prearranged special event.

3. Snowmobiles may be operated adjacent to highways or town roads 10 or more feet outside the traveled portion of the roadway; during daylight hours in either direction of traffic; and at night, they shall conform to the flow of traffic. Travel on or along the median of divided highways is prohibited.

No Age Limit

4. There is no age limit for the operation of a snowmobile, except that no person under 12 shall drive a snowmobile across any highway and no person under the age of 16 shall drive a snowmobile across any state trunk highway or connecting street

5. Head lamps and tail lamps are to be on during daylight hours on or in the vicinity of highways or townroads, and anywhere during darkness.

6. Reasonable and proper speed must be maintained under all circumstances.

7. No person shall operate a snowmobile in a careless way so as to endanger the person or property of another; while under the infuence of intoxicating liquor, fermented malt beverages, narcotics or other drugs; in such a way that the exhaust makes an excessive or unusual noice, or without a functioning muffler.

Penalties Set

Penalties range from $10 to $20 for the first offense, and $25 to $50 for the second or subsequent offense within a year.

Warden Rex Oatman will be concerned with three major portions of law enforcement: registration, illegal carrying of weapons and the pursuit of game

"We are going to cooperate with traffic and the sheriff's department on all phases of the law and I'm sure they will with us," he said.

The City of Marion is the first in Waupaca County to write its own ordinance on snowmobiling. All units of government have the right to supplement state law.

Paper Industry Replies to Charges

The American Paper Institute and Fox Valley area paper companies included in a report charging the industry isn't meeting in pollution abatement responsibilities have defended their efforts and suggest the report was narrow in its viewpoint.

The eight-month study said the 24 major paper companies are polluting the air and water of many states, including Wisconsin, at a staggering level.

Fox Valley area plants of Kimberly-Clark Corp., Consolidated Papers, Inc., American Can Co. and Hammermill Paper Co. were cited.

Spokesman of K-C, Consolidated and Hammermill, which has Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., Kaukauna, as a division, said they were working to meet December, 1972 state abatement orders.

American Can's Neenah operation isn't a paper mill and apparently was cited in the report. However, the report noted inadequacies in its Green Bay and Rothschild operations.

The study was conducted by the Council on Economic Priorities, a nonprofit corporation founded last year to promote corporate responsibility. Its goal is to allow individuals and organizations to pressure businesses it believes aren't exercising proper responsibility in solving problems including pollution.

It studied 24 firms, including 17 mills in Wisconsin, for eight months. The report said that companies would have to spend about $750 million for the most effective equipment to cure pollution.

Edwin A. Locke Jr., paper institute president, said the report was one-sided but added "there can be no question that every industry whose operations affect the environment have an obligation to keep pollution from its facilities to a practical minimum, and to work as rapidly toward this goal as economics and technology permit."

"The accuracy of some of the data contained in the report is open to question, but its shortcoming in this respect are less important than the narrowness of its viewpoint," Locke said. "The picture that the report presents of an industry standing separate from society around it and polluting the biosphere is so incomplete as to be misleading."

Efforts Ignored

He noted that, specifically, the report failed to note past industry expenditures for abatement and the trend of expenditures which would cause spending soon to exceed the outlays suggested in the report.

He also noted the report failed to recognize the complexity of the problem, including government policy and unemployment; time and engineering limitations, and the advancement resulting from group research financed by the pulp and paper industry.

The report said that Kimberly-Clark should be spending another $1 million each on its pulping plants at Kimberly and Niagara for additional secondary treatment. Its other three pulping mills outside of Wisconsin would be brought up to satisfactory pollution abatement standards, but not its two Wisconsin ones, the report said.

A K-C spokesman said the report was basically favorable for K-C except for comments on the two plants. He noted that K-C plans to spend $4 million at Kimberly and $1.5 million at Niagara, and surely won't expend any more money until it sees the effectiveness of that degree of treatment.

Orders Cited

He said that would bring K-C into conformity with state standards. The firm is under a state order to make the improvements by 1972.

Knowles Designates COG Clearinghouse

The Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) has been designated by the governor as the lone official clearinghouse to review all individual community applications for federal grants in the COG metropolitan region.

While its review and comment don't constitute veto power, there is a trend among federal and state agencies to rely on the review of a regional clearinghouse in making its final decision on whether to grant funding for projects.

Gov. Warren Knowles, in announcing the designation, said that since COG members' problems are mainly metropolitan in nature, "it is appropriate that the Fox Valley Council of Governments assume the basic clearinghouse responsibility relative to this area."

He lauded COG's "fine record of performance" and urged it to coordinate its clearinghouse activities with Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission. COG and Northeastern have both reviewed grant applications and projects up to now.

Eugene Franchett, COG executive director, said that COG will expand its review activities in all projects, including sewer, water and solid waste disposal. Reviews are requested to assure state and federal agencies that a community's individual project conforms with the regional plan.

Boosts Delegates

"The importance of the designation is that it's a recognition of the COG delegates, who are top officials of each member municipality, for determining priorities and needs for this region," he said.

He noted that it strengthened the influence of COG and its delegates on the development of the region.

The governor was authorized to make the designation by the U. S. Bureau of the Budget, which is expected to officially recognize the Appleton-Oshkosh areas as metropolitan in the near future.

Gordon Bubolz, chairman of Northeastern, said in a statement that he hadn't received the governor's letter informing him of the designation but that Bruce Bishop, the governor's executive assistant, had informed him that only COG member communities were included for this designation.

"Bishop indicated that Northeastern has authority for communities within its nine-county area," he said.

Merger Talks Noted

Bubolz also noted that "there was no indication the present governor is aware of the fact that merger discussions are in progress at this time between committees of the council of governments and Northeastern." The first merger talks are slated for next month.

COG and Northeastern sent in their ideas on clearing house responsibilities several months ago when the governor was trying to determine which agency to designate.

Knowles noted that an overlap of jurisdictions, such as with COG and Northeastern both serving metropolitan areas in Outagamie and Winnebago counties, existed in the western part of the state.

There the basic responsibility was given to the metropolitan agency "while providing an opportunity for the broader regional agency to enter appropriate regional considerations through the metropolitan agency's clearinghouse process," Knowles wrote.

Some Problems

This is working, he said, and so it was appropriate to set up the same arrangement in the Fox Cities-Oshkosh area. However, he noted the basical organizational relationships between the two Appleton-based agencies still is unresolved. He said he hoped cooperation would prevail.

Knowles said that COG "clearly meets the basic criteria" for a clearinghouse. Knowles also had expressed concern about the duplication of the two agencies when contacted earlier about their ideas on clearinghouse setups.

Knowles said the state clearinghouse and the State Department of Local Affairs and Development have been instructed to work with COG in setting up arrangements.

In his letter to COG, he added: "Finally, I congratulate you on a fine record of performance and encourage the council to continue to plan for the social economic and physical development of the Fox Valley metropolitan area."

Bills to Reflect Rate Increases

Statements After Jan. 1 at Black Creek To Show Changes

BLACK CREEK — A new schedule of sewer service rates which became effective Oct. 1, will appear on bills received after Jan. 1, a belated 'Christmas present.'

The rates provide for a minimum sewer charge of $8, plus 10 per cent of the charge for water used in excess of 8,000 gallons, is $5. For each additional 1,000 gallons there is a charge of 37 cents.

In its application to the Public Service Commission for a rate increase early this year, the village noted that it was operating at a loss and under pressure of a state pollution abatement order.

New rates will allow the village to increase annual revenues for water and sewerage services by $5,216 and $10,076 respectively, a total of $15,292.

The new rates and their application of the Outagamie Producers Co-op were discussed at the last meeting of the village board. A formula for proposed charges was approved, subject to the village engineer's review.

The board also heard a proposal from Lawrence Robert of Shiocton, for a rubbish pickup service. No action was taken.

Waupaca Problem

State Patrol Help Eyed for Sheriff

WAUPACA — A potential source of additional manpower for the sheriff's department has been disclosed — the Wisconsin State Patrol.

The county law enforcement committee is studying the feasibility of granting Sheriff Loran Frazier's request for either a two-man night patrol or increasing the traffic department personnel to give 24-hour coverage.

However, concerned citizens raised the question as to how the state patrol might help the situation.

Any member of the State Traffic Patrol who is in uniform and on duty may arrest without warrant any person who commits a misdemeanor or a felony on the highway in his presence, according to present law.

He also can arrest anyone transporting a stolen motor vehicle, or who is fleeing from the scene of a crime or from other law enforcement officers and deliver him to the sheriff or police chief in the jurisdiction where the arrest is made.

The State Traffic Patrol has three officers and three patrol cars assigned to Waupaca County.

"We have as our primary duty the patrol of U. S. and State highways, but are able to go any place, on any road we hear about, or wherever are called," Lt. Donald Artz, executive officer at Rib Mountain, explained.

"While we are not assigned to county roads, the sheriff can call us out, or the county traffic department can call us out," he said. "We are on 24-hour call.

"We provide this help now when we are called. This is easily done on our state and county point-to-point communication system," he added. "Although we are not used too often, we are willing to be used more."

Obey Wants House Look Into Spying

WASHINGTON — An investigation of alleged military surveillance of congressmen and other public officials is the object of a resolution introduced in the House by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., and co-sponsored by 24 other congressmen.

The bipartisan resolution proposes that the House Government Operations Committee hold hearings and subpoena witnesses and documents to uncover facts in the claims of military intelligence agencies watching public officials and private citizens.

"If the Army, or indeed any agency of government can assume for itself the right to determine the propriety of government officials' political views, then no American citizen—public or private—can be free of intimidation," said Obey.

The Wausau congressman and other sponsors of the resolution acted in response to reports last Wednesday that two members of Congress and a former governor were objects of surveillance by military intelligence units.

Rules for Safety Outlined

Waupaca Is Family Snowmobile County

BY FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — Early indications are that Waupaca County will be extremely popular for family snowmobiling this season. The only law regulating their use here is the state law.

Machine dealers observe that many families in the area this year have become two and three machine operators. "I can remember when an electric train was the BIG item beneath the Christmas tree — this year I know of a number of families who are giving up personal giving and pooling their funds for snowmobiles," grinned one dealer as he polished the powerful machine.

With the increasing numbers of users comes the need for a clear understanding of the responsibility of the operators, law enforcement, trails for use and the rights of others.

Goals of Clubs

Clubs are being formed and meetings have been held for the past two months. These clubs have four basic goals: to provide miles of trails for their members, educate themselves on "the rules of the road," self-policing, and socializing.

Some of the clubs have met with municipalities, towns and villages to talk about what access they need and their willingness to cooperate in every way with landowners. The towns of Dayton and Farmington held a meeting several weeks ago and snowmobilers and area residents packed the Dayton Town Hall for the exchange of ideas.

"It was a good public relations meeting," Fred Jensen, chairman of the Town of Farmington, commented today. The two town boards will meet after the first of the year to combine their ideas. "At this point, we do not know if we will need a town ordinance to regulate heavy snowmobile traffic. I gathered from the meeting that everyone is going to try to cooperate and be reasonable," Jensen said.

Landowners' Liability

One primary concern has been the use of private lands by snowmobilers. Landowners want to know their liability.

"The potential liability of landowners seems to be non-existent under present Wisconsin State statutes," according to James A. Van Matre, Waupaca County extension resource agent.

One of the most common questions from the landowner is, "If someone is injured on my property, am I liable and if so, to what extent?"

Within State Statute 29.68, an owner, lessee, or occupant of premises owes no duty to keep the premises safe for entry or use by others for snowmobiling (along with hunting, fishing, trapping, camping, hiking, berry picking, water sports, sightseeing or recreational purposes), he cited. Nor does he have to give warning of any unsafe condition. If he gives permission to another to use the land for these purposes, he gives no assurance that the premises are safe for such purpose.

Dangerous Conditions

A liability does exist, however, if there is wilful or malicious failure to guard or to warn against a dangerous condition, use, structure or activity, Van Matre warned. The term "malicious" usually means actual ill will and intent to injury. Stringing a wire across a trail with the intent of having someone run into it would fall in this category, he explained.

If a landowner accepts money for access to part of his land, there is a potential liability, Van Matre states in his interpretation of the present law. New regulations on snowmobiling are being prepared for presentation in the January session of the legislature.

The snowmobile clubs have been granted access for trails by an increasing number of landowners this year.

There also are a considerable number who have posted their land with "No Trespassing" signs and included the snowmobilers along with the hunters. Two principle objections are voiced by the posters: property damage and the noise nuisance, particularly in the late evening and early morning hours.

What can the landowners do about this?

County Given Machine

Help was given to law enforcement officials last week when William Zempel of Edmunds Dock gave the county a snowmobile. It will be used by the sheriff's department, traffic department and department of natural resources.

Identification of the operator of a snowmobile is easier this year by the compulsory registration number which each machine must display.

If a landowner finds a snowmobiler on his peroperty, he is instructed to obtain the number and call the sheriff's department and report it. Two actions are possible, according to Gerald K. Anderson, who becomes district attorney on Jan 1.

The landowner with properly posted land can bring civil charges, in which case he must prove damages. Or, if it is a criminal matter, the sheriff will

New London Plan

Chamber to Help Coordinate Events

NEW LONDON — Community clubs and organizations now can phone in special events and have them reported on a list at the Chamber of Commerce office. Schedules are put on a calendar free of charge.

Chamber president William Borchardt explained that the calendar was adopted to avoid having two or three important meetings on the same night.

"I hope the various organizations will take advantage of this by planning their dates far enough in advance to get them listed on the calendar," Borchardt said.

An organization will be able to call in the date of a planned program, such as a public dinner or meeting. The secretary at the Chamber office checks the date, and informs the caller of any other major programs planned the same night.

In the case of a conflict, the organizations can reschedule its program. With this service, groups may coordinate their activities better. And if the program is widely accepted, it was reported, the Chamber may start publishing a monthly activity calendar in newsletters.

Mission 70 Proposals Go to Knowles

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles' Mission 70 task force Monday presented him with a list of 72 recommendations, including the development of a statewide policy to improve the quality of life in Wisconsin.

Many of the proposals, gven to Knowles at an Operating Cabinet meeting, are expected to be submitted in the 1971 legislative session.

The task force report was prepared by Charles M. Hill, secretary of the Department of Local Affairs and Development.

"The concept of developing and re-evaluating statewide goals to improve the quality of life for Wisconsin citizens remains as valid today as it did when Gov. Knowles initiated this program in April," Hill said.

Endorsing the long-range planning was Agriculture Secretary Donald Wilkinson who said, "We would like to see the orderly development to insure that in the next century we will have food and fiber, not just asphalt and suburbs."

Hill said overall development policy would require several years of planning but labeled the recommendations as a "good beginning" toward relating such issues as economic development, environmental protection and human resource development to statewide goals.

Hill said the recommendations dealt with "basic needs" and that the task force had set no costs and no priorities."

Highlights of the task force recommendations included:

—Giving the governor an overall system of state planning and policy formulation.

—Creating a metropolitan studies commission to investigate the needs and problems of major urban areas.

—Implementing the Tarr task force recommendations on strengthening local government.

—Developing an overall state land acquisition policy.

—Providing access to all racial and economic groups to better housing in the suburbs.

—Studying the feasibility of property tax relief to low income groups.

—Developing regional health care organizations and a system of pre-paid medical insurance.

—Creating a state land-use plan for the protection of key agricultural wildlife and mineral-laden lands.

Knowles said "the task force had not just put together a laundry list of recommendations."

"Many of these matters have received much consideration in the past five years," he commented.

Knowles pointed out the recommendations of the Tarr task force as leading the way to solving the problems of Wisconsin urban areas, although few of his recommendations were enacted into law by the legislature.

Funny Fiscal Business at Madison

The developments at the state capitol during recent months involving the absurd financial management of a comparatively minor state agency would be hilarious, if they did not suggest reasons to doubt the adequacy of the fiscal controls operating in the state government establishment.

The State Home and Family Council, which calmly decided to spend the absurdly wasteful sum of more than $30,000 for a single conference at Oshkosh some months ago, has now found itself in such a financial bind that its director has been obliged to dismiss his small staff, including his last clerk, in order to assure that there will be a sufficient balance in his appropriation account to assure that his own salary will be paid for the next seven months, or until the end of the current budget period.

The story was unfolded at a tragicomic session of the joint Legislative Council the other day, when the leaders of the legislature heard an audit report that was demanded by them a month earlier in response to newspaper dispatches recounting the strange fiscal habits of this agency.

With typical aplomb in the bureaucracy, Director Kohut allowed that he would retreat into his office, close the door, and spend the rest of the fiscal year on an original research project, since he did not have the clerical or professional staff to continue with some of the services for which the agency ostensibly had been created half-a-dozen years ago. It may be that the officer was not listening attentively. For as we read the comments of the principal legislators of both political parties there is a very slight chance that he will have his appropriation renewed by the next legislature. A more prudent man would start looking for new employment.

This almost incredible incident in a state government which so often assures us of the regularity of its auditing and expenditure control procedures won't be entirely without value, perhaps, if it reminds legislators that such controls evidently do not exist, as least in an effective way.

We had believed on the basis of assurances from high officials in the state Department of Administration that subordinate officers in the state capitol are not free to spend as they choose, but are held to explicit limits set out in the appropriations laws, both with respect to amounts and purposes.

We had been led to believe, moreover, that there is a quarterly allotment system, so that a profligate officer could not spend heedlessly, wastefully and without regard to the continuity of his operations over a biennial period. Whatever the rules, it is obvious that they were ignored in the case of the Home and Family Council and that the fact of the violations would not have been known to the people of Wisconsin and their elected representatives except for the enterprise of some curious news correspondents at the statehouse.

Youngsters and Pornography

A special committee of the President's Commission on Pornography made a study of a number of patients confined to a mental hospital because of sexual aberrations and other reasons. Their findings? It seems that those who were exposed to pornographic material in their adolescent years were not the ones arrested for rape, child molestation or other crimes connected with sex. It almost seemed to be, from the statistics, just the other way around.

President Nixon has already turned up his nose at the overall commission's report which recommended that all laws concerning the availability of pornographic material to adults be repealed. There have been expressions of outrage from a number of sources. The latest findings indicate that maybe what the kids need is more, rather than less, exposure to pornography.

Paul Gebhard, director of the University of Indiana Center for Sex Research, flatly says that "youth's attitude toward sex today is far healthier than our generation had. They are less obsessed with sex, now that it's more available." But he also faced the problem of liberalizing state laws dealing with the subject. So far it is generally "a political kiss of death," he commented. The United States Senate nobly upheld this practical point of view by condemning the commission's report by a vote of 60 to 5.

Meanwhile, Wisconsin goes merrily along with a law against any kind of birth control information to the unmarried, a legality that is ignored widely as doctors provide such information and the pill or other devices to those about to be married.

Spain's Troubles With the Basque

The trial of fifteen Basques accused of treason against the regime of Francisco Franco of Spain has brought about the most serious political crisis that Spain has experienced since the Civil War.

Six of the fifteen are specifically charged with the murder of Meliton Manzanas, chief of the political police for Guipuzcoa Province, populated almost entirely by Basques. According to most reports he was a sadist and extremely discriminatory against the Basque people, although that is no reason for his murder. But there has been a continuing and simmering resentment by the Basques against their Spanish overlords and the current trial appears to be a landmark in that struggle.

The Basques are really not Spanish as far as their relationship to the other people of that country is concerned. Probably they are Celtic and more closely related to the "black Irish" and other Celts in the British Isles and Northern France. In Spain they are primarily farmers, artisans and tradesmen. They are almost all Roman Catholic as are the great majority of Spaniards. Until more modern ways came to spain, they lived in the mountains of the north and didn't resent too much the dictatorial and centralized government in Madrid.

But several years ago young Basques formed the Euskadi ta Azkatasuna, known as the ETA, meaning Basque nation and Freedom. There have been terrorist acts against the Spanish authorities. The most recent, after the trial of the fifteen began, was the kidnapping of the honorary West German consul. But estimates of the strength of the ETA have never been more than 200 young hotheads. However the current trial and the threat of vengeance, as well as special regulations for the provinces where most Basques live, have only served so far to encourage recruits to the cause, in spirit if not in letter. The trial, made a military court-martial with more stringent rules even than the usual civilian trials in Spain, has not encouraged the Basque people to denounce the ETA.

Authoritarian governments—and perhaps even democratic ones — have the problem of determining whether harsh or tolerant measures will serve better to end terrorism and revolt even when there is enough muscle to put down any opposition. So far Spain hasn't come out too well in dealing with the Basques.

Who Really Are the Haves and Have Nots In State Taxation?

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Nothing shows more aptly the transformation of the state political system than the changing identities of the "haves" and the "have nots" among the localities of Wisconsin as tested by the contemporary political dialogue.

Wyngaard

Today the legislature is besieged by the Alliance of Cities, the brainchild of the fertile city of Milwaukee administration and its leader, Mayor Henry Maier, with insistent demands for a redistribution of the tax wealth in such a way that the cities will be relieved of some of their financing problems and enabled to meet their public service demands and desires more adequately.

The Alliance has made some progress. It has made an impression upon political opinion, and particularly upon the contemporary political leadership. The new Democratic state administration that will take power in January surely owes much of its triumph in November to the success of the city spokesmen in persuading their constituents that relief for city fiscal troubles must come from Madison, that it cannot come out of their own resources, and that the Democrats offered more hope of response to such demands than did their defeated Republican foes.

Incongruity Presented

But to the voter and the taxpayer of long memory there is a profound incongruity presented here.

It was only a little more than three decades ago that the rural interests won what they regarded as an equally significant victory with the return of the regular Republicans to power in the 1938 elections and the unhorsing of the La Follette administration that had seemed invincible earlier.

Rural Republicans formed a distinct section of the Republican legislative caucus, deliberately adopting the homely description of "Woodchoppers," and set about to rearrange state finances for the benefit of their farming and woodland constituencies.

Their target — or milking cow as some of them candidly described it — was the big city of Milwaukee and its environs, site of the greatest concentration of industry and finance.

The most important result of the organization of the rural elements into a cohesive voting bloc in the legislatures of the late 1930s and 1940s was a generous — for that period — increase in the appropriations for local school aids.

Then as now the school tax was the principal pressure upon the property taxpayer, who was as sensitive in those economically uncertain times as he is today in a time of affluence as far as all of the orthodox indices show. The school appropriations as they were gradually increased represented state tax redistribution.

The money was yielded from the income tax, paid according to the earning capacity of the taxpayer, and distributed to localities on the basis of their school finance liability, on the one hand, and their property tax base, on the other.

The approach of the "woodchoppers" of a generation or more ago and the city lobby of today are equally shortsighted, as experience has shown the former and will show the latter if it wins its ostensible cause today.

Assumptions Are False

Both viewpoints assume that the property tax is a test of distress, on the one hand, and that the property tax valuation is a test of ability to finance public service benefits.

As the Kellett report on education has shown, both assumptions are false. Ultimately the solution will be found in a better measure of ability to pay, which necessarily means an income factor. If that test is ultimately accepted — and the Kellett Commission gave it an eloquent endorsement and intends to present it formally to the legislature — it will show that the true "have nots" are those the woodchoppers were concerned about long ago and that the "haves" are for the most part in the cities, including those in the constituency of the angry Milwaukee mayor.

The biggest single financial dilemma in every locality of Wisconsin is represented by the schools. The Kellett studies provide useful illustrations, however, of the lack of relationship between such financing liabilities and financial capacity. In Milwaukee in a recent year school taxes levied amounted to only about two per cent of gross income. In Lafayette County, to choose at random, the ratio was about six and one half per cent, or three times greater.

Brazil's Finance Minister Is Latin American Hamilton

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

RIO DE JANEIRO — Antonio Delfim Netto is a fat-faced, fortyish grandson of Italian immigrants who is shaping up as one of the world's great finance ministers — the local equivalent, some claim, of what Hamilton was to the United States in the early days.

Among many other things, Senhor Delfim has put into effect a major innovation in foreign exchange policy. That change represents an important contribution to the solution of the economic problem that seems to be baffling even the United States — the problem of easing inflation while maintaining general prosperity.

The record in Brazil is beautifully clear. From 1963 through 1967 consumer prices rose at a rate of over 120 per cent a year. Since 1968, when Delfim took over, they have been going down. This year the rise will be below 24 per cent. Next year it is expected to dip under 20 per cent.

Stocks At New Highs

At the same time, all the normal growth indicators — investment, production, and gross national product — are bounding upwards. Last week, the stock market here set a new high in a day that saw the value of shares traded total almost half the worth of the day's transactions on the New York Stock Exchange — a truly staggering amount of private money tapped for investment in a developing country.

The distribution of goodies in Brazil's current boom so far favors those already well off in the southern part of this country. But by tax incentives, Delfim has provided for important investment in the backward and drought-ridden northeast of Brazil. Large parts of the surplus he has piled up in the Brazilian federal treasury are being expended on development projects in the northeast and the almost unknown Amazonian hinterland of Brazil. And rising consumption in the developed areas is now calling forth a record agricultural production which means spreading the wealth in the form of more jobs in the countryside.

To achieve these goals, Delfim has used a wide variety of measures — tax reform, wage and price controls, monetary policy — many of them developed by former Planning Minister Roberto Campos. But the big innovation has come in the matter of foreign exchange.

Previously, any growth in consumer purchasing power here used to translate immediately into demand for goods imported from abroad. This demand did little to stimulate local production. It tended rapidly to outstrip both the available foreign goods and the available foreign exchange. Thus, Brazil was subject to recurrent economic crises where low production and unemployment combined with inflation and a drain on foreign reserves

The finance minister broke this cycle by what amounts to a policy of regular currency devaluation. Brazil's currency the cruzeiro, has been tied to the rate of inflation. As prices go up, the value of the cruzeiro is periodically — that is, almost every month — altered.

Prices Held Low

That way foreign goods are kept at relatively high prices on the Brazilian market. Domestic goods remain relatively cheap. Demand goes chiefly to internal producers. And these producers, fortified by the big local demand, are able to hold prices low enough to compete on the international markets. This year, for instance, Brazil is selling auto parts to the United States. Next year, exports of manufactured goods are expected to equal the value of coffee exports.

The parallel with the United States, while not perfect, is obvious. Inflation has raised the price of American goods. West German, Japanese, and other foreign competitors, working on favorable exchange rates, are undercutting American companies both in the United States and in Third countries. That is one reason why the American economy now combines unemployment of over 5 per cent with inflation of over 5 per cent. That is a main reason why there is such tremendous pressure from industry for higher tariffs.

The way out of the bind for the United States is, of course, different than the way out for Brazil. Unlike the cruzeiro, the dollar is a reserve currency widely held by governments and banks in lieu of gold. Any sharp changes in its value would disrupt international economic life.

But there are gentle ways to make such changes For instance, West Germany and Japan and other countries now taking and enjoying benefits from unrealistic exchange rates might be induced to revalue their currencies upwards. Thus, the basic Brazilian lesson applies. The United States needs as one ingredient of its economic policy some way to put more give into exchange rates that now work to brake rapid recovery of the American economy.

Travelling at High Speeds Is Fatiguing

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My opposition to the supersonic transport planes is not just based on the economics or politics (or even the "sonic boom") of these vehicles; it is based even more on the human factor of adjusting to such speeds.

Even today, on the ordinary jets, a daytime flight between the U. S. and Europe or any other part of the globe is fatigue-making in a clinical way we still don't fully grasp. Traveling fast through several time-zones imposes a severe strain on the body and the mind.

In his recent interesting book, "The Pathology of Leadership," Dr. Hugh L'Etang, a British physician who for years has studied the medical histories of world leaders, warns that "even the statesman in full possession of his faculties may be exposed to unprecedented hazards as a result of the capacity of modern aircraft to cross oceans and continents in hours instead of days."

Our vital processes, he points out — sleep, brain activity, temperature control, hormone formation, gut activity, mineral metabolism, and many others — are geared to a carefully adjusted schedule; and if the body is rapidly transferred to a different time system, "its own carefully synchronized activities will be out of step with the new local time."

The book also quotes Dr. Hubertus Strughold, chief scientist of the American aerospace medical division, as suggesting that these sudden changes "may have some significance in international conferences during the first few days . . . which are not the proper times for important negotiations or vital decisions."

And U. S. Aerospace studies indicate that not only middle-aged businessmen and government officials are affected this way, but also that "actors, chess players, athletes and, last but not least, race horses were not at their intellectual or physical best the first few days after arriving from a region four or more time zones away."

Recent work has confirmed these findings. The results of varying tests after a daylight flight of 18 hours from Oklahoma City to Tokyo were described as showing "a marked and quite significant deterioration in psychological performance on the first full day in Tokyo as judged by both reaction time and decision time." And, while younger students had a rapid return to normal, "in contrast, the older men showed impairment of reaction time and decision making for as long as five days."

It used to be thought that, in traveling at high speeds, the mind could not keep up with the body; now it is known that even the body cannot keep up with the body. Flying beyond the speed of sound, without the "packaged environment" of astronauts, is an insult to the organism.

Schulvereins to Hold Benefit

The Appleton Schulvereins will give a ball to benefit the German School, the dance to be held in Turner Hall, Monday evening Dec. 26, 1870.

Every citizen ought to support the benevolent aim of this society. Besides, their balls are justly known as being very social and entertaining.

Wickbold's Band, aided by the accomplished violinist Hornaner, will give the music.

The scholars of the German School will give a theatrical farce in two acts, entitled "The Spirit of the Mountains," which promises to be highly entertaining. Mr. Meyer, the teacher, has spared no trouble to make it a success in every way.

City Income Tax Has Many Assets

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

With all the discussion now going on relative to the city budget and the need for tax relief to the elderly living on fixed incomes and the over-burdened property owner, I would like to have someone explain to me why a city income tax is not being considered.

In many cases there are families with more than one wage earner and these families often use the city services and facilities to a much greater extent than do the elderly property owners living on fixed incomes. Furthermore, they can better afford to pay more in taxes.

There are altogether too many childless couples finding it difficult to hang onto their homes due to the extremely high taxes which are being caused by the demands for services, education, recreation and leisure facilities being demanded by parents for their children, the children themselves, and by non-taxpaying wage earners who merely rent homes or apartments.

I have in mind a situation where there are three almost identical homes on a certain city block. In the first home live a childless couple, both of whom work, and this couple makes moderate or very little use of the parks, schools, recreation programs, and other city services. They can afford to pay more in taxes than the couple living in the next house who are also childless, but elderly, and living on a fixed income which is fast becoming meager by today's standards. They make no use at all of the schools and recreational facilities, etc. The third home is occupied by six people, four of whom work in Appleton and two teenagers going to school in the secondary schools. This family makes extensive use of all the city facilities, including the schools. It certainly does not seem fair that the elderly couple should pay as much in taxes as do the other two home owners. The elderly couple uses the services of the city to a much lesser degree than either of the other two families and they are the least able to afford to pay.

We have many people who live here during the week and make their money here and then go home on the weekends to spend it elsewhere.

There is also a large number of people who move out of the city to escape the high property taxes, but continue to work in Appleton. This means that they use the city facilities and services during the day and many of them commute to the city to use the recreational programs and facilities in the evenings and on weekends. Why, then, should they not share in the cost of all the city services?

Most likely, at one time or another, a city income tax would have posed a problem to our city-based industries in that they might have had difficulty in finding the needed workers who would be willing to work in Appleton due to having to pay an income tax. This problem certainly does not exist at the present time. I am sure that there are enough residents of Appleton and the surrounding areas that would be willing to fill the jobs vacated by those who do not want to pay a nominal income tax.

In cities that have instituted a city income tax to provide some relief to the property owner, some interesting things have happened that could be of benefit here in Appleton. For one thing, living in the suburbs or the outlying areas became less attractive since the people who worked in the city and paid for the services through income taxes, started thinking in terms of city conveniences and property taxes did not seem to be on a constant rise. This, of course, helped alleviate problems of urban "blight."

Another interesting thing is that in almost any city that does have an income tax, there is an awareness and interest on the part of all the residents in the problems of the city since almost everyone living in the city is more or less personally involved through payment of taxes of one kind or another. This is in contrast to the situation we have here in Appleton where the property owner just cannot afford more and certain factions of the populace who do not pay taxes are demanding more. The non-property owner just does not seem to care about hearing about budget cuts and certainly the over-burdened taxpaying property owner does not care to hear about further needs.

I forgot to mention one other advantage that having a city income tax has .... that is that we could then tax our industries themselves less in order to encourage them to stay here.

The argument that only property owners should pay for all the city costs is as unrealistic as insisting that only families with children pay the school costs.

Thanks Person Who Sent Money For New Wreath

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

Sunday, Dec. 6, I had an article published on the wreath that was stolen from my husband's and my sons' daddy's grave.

On Wednesday, Dec. 9, I received by mail a money order for another wreath for my sons' daddy's grave. It was not signed. I would like to believe that it was from the party that took the wreath off the grave, but in my heart I feel that it's from a kind citizen who has feelings. I would like to thank him or them for it and it will be used for another wreath.

Leadership Blamed for Congressional Fiascos

Filibusters, Committee Procedures and Occult Maneuvers Given as Weaknesses

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The ease with which freshman Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska paralyzed the senate for two days last week dramatically defines the congressional sickness that has brought the legislative system near collapse.

Gravel, unprepared and largely unaided, waged a mini-filibuster Tuesday and Wednesday against President Nixon's proposed new military aid for Cambodia. At no time did the senate Democratic leadership make a serious effort to shut him off. Indeed, the very factors that made Gravel's feat possible can be traced to the policies of that leadership.

Thus, at a time of rising complaints about President Nixon, the country confronts a less publicized but still dangerous leadership gap on Capitol Hill that preceded Mr. Nixon's arrival at the White House and will surely persist long after he is gone. This gap helps explain the miserable record of congress in 1970 and, particularly, the futility of the present lame-duck session.

Reflects the System

The two days chewed up by Mike Gravel last week are scarcely responsible for this breakdown in the system. But the incident reflects in microcosm a state of affairs unimaginable in the senate a decade ago and intolerable in any legislative body charged with promoting the public's interest.

Senate aides last Tuesday had expected the Cambodian arms bill to be passed in an hour or two because its principal critic, Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, had no intention of extended debate. However, they did not know that Gravel had been disturbed by his weekend reading about Indochina and, on Tuesday, would jump into action with both feet to consume the best part of two precious days.

Evans

Nowak

In Lyndon B. Johnson's senate of the 1950s, this would not have been tolerated either by the leadership or the senate at large. But in lame-duck 1970, nobody tried to clamp down Gravel. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana glared at him across the senate floor but said not a word to silence him, either privately or publicly. Nor did his colleagues in any way try to ward him off from further entangling a hopelessly snarled session

In so permissive an atmosphere, four other filibuster efforts, better organized than Gravel's were hatching last week. In fact, during Manfield's record-long and much beloved tenure as majority leader, it has become a rule of senate life that one or two senators can tie up the senate on any old subject any old time they desire.

That rule particularly applies to this lame-duck session with its unprecedented logjam of controversial bills, a great part of them stacked in the Senate Finance Committee. Here, too, the confusion can be traced to vapid senate leadership.

With leaders of both parties aloofly disinterested, vacancies on the finance committee (which handles the most important legislative load in congress) have been filled by generally undistinguished conservatives more concerned with special interests than good legislation. Its chairman, brilliant but erratic Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, follows an occult course impossible for others to divine.

The result has been Long's chronic tendency, unopposed by Mansfield and unchallenged by committee members, to combine all manner of dissimilar legislation into one vast bill in the interests of some hidden legislative gamesmanship. The ultimate came this year. A non-controversial Social Security increase arrived from the house May 22. Instead of pushing for quick approval Long stored it in committee, before attaching to it such combustible items as shoe and textile quotas, welfare reform, and a $2.3 billion catastrophic illness program he suddenly unveiled.

Such a heterogeneous mess, sent to the floor Dec. 9, could spark a dozen filibusters in Mansfield's senate as the year-end deadline neared. Nor was the orderly Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, Long's house counterpart as chairman of the ways and means committee, cooperative. He informed Long last week he would not consider any legislation rushed back to the house under deadline pressure.

Mills and other senior house members are outraged, but there is precious little talk in the senate about broken-down legislative machinery. The decline has been so gradual that many senators cannot remember when it worked, and others don't seem to care.

Young Thief Gets Call on Radio; Returns Car

HAWAIIAN GARDENS, Calif. (AP) — When a deputy sheriff's patrol car was stolen, it didn't take long to reach the thief.

Roy Beattie, the sheriff's radio dispatcher for this Los Angeles suburb, put through a call to the missing car.

Beattie talked the thief into responding on the radio and learned that it was a local 16-year-old boy.

A half hour after Beattie advised him that things would go easier for him if he returned the car, the youth drove to the spot where he had stolen it. He was booked later Sunday for investigation of car theft. Because of his age he was not identified.

Football Games On (Every) TV Sparks Lawsuit

AUBURN, Wash. (AP) — Alva Long, Auburn attorney, is seeking to have television sets banned in the taverns and cocktail lounges of Washington on the grounds they violate state law.

Long took on the cause at the request of a woman who said she fled home because her husband and sons spent all day watching televised football games, which she hates. She said she visited four bars only to find football being broadcast on television sets at each.

In a letter to the county prosecuting attorney, Long noted a 1930 state law prohibits music and entertainment (exclusive of radios or mechanical music) in licensed premises without a proper license. He said nearly all taverns and cocktail lounges have television sets but none has applied for a license to use them.

Editorial Is Anemic Cerebration

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

The editorial congratulating the Sweet upstart is obviously the output of anemic cerebration.

To equate the rudeness, effrontery, and arrogance of a wet-behind-the-ears know-it-all with the incomparably superior knowledge and experience of President Nixon indicates paralysis of rational thinking. It also encourages the already almost intolerable increase in youthful assumption of intellectual superiority.

The adrenals of many are chronically stimulated by other equally off-base "liberal" editorials appearing on the editorial page.

Should Go to Sources of Income to Support Schools

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

If the average income of Appleton, as quoted last summer in an article in The Post-Crescent, is $10,000, it would seem logical to go to the sources of the income to support the schools. To depend on a property tax is a discriminatory procedure. In tonight's paper Sylvia Porter states regarding the amount of average income, "But most important, your education. If the household head has finished college, the average income is more than $15,000, but if he or she has failed to complete an elementary education, the average is less than $5,000." Business and industry look to the schools for their labor force and management, the elderly, disabled and indigents look to the products of the schools and the consequences of education for social and legal protection and reforms, parents look to the schools as the community social environment in which children develop. The invested interests of these groups as represented by the schools constitute a consensus. The schools are servants to the community, why do we make them subservient also? Appleton can afford quality education.

Could Any Citizen Kill Burglar in His Home?

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I have great respect for the police department and I feel that what causes the most disrespect for police is misunderstandings.

Having clarified my feelings toward the police, I would like to ask what investigation is going to take place after the fatal shooting of the burglar who broke into Xavier School. I realize that a man has to protect his life. I also feel that as a police officer his first responsibility is to protect life. Are we sure that enough planning was given to this apprehension? Why weren't lights used to ascertain if the victims were armed? I am sure the police had the advantage of cover. I would hate to know that the reason a person was killed was that one of our policemen was irresponsible and that a person was killed for nothing.

Even a felon has the right to life and it is not the duty of the police to kill with more justification than I have. I am sure if I shot an unarmed burglar in my home I would be investigated. I have neither the training nor the responsibility a policeman would have to protect life. Do I have the right to kill an unarmed man in the act of breaking into my home?

FDA Picks Christmas Week To Order Toys Off Market

BY MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With most gifts already wrapped and ready for stacking under the nation's Christmas trees, the federal government has ordered 39 toys off the market because of pins, needles, metal spikes and sharp wires that it says could be dangerous.

Among those listed by the Federal Food and Drug Administration in an order late Monday were dolls, stuffed animals and lawn-dart sets.

The FDA said it has notified toy makers of the action and left it to them to notify retailers to remove the toys from store shelves. Refusal will result in federal seizure of the products by the FDA's 649 inspectors, the agency said.

One of those listed was Toy Town of Randallstown, Md., which the FDA said made a toy called Squeaking Toy Donkey, which has a removable squeaker.

Sells Toys

After the list was released Harold Moore, manager of Toy Town said his outlet sells toys, but has never manufactured any. He said the toy donkey was imported, but was unable to say by whom.

"But we took it off the shelves," he said.

The FDA has also moved to provide a way for parents to get refunds if they purchased one of the toys on the list. The agency said it was proposing a rule requiring manufacturers be prepared to either return the purchase price in full or repair the toys so that they are safe. But the customer could opt for the refund under the rule, which is subject to 15 days of comment before being made final by the FDA.

Under fire from Congress and consumer groups, the agency moved for the first time Friday under the 11-month-old Toy Safety Act by banning four classifications of toys.

Name Names

But after saying it wouldn't name names, it did just that in Monday's announcement.

In November, Consumers Union, which tests toys for safety, displayed eight toys it said were dangerous. Only one, JARTS, a lawn darts game produced by J. B. Jarts, South Glen Falls, N.Y., appears among the 39.

Besides that, the FDA said Jarts ban has been stayed pending action on the banning by a federal appeals court.

The FDA said the other seven toys on Consumer Union's list were either off the market or under various phases of investigation.

In a few cases, their manufacturers had agreed to make them safer, the agency said.

Court Order

The consumers' organization later sought to have a federal court order the eight toys banned, but was turned down.

Besides the toy donkey and the Jarts game, the FDA banned the following toys listed by name, defect and manufacturer:

Dizzy Doodle Doll, squeaker removes, Parksmith Corp. N.Y.; Squeeze Zoo Zee squeeze toy, squeaker removes, Stahlwood Manufacturing Co., N.Y., N.Y.

ROTC Enrollment At Lowest Level Since Post-War Era

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enrollment in college ROTC programs—source of more than half the regular officers in the armed services—plummeted this year to the lowest level since 1947.

This sharp decline for the second straight year is causing concern among military planners over the future ability of the Reserve Officers Training Corps to turn out enough officers.

According to new figures compiled by the Pentagon for release later this week, enrollment in Army, Air Force and Navy ROTC programs at 502 schools during the current academic year dropped to 109,598. This compares with 155,946 last year and 212,417 the previous year.

More Scholarships

The Pentagon hopes to reverse the downward trend by submitting to Congress early next year a legislative package proposing to double the number of ROTC scholarships from about 15,000 a year to about 30,000. The monthly subsistance allowance paid to juniors and seniors would be doubled to $100.

ROTC scholarships pay for a student's tuition, books and other school fees, but do not cover room and board.

Under the proposal, schools also would be reimbursed for the direct costs of supporting ROTC programs on their campuses.

More Graduates

If this doesn't work, sources say, the armed services may have to resort to other means, such as stepping up the number of graduates from the military officer candidate schools or possibly even lowering standards and taking men with only two years of college. Officers entering the military through ROTC are college graduates.

Officials say the decline in ROTC stems largely from students "taking a wait-and-see attitude" based on declining draft calls, knowledge of their draft status under the new lottery introduced last year and the prospects for an all-volunteer force, which the Nixon administration hopes to achieve by mid-1973.

There is also the widespread student opposition to the Vietnam war, hostility toward the military and the growing number of schools converting from compulsory to noncompulsory ROTC programs. Only 48 make the enrollment compulsory this year against 112 two years ago.

33 Per Cent

The latest Pentagon figures show ROTC enrollment this year down 33 per cent for the Army, 24 per cent for the Air Force and 14 per cent for the Navy.

Of even more significance is the marked decrease in the numbers of freshmen and sophomores signing up. This will mean even fewer officers entering the services from the colleges four years from now.

The last time ROTC enrollment fell this low was in 1947, when 101,438 signed up. The nation was talking about an all-volunteer force and the draft law was allowed to expire. But less than a year later, President Harry S Truman announced that voluntary methods didn't work and asked Congress to enact new Selective Service legislation.

Joan Baez' Husband Paroled From Prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — David V. Harris, draft-resister husband of folk singer Joan Baez, has been granted a parole from prison effective March 15.

The federal Board of Parole chairman, George J. Reed, said Monday that Harris, who is serving three years for refusing to submit to induction into the armed forces, planned to return to his wife and infant son at Palo Alto, Calif.

Harris, a former student body president at Stanford University, was sentenced July 16, 1969. He received credit for several months in jail prior to sentencing, and would have been released next Nov. 6 in the absence of parole.

18-Year-Olds Will be Voting

Political Groups Start to Woo Young Voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youth-oriented political groups moved quickly today to grab a share of the potential 11 million new voters enfranchised by the Supreme Court decision allowing 18-year-olds to vote for president and congressmen.

The Young Republican national chairman, Ron Romans, said his orgnaization has a national registration program on paper and a pilot program under way in two states to computerize the names of 18 to 21-year-olds for a sign-up drive.

The National Young Democrats said it was joining with other youth groups in a campaign "to register those millions whose vote can bring about social change, reordering of national priorities and increased support for their point of view."

State elections officials complained meanwhile that Monday's action will result in expense and confusion because the court refused to lower the voting age to 18 in state and local elections.

Administrative Problem

"This will be administratively difficult and will result in considerable cost to the taxpayers," said Oregon Atty. Gen. Lee Johnson who had argued before the court against lowering the voting age.

Shortly after the court's 5 to 4 decision on federal elections was announced, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, a potential Democratic presidential candidate in 1972, said he will move quickly for Senate approval of a constitutional amendment applying it to state and local elections.

"Once the law goes into effect for federal elections, it is extremely likely that the states will lower the voting age to 18 for state elections," the Massachusetts Democrat said. But, he added, he would introduce an amendment to "speed up this result."

Effective Jan. 1

Provisions of the 1970 Federal Voting Rights Act, upheld by the court action, take effect Jan. 1.

Many state officials said the court's decision will require separate registration lists for voters under and over the age of 21. Some foresaw the expensive possibility of two sets of voting machines or paper ballots.

The high court approved also, 8 to 1, the abolition of residency requirements of more than 30 days for voting in presidential elections and approved unanimously the suspension of state literacy tests for five years.

Some state officials said they will ask their legislatures for a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18 for all elections.

"It would seem to me to be highly illogical to allow young voters to vote for president and congressmen and prevent them from voting for state and local offices," said Gov. Dan Evans of Washington.

Younger Age

Georgia, Kentucky and Alaska already had the 18-year-old vote provision, and Hawaii allows 20-year-olds to vote.

This year Nebraska and Maine voters approved amendments lowering the voting age to 20. Minnesota and Massachusetts lowered the eligible age to 19

State constitutional amendments to lower the voting age have been introduced in Nevada, New York, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania.

President Nixon was pleased with the court's decision, according to White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

National chairman of the two major political parties hailed the ruling as proof the government can be responsive.

"No group has proven itself more eager for the franchise or more deserving of it than this generation of young Americans," said Republican Chairman Rogers C.B. Morton.

Up to Parties

His Democratic counterpart, Lawrence F. O'Brien, expressing hope the states will soon follow suit in reducing the voting age to 18, said it was up to both parties to register young voters in time for the 1972 elections.

On Capitol Hill the reaction was generally favorable.

"Up to now the youth of today had a legitimate grievance," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont. "For all their interest, for all their work and effort, for all the opinions they expressed, nothing counted . . . ."

Now, said Mansfield, young people will be brought "into the 'system'—that is where they belong."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the ruling was "most important in terms of providing additional evidence to our youth that government can work effectively."

Institutions Responsive

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., who co-sponsored the 18-year-old vote provision, said it was a clear affirmation to youth "that our basic institutions are alive and responsive."

But Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and James B. Allen, D-Ala., said the decision was inconsistent with the U.S. Constitution, which, as Allen put it, gives "to the states the right to set the qualifications of voters."

Monday's high court action came in a series of separate decisions.

After the court upheld the Voting Rights Act provision giving 18-year-olds the ballot in federal elections, Justice Hugo L. Black shifted and helped defeat, 5 to 4, another section that would have lowered the voting age in state elections.

"I would hold, as have a long line of decisions in this court, that Congress has ultimate supervisory power over congressional elections," Black said. "Similarly, it is the prerogative of Congress to oversee the conduct of presidential and vice presidential elections and to set the qualifications for electors for those offices."

States had asked the court to decide whether Congress could make such changes through a legislative act, rather than a lengthy constitutional amendment.

Closing Arguments Start

Manson Women Only Robots, Lawyer Says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three young women on trial in the Sharon Tate murder case, but ousted from court for bad behavior, have been described by the state as robots who killed the actress and six others "to satisfy their master, Charles Manson"—a codefendant.

As the prosecutor began his closing arguments Monday, the women—Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkel, both 22, and Leslie Van Houten, 21—listened by loudspeaker from an adjoining room.

Manson, who was briefly ousted with them, returned and stayed through the session, frequently muttering comments on the arguments.

The women were removed from court after a scuffle with bailiffs. They had shouted at the judge and audience as Miss Van Houten protested appointment of a substitute for her lawyer, Ronald Hughes, missing and believed lost on a Thanksgiving holiday camping trip. Her newly court appointed attorney is Maxwell Keith, a veteran criminal lawyer.

"I'm Wondering"

"I have nothing to do with Mr. Ronald Hughes disappearing!" Miss Van Houten shouted at the judge. "In fact, I'm wondering what did you do with him."

Ignoring the judge's orders to be seated, the slim brunette tussled with deputies, slapped one bailiff on the hand and told the judge, "I'd strike you if I could."

She was ushered out with the others, who pointed at Manson and shouted, "You have an innocent man here!

Classic Textbook

Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent T. Bugliosi called the slayings in August 1969 "a classic textbook example of premeditated murder."

Although there was no evidence that Manson, 36, killed any victims, Bugliosi argued he was equally guilty under state laws making any party to a conspiracy guilty of its results.

Much of the argument was a recap of state star witness Linda Kasabian's testimony in which she told of being sent on murder missions with other members of Manson's "family."

"The killers, armed with deadly weapons, went into the victims' homes in the dead of night and mercilessly stabbed them to death," said Bugliosi. Then, he said, they went back to tell Manson what they had done.

Bugliosi said "his (Manson's) robots had viciously slaughtered the victims" and that the blood probably was "still trickling out of the bodies when they reported back."

Mobile Homes Become Larger, Expandable

BY SYLVIA PORTER

The announcement by the largest private home builder in the U.S. (Levitt & Sons) that it is going into the mobile home market for the first time marks the coming of age of this "Model T" of the housing industry.

And believe me, the "Model T" already is a startling success. More than one-third of the new one-family homes being sold in the U.S. today are mobile homes. In the under-$25,000 price bracket, the proportion is more than two-thirds. In the under-$15,000 range, the percentage is 95 per cent! Today, more than 5,000,000 Americans live in more than 2,000,000 mobile homes and more than 1,000 major manufacturers are now in the field.

This year alone, an estimated 418,000 mobile homes will have been shipped by mobile home manufacturers — vs 1960's 104,000. By 1975, the number will have more than doubled to nearly 1,000,000.

There Are Advantages

Whatever you may say about the poor taste of mobile home design — its cramped living quarters, the elbow-to-elbow existence in a mobile home park, the phoniness of its mobility," there are advantages.

— Aside from the basic cost advantage, mobile homes probably are the most convenient form of housing now available to people who intend to stay in one place only a short period of time: military personnel, college students, engineers on the move, many young married people, retirees. Most mobile housing comes with all the basic equipment included, and in more luxurious homes, major appliances may be installed along with fireplaces and two car garages. And, of course, you can haul a mobile home anywhere you want.

— In addition, you can buy them with a minimum down payment, commit yourself to fewer years of mortgage repayment, enjoy the freedom from many of the expenses of maintaining conventional homes.

As the industry approaches an unprecedented boom, the new trends are:

— Mobile home cabinetry, furniture and fittings are getting ever fancier and more expensive. Today, you can choose between decorating themes ranging from contemporary to "Provincial," "Old English," "Mediterranean," and even "Oriental."

Larger, Expandable

— Mobile homes also are getting larger. Most still are 12' x 60', but many are up to 14' wide and 70' long. Double wide homes are becoming more popular — in which, say, two 12' x 55' homes are delivered separately and joined at the home site. A two-section double-wide home typically is set on a permanent foundation, has three bedrooms, 1 or 2 baths, a kitchen, living room and dining room. It also may have a utility room.

— Expandable mobile homes are growing in popularity, with a section which telescopes out when the home is placed on its site. Today, about 12 per cent of all mobile homes being manufactured are double-wide or expandable. And a significant 7 per cent are 14' wide — a width which only went into mass production in 1969.

— Mobile home condominiums — in which you buy your own individual home plus an interest in various community facilities as well — are on the rise.

— Mobile homes will be geared to housing developments in the central cities, entire communities of mobile homes, and mobile vacation homes. The number of vacation homes in the U.S. is expected to grow by 200,000 a year throughout the 1970s, and one in four or five of these are slated to be mobile homes.

Mobile homes surely will become an ever more important form of housing in this country as the number of young couples soars, as veterans return from Vietnam and as the overall shortage of low-cost housing worsens.

If, as Housing on Urban Development Secretary George W. Romney noted recently, Housing is the biggest underdeveloped market in the nation," mobile housing is its biggest underdeveloped sector.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 22, the 356th day of 1970. There are nine days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1894, a military court in France found Capt. Alfred Dreyfus guilty of treason and sentenced him to imprisonment on Devil's Island. He was a victim of anti-Semitism in the French army, and the case inflamed world opinion.

On this date:

In 1650, New England colonists passed a law requiring bakers to make standard weight loaves of bread.

In 1775, the Continental naval fleet was organized under the command of a former New England sea captain, Ezek Hopkins.

In 1864, during the Civil War, Gen. William T. Sherman sent a message to President Abraham Lincoln which read: "I beg to present you as a Christmas gift the city of Savannah."

In 1869, Congress passed a bill that Georgia must ratify the 15th Constitutional amendment giving Negroes voting rights before the state could be readmitted into the union.

In 1942, in World War II, U.S. heavy bombers raided Rangoon, Burma.

In 1944, also during World War II, the Germans demanded that American Gen. Anthony McAuliffe surrender at Bastogne, Belgium. He replied: "Nuts."

Ten years ago — The Soviet Union announced a new annual budget that proclaimed a cut in defense spending but a 15 per cent increase in funds for scientific research.

Five years ago — Vice President Hubert Humphrey was in the Far East to sound out friendly governments on the U.S. course in Vietnam.

One year ago — Catholic civil rights leader Bernadette Devlin was sentenced to six months in jail on charges of inciting riots in Northern Ireland.

2 Planes That Crashed Were in Landing Pattern

WAUKESHA (AP) — Two planes in which three persons died in a weekend crash were in an airport landing pattern when they collided, authorities said Sunday.

Investigators for the Federal Aviation Administration said it wasn't clear why the accident occurred, but that wreckage of one of the planes was found imbedded in the wreckage of the other.

Raphael Crowley, 57, a Waukesha flying instructor, and Ronald Klingler, 21, a student from Milwaukee, died in a Cessna 150 which collided with a larger, twin-engine Cessna.

The pilot of the larger craft, Daniel Moen, 43, of West Allis, also died.

The crash occurred Saturday near Waukesha County Airport.

One of the planes crashed in a field in a subdivision. The other crashed in a vacant lot at the edge of the city.
